BOSS BATH HEATERS

THE BOSS is an economical Water Heater that possesses points of excellence peculiar to itself, as well as every feature that stands for efficiency. It is substantially made of copper at our own factory, and quickly provides a luxurious hot bath. The water is sprayed over a large surface of heated copper immediately before it falls into the bath; the consumption of gas is thus materially reduced, and the maximum heat obtained; indeed, the principle of heat radiation incorporated in THE BOSS makes it a peer among Bath Heaters.

No. 1A BOSS SPRAY WATER HEATER throws two gallons of water rapidly heated to a high temperature, thus ensuring a hot bath in a very short time. Fitted with our own combination tap, which makes the Heater practically non-explosive, the water and gas being turned on together after the pilot has been lighted. £5/10/.

No. 7 FUEL WATER HEATER can be heated by a handful of small chips, which makes it valuable for country use. The Heater throws two gallons of water heated to 130deg. Fahr. per minute. Made of copper throughout. £5/7/6.

I can PERMANENTLY remove your Superfluous Hairs or Moles, and I will gladly give you an which will demonstrate to you the difference between the temporary removal of hairs by other methods and the PERMANENT REMOVAL of hairs as removed by me ELECTRICALLY. I will place at your disposal that expert, courteous, and skilful treatment which has been without a single failure.

Call to-day and rid yourself of the disfiguring growth FOR EVER.

FACE MASSAGE.

No one need have Freckles, Blackheads, or Wrinkles if they come to me for proper treatment.

My system of massage is built on sound, common-sense lines, and is the result of experience gained in YEARS OF SUCCESSFUL PRACTICE. It will improve the sluggish circulation, giving tone to the skin through the agency of proper exercise on commonly neglected, and building up the tired or unused muscles.

ONE TREATMENT WILL CONVINCE YOU.

Sometimes it is necessary to use a skin and tissue builder. This I have found in

NETTOYER FACE CREAM.

It will feed up the starved tissue of the skin, it helps to clear the skin, and it is invaluable for use before applying powder to the face.

GUARANTEED NOT TO PROMOTE SUPERFLUOUS HAIR.

BENGER'S FOOD

is appetising and delicious. Even the fresh new milk used to prepare it is made lighter and easier to digest!

In the tin one food may look like another, but there the resemblance of any other to BENGER'S ends.

BENGER'S FOOD

is always prepared with fresh new milk, and in a few minutes (see directions) both the Food and the milk become blended into a dainty cream by a gentle first process of digestion, self-contained in the Food.

HOMESEEKERS, RENTPAYERS,
RENTPAYERS, HOMESEEKERS.
Why do you go on paying rent year after year, with nothing to show for it, when you can OWN YOUR HOME with the money you are now paying as rent every week? We will build a Cottage in any suburb of Sydney 15 per cent. cheaper than anyone else, and we use only FIRST-CLASS MATERIALS. If you own the land we will BUILD WITHOUT DEPOSIT, according to the value of your land. Or, if you have a reasonable deposit, we will buy the land in any suburb you choose, and build to your own design. The repayments as rent are very easy, being from 5/4 per week. This includes interest and principal, and you have the right to pay off at any time. There are no legal expenses of any kind, and your rent does not commence until your home is completed. It is a duty every married man owes his wife and family to provide them with a home, something to fall back on if anything happens to the wage-earner, more particularly in these times of stress. We have made SPECIAL PROVISIONS for sickness and misfortune, and if you have saved enough to buy the land you cannot do better than call and see us about the home to go on that land. We have placed many satisfied clients in their OWN HOMES during the past six years, and there is no reason why you should not get yours on the same easy terms. WE ARE SPECIALISTS IN HOME BUILDING, and employ a competent staff of trained workmen, able to carry out all classes of work, and although others may copy our advertisements they cannot quote you our prices or offer you our easy terms. In any case, if you are thinking of building, remember it costs you nothing to call and obtain all particulars of prices and terms from

LANDHOLDERS. LANDHOLDERS.
WHY NOT RESOLVE AT ONCE TO CEASE PAYING RENT, AND LET US ERECT YOU a Cottage Home on your vacant land, the payments for which only equal what you have previously paid as rent. The following are our terms, which have been before the public for over six years, and which we know are the best obtainable in SYDNEY:—NO DEPOSIT, land is sufficient, and we will in some cases pay off balance owing on land. NO LEGAL EXPENSES or CHARGES of any kind. PLANS and SPECIFICATIONS FREE.
WEEKLY PAYMENTS at rate of 1/4 for each £25 expended on building, which covers principal and interest, and pays off debt in 10½ years.
PAYMENTS SUSPENDED if needed through sickness or loss of work or any other unavoidable reasons.
RIGHT TO PAY OFF AT ANY TIME.
All work performed by our own staff under supervision of qualified architect.
We are an established company, and have earned a reputation that we are proud of, and you cannot do better than entrust your business to us.
Call at any time and obtain our prices, which we guarantee are the lowest obtainable.
PLANS and SPECIFICATIONS can be inspected at our offices of homes already erected by us.

THE "LINDE"
ICE AND REFRIGERATING
MACHINE.

The "Linde" is recognised to-day as the foremost Ice and Refrigerating Machine in Australia, and has gained this distinction by merit alone. Not only is the "Linde" economical, but, what is equally essential, it is thoroughly reliable and extremely well built. To support these claims we can quote the case of a machine that was installed over 25 years ago, and is to-day still at work. None but a very substantial machine could give this service. We shall be pleased to advise on any proposition. Our experience, covering every purpose to which refrigeration can be applied, is at your service.

POLL TO-DAY!

THE PREMIER'S FINAL CAMPAIGN WORD TO THE ELECTORS:—

VOTE FOR THE SELECTED NATIONAL CANDIDATE.

"Wherever a National Candidate has been nominated, he has been chosen with the utmost care and after the fullest inquiry. No injustice has been done in any seat; no competent or deserving man has been overlooked. Where, in certain cases, the Committee have had the difficult task of deciding between two by the single desire to strengthen the party. The by the single desire to strengthen the party. The friends of competent and deserving men, not chosen, should now show the same anxiety and sink their predilections and vote for the National Party.

"In certain seats the National Party have nominated no candidate. Here the position and attitude of Independent Labour candidates have been satisfactory; and it has been felt that no National candidate should be run against them. In all these cases our supporters, it is hoped, will vote for the Independent Labour men and repudiate P.L.L. executive control.

"Finally, in four seats—those of Lieut.-Col. Nicholson, Private Arkins, Lieut. Chaffey, and Sergeant Cann—legislators now at the front and heroically performing their duties in the trenches—it is hoped that every National supporter will record a vote in support of the absent patriots."

(Sgd.) W. A. HOLMAN.

LIFE IN LONDON AND THEREABOUT.

(CHRONICLED BY SIR HENRY LUCY.)

Sovereigns and Half-sovereigns: What has become of them?—The Automobile Club.—London Statues.—Blight of Frock Coats and Top Hats—Superfluities from Charles I.

WESTMINSTER, Feb. 3.

Has anyone of late seen a golden sovereign or even a half of one? Among the minor revolutions in social life consequent on the war the withdrawal of gold coins from currency is not the least striking. Paper notes of twenty shillings or ten shillings value, unknown three years ago south of the Tweed, solely serve to meet daily and hourly needs of domestic life. Bank of England notes, whose smallest denomination is five pounds, play their accustomed part in larger transactions. But the Treasury notes in a new form, the third since they first saw the light, predominate. Created as a war emergency designed to serve the purposes of the day, disappearing with the advent of peace, they have undoubtedly come to stay. Scotland, exceptionally shrewd in money matters, has from time immemorial had its one pound notes, issued by national banks duly authorised. They were looked upon askance by the English tourist whose holiday was in measure marred by apprehension that when returning southward he would "get caught" with some of these notes in his pocket. He has taken kindly to the English counterparts.

The marvel to the householder is what has become of the gold coins which suddenly and completely disappeared from circulation? A financial expert assures me the explanation is simple. The statute law requires that for an issue of paper money there must be held in possession of the issuer, whether it be a bank or the Government, a certain proportion of gold coin. This condition being duly observed in the matter of Treasury notes, our Government has used the remainder as the basis of obtaining foreign loans. The United States and Japan are our principal coadjutors in these transactions. The former have since the war began advanced to England and her allies not less than £423,000,000, a "deal" which requires the actuality of huge reserves of gold in order to carry it through.

The commandeering of the Automobile Club for the purpose of Government offices has filled Pall Mall with a cry of lamentation. It was not unexpected. But hope springs eternal in the human breast, and as the days and weeks passed without dreaded action being taken members convinced themselves that danger was passed. The club is the most modern and the most commodious of the Pall Mall cluster. It differs from its neighbours in the particular that ladies are permitted, when duly escorted, to share in the luxuries of its luncheons, dinners, and spacious drawing-room. This of course widens the area of regret and inconvenience.

It is not easy to say where the multitudinous members will find temporary accommodation. The circumstance that they have been left so long in possession, in itself a matter of congratulation, places them at a disadvantage, inasmuch as the most desirable buildings have been already appropriated. With the continuous creation of new departments of administration it is not safe to put a limit to the imperative demand of the Government for fresh office room. The Marlborough Club, which cherishes Royalty amongst its members, is safe, by reason of the fact that the most aristocratic of Pall Mall clubs it is the most meanly lodged. The Reform, the Carlton, and the Athenaeum, dowered with varied degrees of palatial accommodation, grow increasingly uneasy as they find their neighbours one after another compulsorily attached for Government service.

The sculptor who wrought the bronze statue of Mr. Gladstone, which Lord Rosebery unveiled in Edinburgh the other day, was well advised when he presented the statesman in the robes of the Chancellor of the Exchequer. In everyday life the great statesman was careless about the style or modernity of his clothes. He affectionately cherished a frock-coat suit of grey cloth, returned to with regularity when the summer solstice was entered upon. A generation of budding statesmen grew up with that suit, becoming familiar with every crease and fold, watching with interest the colour fading as the years passed. During one of the Midlothian campaigns, when he was Lord Rosebery's guest at Dalmeny, he daily wore an ancient much-frayed cape of the kind Shem, Ham, and Japhet might have put on when preparing for their walks abroad before the Flood compelled retirement to the Ark. It was compact of a material in vogue in early Victorian days. Probably it was the only specimen left in the last quarter of the nineteenth century. Even it could not disguise or debase the native majesty of Gladstone's presence.

What he looked like when appropriately dressed was realised by the multitude present at the opening of the law courts in the Strand. At that time, in addition to the premiership, he held the office of Chancellor of the Exchequer, and came to wait upon his Sovereign in the stately robes pertaining to it. As I looked at him my mind flashed back to the dowdy cape I had seen years earlier draping his shoulders at Dalmeny.

We are apt to complain of the appearance of statues of our public men affronting the eye in public thoroughfares. The effect is directly due to the costume. It was all very well for the Italian painter or sculptor to present on canvas or in bronze a great Roman with toga wrapped around him. When you come to the inevitable frock-coat and indispensable chimney pot hat of British respectability the case is hopeless. In a quiet street in Westminster twice a day as a rule I pass by the statue of an old friend, once Lord Mayor of London, afterwards a popular member of the House of Commons, who among other acts of munificence endowed the metropolis with a park perpetuating his name. Hence the statue, frock-coated and holding in his right hand the deadly "topper." I had seen the original model in other circumstances amid different scenery. The Baronet and I were fellow-travellers in a visit paid to Japan in the early 'Eighties. Mindful of the dignity pertaining to an ex-Lord Mayor, he carried with him his top hat, and wore it on all occasions pertaining to ceremonial. In course of the few weeks of our stay in Japan it became almost as prominent in the public eye as Fujiyama. Wherever he went he was followed by a crowd gazing reverently in mute marvel at his topper. It was the first they had seen. They were, I understood, divided in opinion whether it was a symbol of religious belief or merely of hereditary rank.

Readers of David Copperfield will remember the trouble Mr. Dick had in keeping out of his memorial reference to the head of Charles I. In an old library there has just come to light, and will presently be offered for sale in the London market, a document giving particulars of two hats supplied to his Majesty. The items run: "Wares delivered for his Maties. service the 14th of January, 1647, by Arthur Knight, his Maties' haberdasher of hatts." The charge "for two fine black beaver hatts for his Matie" is £5 10s; 10s is charged "for 2 black French bands," and 5s "for leather hatt case to send the hats in." The time was near at hand when a hat would be the one article of apparel the hapless King would not know what to do with.

SHAKESPEARE SOCIETY.

The members of the Shakespeare Society of New South Wales had their last meeting night in the Assembly Hall of the Education Department.

Under the direction of Mr. William Holman, senior, who contributed to the programme, several Shakespearian scenes were given without the aid of costumes. Mr. and Mrs. Marina, as Orlando and Rosalind, had a full measure of applause for the best of the love scenes in "As You Like It," and Miss Dumolo was happy in her selection of one of Olivia's speeches in "Twelfth Night." Miss Dora Williams was heard in Queen Margaret's speech, "Henry VI.," Miss Eleanor Ross in a scene from "Cymbeline," and Miss St. George in Queen Katherine's defence, "Henry VIII."

When you suffer from brain fatigue, indigestion, poor appetite, sleeplessness, or debility, take Clements Tonic. It relieves like magic. It gives healthy, certain rest. All chemists.—Advt.

A WOMAN'S LETTER.

Dress and Fashion.

LONDON, Jan. 25.

As I have often mentioned in these letters, this is an important time in the fate of fashion and millinery. A change is always looked for once the winter sales have run their course. You begin to awake from the hibernation of winter with its dark afternoons, when, as we say, "anything does." In February the days are sensibly longer, the light is more powerful, and the seamy side of one's raiment is terribly in evidence. Already there are indications of some changes of cut, and in many ways altering the line of our costumes. Principally in skirts is the new note most visible. They are straighter and longer. To be in the fashion your skirt should be a little below the ankle, so that only a portion of the foot shows. The very short skirt with its long boot is going out, and the more graceful longer skirt coming in. It is stated that Madame Rejane lately appeared in a skirt that was even longer than that I quoted. Her feet were almost hidden. I should not, however, accept this fact as a dictum of fashion. Madame Rejane is no longer a young woman, and her figure naturally demands that some concession be made. Neither is she a tall person. Few Frenchwomen are. She is wise in wearing such modification of the coming fashion as suits her. As you know, it is impossible for any middle-aged woman to look well in a very short skirt. Therefore this attitude of Rejane's only shows that she is the great artist we have always judged her to be. However, even middle-aged women walk more, and are far more out of doors in all weathers, than any Parisian, so that for them there must be a via media in the matter of skirts. We are so used to walking, without having to think of the hems of our garments, that, in adding to the length of skirts, one has to be careful to see that they are not long enough to be defiled by muddy pavements. Coats and skirts will be worn, but, owing to the increase in the length of skirt, the coats are shorter than they have been for some time. This all tends to increase the apparent length of the leg, and is from this circumstance becoming to all figures.

The vogue of the coat-frock shows no sign of waning. Most of the new models are of this type, worn with or without a coat to match. Most people have a cloth coat for warmth, which is removed on entering a house, and only the furs worn in a reception-room. Sometimes the coat-frock is worn over a warm blouse and a warm petticoat, a very sensible idea. It is always neat and smart, and has a promise of a popular future. We shall see the coat-frock made in silk or satin as the season progresses. Owing to the shortage of serge, which is a serious thing now, tweeds and all manner of woolstuffs are pressed into the service of women for tailor-made costumes. Tweeds are excellent wearing stuffs, but they lack the distinction of navy serge, which, as you know, is always "right," and can be worn under any circumstances. Velours, gabardines, coatings are all impressed by tailors for ladies' wear. Men put off buying clothes because the supply is so poor. I was told the other day by my son's tailor that a blue serge suit that last year cost four and a half guineas (a high price in itself), will cost this season £5/10/. Fortunately, as it happens, most men are in khaki, or make tweed do the work of their favourite blue serge suit. But from a woman's point of view it is a minor tragedy to be deprived of one's blue serge. A supply is kept for the making of women's Red Cross uniforms, for their overcoats, and also for some work where a uniform is needed. So we shall have to find other materials. There is no doubt that silk and satin will be much used for tailor suits. The thicker makes of twilled silk make admirable coat-frocks, and also costumes. When it is warm enough, alpaca will have a great innings.

Millinery.

I turn now to the question of millinery. Morning hard-wear hats remain simple, and are more or less of the sailor type. A sweeping brim, lined or otherwise, has a band of ribbon or a motif, something that does not get easily out of order. The smarter hats have broad brims and very high soft crowns trimmed just with a motif. Any design seems to be in favour, and more often than not the device is worked in gold or silver thread on satin, sometimes on the crown itself. These large hats are not worn with veils. Then there is a useful hat with rather narrow brim made of alternate strips of straw and silk, with a high square-topped crown with a conventional flower made of beads and ribbon. I was thinking that if you want to design a flower of this kind and haven't got exactly in your mind what it should be an orchid of the more elaborate kind would serve well. The colours are subdued, and rather lend themselves to this sort of thing.

You will find that "fabric hats," as they are termed, will be more worn than straws or felt, because the workers in the factories are doing other work. There are some charming examples already on view. Many of the new models have a mixture of straw plait and silk, with a soft silk crown, a narrow band finished with a cluster of rosebuds. Such a hat is turned out by one of our best hat houses at 12s 9d. Then come toques and small hats. One I particularly like is made entirely of shot silk, the silk corded in rows, but fitting the shape closely. There is a great cluster of roses, seven of them, and the finishing touch is a great four-looped bow, made of twisted ribbon on wire. This stands out lightly, for the ribbon is narrow and gives the height and breadth required which is always becoming and yet it looks light. This hat could be worn by a middle-aged woman or by a girl, though I find girls always choose a large hat in preference to a toque.

Some of the quieter small hats have the merest soupcon of a brim bound with velvet. The crown is made in two parts. First a largish circle of silk or satin, so cut that it is fulled on to the band, which is itself as high as the foundation crown. Then joined together the round top always hangs a little over. The band is embroidered in a device of cord and beads. This is a very becoming hat for any mature woman.

Blouses.

A change is coming over the spirit of the blouse. It almost seems old fashioned, but many of them are fastened at the back or else on the shoulders. Others simply slip over the head. This is for the smarter section of blouses. One I like very much has the fastening on the shoulder with press hooks. It is embroidered on the front with a wild rose and leaves, rather conventionally, the same on the cuffs and on the collar and shoulders. The fullness is so arranged that the absolute front is left plain. The sleeves are put in with wide armholes, and are full to the elbow, set into long arm pieces, fitting tightly with a flared cuff falling over the hand. The collar is Napoleonic, one which is sewn on just to where the fastenings come on each shoulder, so its set is not impaired by the fastenings.

The slip-on blouses are always made of thin materials, lace or chiffon, or figured lace over plain net, with a pretty camisole showing through, decorated with flowered ribbon or bunches of ribbon here and there. Sometimes the blouse has an edging of fur or feather trimming. And this will be found on net or lace blouses, cream or otherwise. The fur edge makes it becoming, and rather takes from the "chemise" effect of the plainer finish. In fact, such things arrange themselves when you take them in hand. I should lay in a stock of lace fichus and pretty collars for the approaching change in your own season. And be sure to include some pale biscuit primrose and apricot tints in the blouses you make. They look well under coats, and are becoming. All shades of soft pink are most useful; but beware of using violent colours and contrasts; the softer shades are more becoming. I think at the moment pink is the favourite colour, but it is only seen in pale tints, and seldom trimmed except with hemstitching and crochet buttons which match the colour.

Everything is much simpler, and allows for as little labour as possible. I daresay you can give out the hemstitching and kiltings you want for your blouses. We do this here, and you can have buttons made of your own stuffs that are not only cheap, but look better than anything else.

THE CHURCHES.

LAY READERS' CONFERENCE.

A largely-attended conference of the lay readers of the Diocese of Sydney took place on Saturday afternoon last. Archbishop Wright, in the course of an impressive sermon, at the opening service at St. Mark's Church, Darling Point, laid emphasis on the qualifications necessary for the efficient discharge of the duties of a lay reader, namely, Christian character, ability, knowledge, and acceptance of discipline in organisation. A personal tribute to the splendid work of lay readers in the outlying parishes of the diocese was paid by the Archbishop, who expressed a hope that others would take their share in this important branch of work. An admission service was afterwards held, when the Archbishop's chaplain presented two candidates for license as diocesan readers, one as catechist and three as lay readers. Subsequently the members of the conference proceeded to Bishopscourt, where they were entertained at afternoon tea by the Archbishop and Mrs. Wright. At the conference, which then sat in the lecture hall, an able paper was read by Mr. T. A. Stocks on the subject of distinctive badges for the readers. A vote favourable to the adoption of a badge was recorded, and the Archbishop announced that he would sanction a design prepared by Mr. A. E. Grant bearing the arms of the diocese. Mr. E. Graham addressed the conference on unity and co-operation as necessary to the successful carrying out of the work in which the readers were engaged.

Archbishop Wright will preach at St. Andrew's Cathedral to-morrow morning, when the fifth of the series of sermons on "Citizens of the Kingdom" will be given. The anthem, "Almighty and Everlasting God," will be rendered. The anthem chosen for the evensong is Gounod's familiar "There is a green hill far away." The Dean of Sydney will give the fifth of the course of addresses on "The Questioners of Christ." At the close of evensong a brief service of intercession for our soldiers at the front will be held.

There were in all about 100 voices, and the soloists included Misses Martin and Marshall, of the Conservatorium of Music, Mr. Percy French, tenor, and Mr. A. B. Sedgley, basso. Archdeacon Martin, M.A., delivered a short address, and the Revs. Clive Yarrington (rector) and W. H. Croft assisted in the service. The Cheer Oh Girls are still playing the part they set out to do six months ago. Since their first performance, last November, they have, in seven entertainments, made over £400. Great credit is due to them, as they have given up their time entirely to perfecting their work; and, judging by the performance last Saturday at the Repertory Theatre, they have succeeded in doing so. Great praise is due to Mrs. Bennett White, organiser and stage manager, who has thought out the scheme for each song, and drilled the clever girls. They have numerous calls on their generosity, and never refuse a request to help in any soldiers' comforts funds. Already they have helped augment the funds of the A.M.C., the Red Cross Societies at Katoomba, Manly, Cronulla, Neutral Bay, and the Pioneers' Battalion, as well as giving performances free to the returned soldiers, who appreciate their bright entertainment. Miss Dorrie Ward, as well as all the other Cheer Oh's, gives her services voluntarily.

A wedding was celebrated at Windsor on March 17 between Cecil Henry, second son of Mr. William Henry O'Brien, J.P., of Windsor, and Eunice Clara, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Manning, of Windsor. Rev. Norman Jenkyn, R.D., was the celebrant. The bride was attired in a costume of white georgette. She was given away by her father. Miss Myra Manning (sister of the bride) and Miss Lily May O'Brien were bridesmaids. After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien left for Sydney on their honeymoon.

St. Andrew's Cathedral, Sydney, was the scene of a wedding on February 16, when Sergeant Richard Strangman-Taylor, elder son of Captain and Mrs. Strangman-Taylor, of Brisbane, was married to Dorothy, daughter of Albert Strangman-Taylor, of H.M. Customs, Sydney. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. A. Yarnold. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of Brussels point over white satin, the lace being draped in pannier effect on the skirt; the bodice of the gown was of the lace, over tulle and ninon, the deep-pleated satin belt being held in place with blossoms. The train was of ninon, lined with georgette. Her embroidered veil was worn cap fashion, encircled with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white carnations, and wore a diamond ring, gifts of the bridegroom. There were three bridesmaids. The chief bridesmaid, Miss Florence Strangman-Taylor (sister of the bridegroom) wore a pretty frock of pale blue crepe de Chine, with hat to match. Miss Gem and Miss Olive Taylor (cousins of the bride) wore white organdie frocks, inlet with lace; and black hats, relieved with touches of pink. The bridesmaids carried bouquets of pink carnations, and wore gold armlets, gifts of the bridegroom. Sergeant Williams, A.I.F., acted as best man. After the ceremony, the relations and immediate friends of the bride and bridegroom were received by Mrs. Taylor at the Hotel 'Australia.' The bride's going away gown was of Assam silk, with hat to match.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

THE DUAL MONARCHY.

"Seven Years in Vienna" is an account of personalities and policies in the dual monarchy from 1907 to 1914, by an author who has chosen to remain anonymous. This is rather a pity in some ways for a book of this kind is always more effective when the author's name is a guarantee of good faith. Otherwise the suspicion may arise that his acquaintance with the circles with which he affects such intimacy is second-hand or even more remote. However, there is no reason to doubt the authenticity of this work. It does not pretend to any "inside knowledge," nor does it retail the backstairs gossip and scandal of courts. It makes no sensational revelations; it might have been written, and, indeed, probably has been written, by one who lived in Austria for a considerable time, and, without having access to any diplomatic arena read his papers intelligently, and followed the multifarious movements and intrigues in Austria-Hungary when the ordinary Briton knew little and cared less of what was going on there.

The author gives a somewhat different impression of various Austrian notabilities from the one that is generally accepted. His picture of the late Emperor, for instance, contains elements of pathos. Here we have no Machiavellian intriguer, but a lonely, broken, rather stupid, old man, whose last years were haunted by the presentiment that his object in life was going to be thwarted. For almost half a century he had managed to keep Austria-Hungary out of war; he would go to his grave content if he could say the same on his death bed. It was not to be. With advancing years he became less and less capable of resisting the powerful wills of younger men, particularly of the German Emperor and of the faction in Vienna, who stood for the Prussianisation of Austria. The moment of his surrender may be definitely dated; it was in mid-August, 1907, when he permitted King Edward to be grossly insulted from the stage during a Royal performance at Ischl. The completeness of his surrender may be judged from the fact that Francis Joseph had throughout his reign been most punctilious in paying his royal visitors every observance due to their rank. Austria's worst enemy could count upon receiving every appropriate courtesy; ceremonial was, indeed, the Emperor's hobby and study. And yet here in his own theatre he allowed a friendly monarch to be slighted most outrageously. It was the more pointed because none but Royalty and its entourage was present. Outside Austria the incident was hardly appreciated at its proper importance; it was taken to be another instance of the indecorous freedom of the Austrian stage. But every Austrian understood its significance.

The author has much to say of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, whose assassination at Sarajevo was the spark which set Europe ablaze. There has been much speculation about what would have happened had he not been struck down. Would the war have been avoided or simply postponed; would another pretext have been found? The author does not attempt to answer these questions conclusively, but he suggests that the Archduke Francis Ferdinand's existence would certainly have involved Austria in difficulties which might very easily have reached beyond her own boundaries. The opinion of the west was that he was a humane enlightened man with democratic sympathies, and a strong Slavophile. The author does not detract from his memory, but points out that except among the Slavs, who regarded him as their protector, he was very unpopular in Austria-Hungary. "The Germans despised him, the Hungarians frankly detested him, and the Italians execrated him." His sympathy for national ideas did not extend beyond the Slavs; he treated the Italians in Istria and Dalmatia with the utmost harshness, and he was on excellent terms with the Emperor of Germany. If he had lived to rule Austria, Servia might not have been made the preliminary burnt offering to the gods of war, but war would certainly have come.

The author appears as an apologist for the Bulgarians, for the people at any rate as distinct from the throne and government. Bulgaria made the initial mistake of looking to Austria and Germany instead of to Russia; she has paid for it ever since, and all along the line. Russia had many reasons for doing the fair thing by Bulgaria—pride in her own creation, for example, and the clannishness of the Slav. But the Teutonic powers have systematically played with her, and the unsophisticated Bulgars have been no match for the astute wire-pullers of Berlin and Vienna. Even in sheer business propositions Bulgaria was made to dance to the Germanic tune. The Balkan wars provide a case in point. Servia ordered guns from France, Bulgaria from Germany. When the guns came the Bulgarians did not know how to work them (as Germany had foreseen), and when they had acquired this knowledge they found that the guns were useless. This was why they were unable to take Adrianople; Germany had supplied them with damaged goods, knowing that they would be employed against her protege, Turkey. Meanwhile Bulgaria saw that Servia, her ally in the first war and her conqueror in the second, had received the latest products of the Creusot factory and had been taught to handle them very efficiently by skilled French artillerymen. This experience should have disgusted Bulgaria, especially when, after her defeat by Servia, Austria very plainly gave Ferdinand to understand that she had washed her hands of the whole Bulgarian business. But Germany, with her designs on the East, took a longer view, and adopted a policy of conciliation. Ferdinand has many weaknesses, chief among which is inordinate vanity. He had been snubbed at Vienna; William II. received him on equal terms, and played his conceit to the top of its bent. Austria felt that she had been over-hasty in dropping Bulgaria. Meanwhile "influence" of the typical kind favoured by the Central Powers was brought to bear in Bulgaria. "The Bulgarian Parliament was rendered useless, as the leading members could be bought at any time. Ready money is rare in the Balkans, and the diplomatists knew full well the price of every politician at Sofia. It was amazingly small. Sometimes they stood out for an order as well as money as the price of their dishonour, but as a rule money was sufficient to buy them to betray their country. The atmosphere of Sofia was one of intrigue and crime. No one could stand against it. The common people, sturdy peasants, dimly comprehended that their King was not doing the best for them. They looked to the Czar of all the Russias to deliver them from a distasteful alliance with Germany and Austria." If they had acted in time they might have spared their country much tribulation, but Bulgaria's fate in this war was sealed when Austria conferred on Ferdinand the exalted order of the Golden Fleece. That settled Bulgaria's future as far as Ferdinand was concerned. (Constable and Co.)

SALTBUSH BILL, J.P.

In "Saltbush Bill, J.P.," Mr., or rather Major, A. B. Paterson has broken a poetic silence extending over several years. The verses in this collection are old as well as new; that is to say, although they now appear in book form for the first time many of them, one gathers, date from early in the author's literary career. The author has been away on active service in Egypt for the past 21 months, and is not responsible for the selection of the contents. One imagines that if he had had the opportunity he would have excluded certain rhymes of purely occasional interest, which were all very well at the time, but were hardly worth reprinting in more permanent form. Apart from these, and there are few of them, one finds all the excellent and characteristic qualities that one associates with Mr. Paterson's work. If he seldom writes poetry, he writes quite admirable verse. Wherever Australian is spoken one hears him quoted, and "Saltbush Bill, J.P.," will add to the number of bush classics. Here we find the same cheerful philosophy, the same humour, the same swing and dash that have made Mr. Paterson's name a household word. Saltbush Bill himself, with his vein of dry comedy, is well to the fore, and conducts coroner's inquests, and adds pastoral footnotes to Old Testament history in his own inimitable way. There is much good fun in these verses. The man who innocently undertook to "shout" for a camel should have learned the local lesson which years ago "The stranger who came to Walgett town" had mastered. "The mountain squatter" who modestly observes—

I don't give out a spark.
But what I know, I know,

and proves it by his confession; "Brumby's Run," these and half a dozen other verses show Mr. Paterson at his most characteristic best. There is a fine "Song of the Wheat":—

Furrow by furrow, and fold by fold,
The soil is turned on the plain;
Better than silver, and better than gold,
Is the surface mine of the grain.
Better than cattle, and better than sheep
In the fight with drought and heat;
For a streak of stubbornness, wide and deep,
Lies hid in a grain of wheat.

And finally there is that most Australian of songs, "The Road to Hogan's Gap." One would like to quote it in full. One certainly sympathises with the traveller who changed his mind on hearing what he had to face—

The stranger turned his horse quick.
He didn't cross the bridge;
He didn't go along the crick
To strike the second ridge;
He didn't make the trip because
He wasn't feeling fit.
His business up at Hogan's was
To serve him with a writ.

He reckoned if he faced the pull,
And climbed the rocky stair,
The next to come might find his hide
A landmark on the mountain side,
Along with Hogan's brindled bull,
And Hogan's old grey mare!

SCIENCE AND ALTRUISM.

"Discovery, the Spirit and Service of Science," by Mr. R. A. Gregory, is a survey of the progress and achievement of scientific research. The author combats the view that the man of science is an aloof, callous necromancer, "a Faust who has not yet made a bargain with Mephistopheles, and is therefore without human interest." He admits that in the popular mind scientific and humanistic studies are thought to be antipathetic; he denies that there is any antagonism between the two. "When scientific work is instituted solely with the object of securing commercial gain its correlative is selfishness; when it is confined to the path of narrow speculation it leads to arrogance; and when its purpose is materialistic domination, without regard to the spiritual needs of humanity, it is a social danger, and may become an excuse for learned barbarity. But scientific research is rarely inspired by these motives."

Mr. Gregory illustrates this from the history of scientific research in various fields. In a book of this scope it is obviously impossible to do more than indicate the broad lines of development in the advancement of scientific learning, but it is extraordinary how much he contrives to tell us in a small compass. His system of arrangement is admirable. In all ages certain phenomena have attracted the attention of students who sought a rational explanation for them. Mr. Gregory groups these under a dozen or so heads, each covering a general principle, and shows how, with the increase of knowledge, hard and fast lines tend gradually to disappear. The merest layman is aware that no branch of science is independent of any other; there are no watertight compartments in nature. The old philosophers realised this, and boldly took all knowledge as their province. Nowadays man is less ambitious; he is content to devote himself to some tiny corner of research, and to rely on his colleagues in other departments of science to furnish him with the fruits of their labours. The busiest general practitioner, for example, must get the concentrated results of biology, physics, chemistry, and a score of things if he is to satisfy his patients.

Mr. Gregory proves his contention that the best work in science has been done with the highest of motives. The scientist is not mercenary. Many of his triumphs have brought wealth to their exploiters, but seldom have they put much into his own pocket. It is usually the man who sought knowledge for its own sake that has made the most epoch-marking discoveries. Even fame appealed to him little, for it is notorious that many scientific prophets have been without honour in their own day. Galileo won neither reputation nor wealth from his work, and there have been many Galileos in the history of science. The desire to know has been the impulse and the reward; and to the desire to know should be added the desire to serve mankind. This has been immediately present in what may be termed the medical and hygienic side of research, to which the world owes an incalculable debt. Antiseptic surgery, inoculation that prevents, cures, or mitigates horrible diseases, tropical lands robbed of their perils—these are some of the familiar triumphs of the medical profession which have gone practically unrewarded. Everyone could tell you who invented the steam engine. How many could say offhand who invented the supreme mercy of chloroform, or who scotched the gangrene that followed even a minor operation in the days before asepsis? (Macmillan.)

NAMES.

Professor Ernest Weekley beguiles his academic leisure by disinterring curious lore about the derivation of names. Already he has published several books on the subject, and in his latest, "Surnames, he plunges the interested reader still deeper in the waters of etymology. Professor Weekley reminds us that we should never laugh at another person's name. We may smile when we meet someone called Gizzard or Hogsflesh, but we should remember that it may be the purest fortune that we are not named after just as materialistic an object. Indeed, if we only knew it, many names that bear the cachet of distinction can be resolved into very commonplace derivatives. The surname we possess is largely a matter of luck. Originally there may have been a certain "John Wilson of Woolloomooloo, Carpenter." If the records of Woolloomooloo had been kept in the capricious manner of early England, any one of the proper nouns might have supplied his descendants with their name. In fact, it was more likely than not that his place of occupational name would supersede his patronymic. There are many Smiths who have never worked in a smithy; many Sergeants who have never held tenure of the King; many Farmers who have never been engaged in agriculture. Occupational names have persisted to a remarkable degree, but place names are scarcely less enduring. To this day in Scotland they will tell you that Bareacres went to town. By this they mean that the owner of Bareacres farm went to town. In modern times many place names can be recognised by the termination "man." To give a concrete illustration, in which no disrespect is intended:—"Holman" is the man who lived in a "hole" or steep valley. No doubt he developed great ingenuity in finding the best path out of it. There remains one other possibility in the surname, the nickname given because of some mental or physical peculiarity. This possibility is rather an appalling one, which has made the children suffer for the eccentricities of their parents, yea, unto the thirtieth and fortieth generation. As long as these eccentricities were amenable or harmless no one minded. Armstrong and Lightfoot are good names to have; Whitehead hurts no one. But people who are afflicted with such names as Greenhorn, Puddifoot, Unthank, or Trickery must bear their ancestors a grudge. (John Murray: G. Robertson.)

THE ROMANCE OF ESCAPES.

In "The Romance of Escapes" Mr. Tighe Hopkins gossips pleasantly on a picturesque subject. His escapes are of all sorts and conditions; gaol birds, prisoners of war, men proscribed for their political or religious opinions. The exploits of many of them are already famous, and it is difficult to add anything at this time of day to the stories of Trenck or Casanova. Nevertheless, Mr. Hopkins usually contrives to contribute something new, if it is only a note of incredulity. His treatment of Casanova's memoirs (which he frankly does not credit) is an example of his critical method. Our only authority for Casanova's escape is Casanova himself, and he had never any sentimental objection to lying. The whole record bristles with improbabilities—the iron bar and block of marble so conveniently found in the prison, the episode of the macaroni pie, and so forth. There is little doubt that his gaoler was in league with him and that much in this part of the memoirs is mere embroidery. Indeed, many of the most celebrated escapes are less wonderful when analysed; they depend on the connivance of the guards. Others are remarkable for their publicity; the escapee is so sure of the loyalty of those around him that he makes no attempt at secrecy. The wanderings of Prince Charlie in the Highlands provide a case in point. Before Mitchel, the Irish political exile, could escape from Tasmania to New South Wales and thence to America he had to cross the island twice from end to end. But he had only to mention who he was for the non-official inhabitants to harbour him and speed him on his journey.

The palmy days of escapes are over now, although after the war there may be some interesting tales to be told. In prison life conditions have changed so much that the most audacious and persevering have little chance of getting away. The old careless regime when it was considered sufficient to throw a prisoner into a dungeon with massive walls and there to leave him to his own devices have passed. The modern gaoler, too, is a different type from the old shuffler who could be induced to turn a blind eye when required. No longer can the aspirant escapee rely on the unwitting help of a mad governor, as did Benevenuto Cellini. You cannot spend weeks or months like a Trenck or a Latude, in burrowing a tunnel out of your cell, for you are never left alone for long, and your cell is constantly examined. You cannot, like Casanova, send to a confederate a "jemmy" in a dish of macaroni, because a six-inch loaf is your largest article of diet. You cannot, like Louis Napoleon, calmly walk out of prison disguised as a workman, because no hired labour is allowed within the walls. You cannot change clothes with a visitor because you are separated from him by a grille. In fact, none of the old devices of convention are open to you. Supervision has killed them. "The great romantic flights lie beyond the limits of the attainable. System, with lesser bolts and thinner walls and lower ramparts, does what the want of system, with triple doors and cells five feet thick and outer walls and towers fifty to a hundred feet in height, was often quite powerless to effect. The old prisons were built like fortresses, but strength of masonry is no longer the prime consideration. . . . Discipline and a perfected scheme of surveillance have dispensed with the characteristic defences of the past. (John Murray: G. Robertson.)

NEW NOVELS.

Mrs. Wharton is at her best when she writes a solid novel; she is less effective as a writer of short stories. "Xingu" collects some of her fugitive work and is unequal in merit. Mrs. Wharton rather affects the type of narrative which is not really a short story at all, but a miniature novel sufficiently condensed to be printed in a single number of a magazine. This book contains several examples of these, none of which will strike the reader as being very successful. The pathos of "Bunner Sisters," for instance, is almost obscured by the tedious detail in which the crisis is developed. It is the same in other stories; there is too much frame, too much varnish, too little picture. But where Mrs. Wharton condescends to write a simple and plain short story, she does it extremely well. There are three in this book, each written in a different vein, which are admirable in their way. They strike the tragic, the ironic, and the comic notes respectively. "Coming Home" is a tale of the war told by an American Red Cross worker. There is nothing sensational about it; none of the characters display any spectacular agonies; war is war, and facts are facts, and Bechamp's conscience was quite untroubled. He was not an instrument of revenge but of justice. In "Autre Temps" Mrs. Wharton satirically plays with a subject on which she has written very seriously, the facile divorces of modern America. Here we have a mother, herself divorced, ostracised and exiled by society for what she is and has done. She hears that her daughter is in a similar case. She conquers her shrinkings and crosses the Atlantic to be at her daughter's side. When she gets there she finds that her daughter is on the crest of the wave of social success. The brilliant divorcee is a person of immense consequence; the mother is a somewhat compromising acquaintance who had better be kept out of the way. The situation is one which contains both tragedy and comedy; Mrs. Wharton is concerned with its irony and is kindly enough to give it a happy ending. "Xingu" itself is sheer comedy, with an ironic ingredient. The "high brows" of the ladies' mutual improvement society have never felt quite sure of the qualifications of a worldly and rather flippant dame to belong to their exalted fraternity; yet she confounds them all. When the bored lion comes to be entertained it is the suspect, Mrs. Roby, who introduces the entrancing topic of Xingu. Everyone is enthralled, and everyone appears to know all about it, except what it is. Is it an esoteric cult, or a language, or a thing of which no well-bred lady should confess too great a knowledge? Mrs. Roby knew; the bored lion did not know; they both walked warily while the others expatiated on the mysteries of Xingu. Then the pair went off to the bourgeois diversion of bridge, while the "high brows" looked up the word in a dictionary, and discovered their own confusion. (Macmillan.)

"Stella Bellano," by Captain T. B. Franklin, bristles with improbabilities, but somehow manages to survive them. The author obviously knows all about the lonely garrison posts on the shores of Somaliland that think of Aden (their nearest centre of civilisation, although in a different continent) as a gay metropolis. But, having chosen the novel as his mode of literary expression, he must needs add an element of romance. He asks too much of our credulity. It is not likely that the detrimental Captain Lenox, commandant of Pine Island, would fail to recognise in Sergeant Smith his own brother, whom he had seen a very few years before. It is not likely that the commandant could with impunity disappear from his command for months at a time, in order to prosecute his love affairs. It is particularly unlikely that during one of his absences war between Britain and Italy should have broken out. It is true that neither combatant seems to have felt much interest in this war, and that after one or two brushes among outposts peace was declared. But it is strange that Australia never heard of it. Despite these signs of amateurishness, Captain Franklin's novel contains some readable matter. The routine of the garrison on Pine Island, their fortifications and their pipers' band; Captain Rollo with the Santa Maria; the feud between the Yibri tribe and the local potentate in Somaliland; the raid on Pine Island—these things appear all to be drawn from life and redeem the banality and the crude melodrama of the plot. (Holden and Hardingham: Angus and Robertson.)

NEW MUSIC.

Oswald Anderson, Ltd., publishes "Hurry Up," written and composed by Helen M. Van der Velde, and sung during the "Bunyip" season at the Grand Opera House by Nellie Kolle. This is a march-song of a popular character, with a melodious refrain, to which trumpet phrases give a martial effect.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

A commentator upon the theatrical attractions in New York last January quotes Robert Browning when he said, "I never pretended to offer such literature as should be a substitute for a cigar or a game of dominoes to an idle man;" and continues by counting off 23 current pieces which indulgently cater for the poet's loafer and his kind! However, this far-away critic is not quite as severe as one might expect from such an opening. He admits that a producer cannot be expected to ask of a play, "Is it good?" rather than "Will it draw?" It may even be said that the fact that it is good is discouraging to the expectation that it will draw. It seems that the average New York playgoer is frequently quite inattentive to what is good from an art standpoint. Howells, the novelist, once wrote: "You argue that because a thing is good it ought to be liked; but a good thing can be liked only by those who are good enough to like it!" Hence, there were in January only six pieces which this art moralist held to be in any sense good—and none of them has yet reached Australia, or is likely to do so! The critic quotes "Getting Married" and "Great Catherine" as drawing the public, not by their intrinsic cleverness, as they should do, but owing to the prodigious reputation of George Bernard Shaw, and the vogue of the Washington-square Players. The Japanese tragedy "Bushido" was revealed as a deeply touching and austerely noble Japanese classic, but did not attract as it should have done with Jose Rubens' haunting personation of the devoted Masuo. Lord Dunsany's imaginative "The Gods of the Mountain" is summed up as an authentic triumph of the dramatic imagination "rather badly done at the Portmanteau." This author is described as displaying a blend of bitterness and beauty, humour and poetry, with a command of mystery and terror. There is a scene in the drama, the entrance of the seven monstrous Green Things, of grotesque and appalling awfulness, which should chill the heart—but did not, because the players at the Portmanteau could not get the atmosphere. Reading this dictum, one would like to know whether any actors on earth could get it, or whether there was anything to get! It reads like Maeterlinck run mad! Mr. Arnold Daly is praised for putting up "The Master," a play of weight and distinction, by Hermann Bahr. It is the tragedy of a philosopher who forgives his wife when she betrays him—and is laughed at! Honourable people despise him; his wife amazes him with reproaches, declares he never loved her, and leaves him forever. "Who has pity for the strong? Perhaps it is a tragic mistake not to be a puppet like the rest. But to-morrow—to-morrow I shall have myself in hand again." This study of human nature is declared to be grave and wise, affecting and sincere, and a happy "find" for the theatre in New York, whether it is aware of the fact or not.

Our London correspondent writes under date January 25:—"Miss Renee Maxwell, the young Sydney soprano now studying at the Guildhall School of Music, where she has been awarded several valuable scholarships, made her first public appearance in London last Sunday afternoon at the customary orchestral concert at the Albert Hall. Mr. Landon Ronald, conductor of the Albert Hall concerts, is also, it will be remembered, the principal of the Guildhall School of Music, so that Miss Maxwell was fortunately placed in respect of the difficulties of securing a London hearing. She had, indeed, the exceptional advantages of an assured audience and a concert of first-rate calibre. This advantage, however, was well justified by results. The young singer, who had chosen for her numbers 'Caro Nome' and two songs of Mr. Landon Ronald, made a complete success, the beautiful voice, now well advanced in point of training, filling easily the vast spaces of the Albert Hall auditorium, and maintaining throughout its appealing quality. As London musical critics are mercifully spared the duty of attending Sunday concerts, not many Press notices of this appearance will be available to Miss Maxwell, but those that have appeared are entirely favourable, while her Sydney friends may here take the assurance of an old Sydneyite that she made hosts of new friends and charmed everybody present. Her reception was very cordial—with many coo-ees in it."

Barry Lupino, whose meek and gentle humour as Eddie contrasts so unexpectedly with the wonderful acrobatic dance which winds up that ill-used little man's stage existence, is one of the most perfectly trained dancers and one of the most travelled artists of the present-day stage. In childhood he joined for three seasons the class conducted by Chechhetti, director of the ballets at the Imperial Opera House, Petrograd, who was then starring in London at the Alhambra Theatre, where little Barry's father, George Lupino, was principal comedian and dancer. He was then placed under Espinoza, another star dancer, a French Jew, only 4ft 10in high, and with an immense nose, whose grace and agility nevertheless kept him at the top of the tree in London for several years. Young Lupino next studied under Nijinski, lately of the Imperial Opera House ballet at Vienna, whence the Russian artist escaped with difficulty after the war to New York on a special passport. Finally, Mr. Lupino was taught by his mother, who was principal dancer at the Paris Opera House under the name of Florence Valeria. Mrs. Lupino's maiden name was "Webster," and she was a niece of Ben Webster, the famous actor-manager, whilst her mother's brother was Barry Sullivan, the Shakespearian actor, after whom Barry Lupino was named. After all his training Mr. Lupino was apprenticed to the Lauri family of pantomimists, a beginning due to the fact that the late George Lauri's father was a brother of young Lupino's grandfather. A brief glance only can be taken at the history of the Lupinos, the most numerous theatrical family upon the English or any other stage. Chevalier Lupino arrived in London from Florence in 1734, and appeared with his family at Goodman's Fields, a few years before Garrick, in a piece called "The Tavern Bilkers." He had six sons, who all settled in England, and adopted stage names (Lauri, Leclercq, Lamartin, Leopold, Le Fre) which still survive. They all married stage artists, as did nearly all of their descendants. Mr. Barry Lupino blends classic, acrobatic, and grotesque dancing, and has done so for various seasons at Drury Lane Theatre, where he has played the Cat in "Dick Whittington," and in "Puss in Boots," Puck in "The Yellow Dwarf," Alexis in "Jack and the Beanstalk," Smile in "Hop o' My Thumb," and Finnikin in "Sleeping Beauty" (1913). He was replaced by his understudy, his younger brother, Stanley Lupino, who has remained in the Drury Lane pantos ever since. Mr. Lupino gained his early experience as an actor of "character" in the melodramas staged by his aunt, Sara Lane, many years lessee of the Britannia Theatre, Hoxton. But his travelling engagements have placed him on the stage of the Paris Opera House and Chateau d' Eau, the Berlin Opera House, and Winter Garden, the Brussels Palais d' Ete, the Buda Pest Opera House, and many other Continental centres, besides throughout Australia and New Zealand, and in America, where he was appearing at the Roof Gardens when J. and N. Tait secured him for a second tour of Australasia.

Just before the war Zandonai's Italian opera, "Francesca da Rimini," was produced at Covent Garden, and now it has been staged at the New York Metropolitan, with Martinelli as the tenor, and Mme. Alda in the title part. The verdict of "Musical America" is that the true stuff of genius does not animate its pages, and that melodically "Francesca" is distressingly barren.

At Easter the J. C. Williamson firm will have no fewer than eleven enterprises under their management in Australia. These comprise the "Damaged Goods" company, the "House that Jack Built" pantomime company, the Florence Rockwell company, the Royal Comic Opera Company, the New English Musical Comedy Company, the "Fair and Warmer" company, the "Daddy Long Legs" company, two companies with D. W. Griffith's "Intolerance," the Robert Greig comedy company in New Zealand, and the Marie Tempest company. In these companies are engaged 125 artists, chorus and ballet totalling over 200, the number of people on the various staffs being [illegible].

LAW REPORT.

BANCO COURT.

(Before the Chief Justice and a jury of four.)

ACTION FOR DAMAGE TO WOOL.

Kitamura v Dalgety and Company, Ltd.

Mr. Broomfield and Mr. Flannery, instructed by Messrs. M'Elhone and Barnes, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. Bavin, instructed by Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co., for the defendants. This was an action brought by Toranoske Kitamura, trading as F. Kanematsu, against Dalgety and Co., Ltd., to recover for loss sustained by plaintiff owing to damage to certain bales of wool. The case as stated by Mr. Broomfield was that plaintiff was a Japanese merchant and wool-buyer, and had carried on business in Sydney for a good many years; and among other things he purchased large quantities of wool, and shipped it to Japan for manufacture. In August of last year he bought wool to the value of £30,000 or £40,000, and defendant undertook to dump, lighter, and convey a number of bales from their wharf at Miller's Point to the Japanese steamer Nikko Maru, then lying on the western side of Circular Quay. On the morning of August 18, about 8 o'clock, 506 bales of wool were loaded on the defendants' lighter Delta. At that time a light westerly wind was blowing, and the water at Circular Quay was calm and only slightly disturbed by the arrival and departure of ferry boats. The Delta was placed alongside the Nikko Maru, and several slings of wool were sent aboard, but shortly afterwards 50 of the bales either fell or rolled overboard. Forty-nine were subsequently recovered, some of them from the bottom of the harbour, and one was lost altogether. Plaintiff contended that the accident occurred owing to the negligent manner in which the bales were loaded on the Delta. The wool was, it was said, stowed in five tiers, giving a total height of 12 to 15 feet, and there was a cant outward instead of inward. The dunnage was also badly arranged. Plaintiff sued to recover £922 2s 3d, being the difference between the estimated value of the wool before it was damaged and the amount realised afterwards. Counsel read a letter from the defendants, received by plaintiff, in reply to his notice of demand for compensation, in which they denied that there had been any negligence on their part, and stated that the accident was attributable to a heavy swell from the ferry boats causing the lighter to roll violently against the side of the steamer. They also notified that they held plaintiff responsible for the cost of recovering the wool.

Mr. Shand said that defendants admitted that the wool belonged to the plaintiff, but denied that they undertook to dump, lighter, and ship it under the conditions set out by plaintiff in his declaration.

The case stands part heard.

NO. 1 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Pring and a jury of four.)

A COOK'S COMPLAINT.

Egan v Barrier Branch of the Amalgamated Miners' Association of Broken Hill and others.

Mr. J. L. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. Windeyer, instructed by Messrs. Pigott and Stinson (agents for Messrs. J. R. Edwards, of Broken Hill), appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Watt, instructed by Messrs. Weaver and Allworth, for the defendants. This was an action brought by Frances Egan against the Barrier branch of the Amalgamated Miners' Association, William Diggory Barnett, M. P. Considine, and Thomas Gamboni to recover compensation for loss sustained by her, owing to defendants having wrongfully and unlawfully brought about her dismissal from the position of cook with a Mr. P. E. Conroy, of Broken Hill. Mr. Campbell, in explaining the case to the jury, said that plaintiff at the time of the occurrence complained of was supporting herself and two children, and prior to the commencement of the action she was in business as a restaurant-keeper at Broken Hill. Barnett was the secretary and Considine the president of the defendant association; Gamboni was also a member of that body and organiser of the hotel, caterers, and restaurant employees of Broken Hill. The history of the circumstances out of which the action arose disclosed a condition of tyranny and cruelty which was very startling. The trouble originally arose through the action of the hotel, caterers, and restaurant employees wishing to have a log providing for certain conditions of employment, and they exercised their local power to compel the employers to accept it after proceedings in the court. Comparative peace reigned, however, until the outbreak of the war, when business fell off in certain Broken Hill establishments, and the employers desired to obtain an alteration in the log to meet the altered circumstances. This, however, the employees opposed, and practically brought about a strike. A certain number of the employers submitted and signed the log, which contained the same conditions that had previously prevailed, but several stood out. The log was obtained for the purpose of being forwarded to Sydney to be filed as an industrial agreement. This necessitated an application to the Court, and the employers gave notice of their intention to file a counter claim. A vigorous propaganda was thereupon started in the newspaper published by the Amalgamated Miners' Association. Among the employers who stood out was the plaintiff and the defendant association called out all her employees. Subsequently a Wages Board was appointed, and, after an award was made, the Hotel Caterers', and Restaurant employees secured the assistance of the defendant association, and plaintiff and seven other employers of labour taking the view that the matter had been settled advertised for the return of their former employees. The employees returned, but when this stage had been reached, the plaintiffs' business was practically ruined. She then applied to Mr. Conroy, cafe proprietor, of Broken Hill, for a position as cook in his establishment, and was accepted, but later on the defendants, as plaintiff alleged, conspired together and brought about her dismissal under a threat that if Conroy did not get rid of her, he would be boycotted, and, as a matter of fact, a strike of his employees was brought about. Damages were laid at £1000. Defendants pleaded not guilty.

Evidence was then entered upon, and a printed poster was put in headed "Roll of Honour; List of Black Houses and Scabs; Hotel, Club, and Restaurant Lockout, 1915." Then followed the names of certain hotels, and "Phil Conroy's Austral Cafe," where plaintiff was employed as a cook.

Plaintiff in the course of her evidence detailed the circumstances outlined by her counsel, and said that owing to the action of the defendants she was forced to leave Broken Hill. Upon her refusal to engage girl employees for her restaurant only through the association, stating that she would wait for the decision of the wages board and abide by it, she was informed that her place would be picketed. The pickets were afterwards put about her shop.

His Honor: What did they do?—They prevented customers from coming to my shop.

His Honor: How long was your place picketed?—About three weeks. Even after she closed her shop the pickets were placed about her shop for a time.

His Honor: I am surprised that such a state of things should be tolerated year after year in a civilised community.

In cross-examination by Mr. Watt, witness said that friends were finding the money for her in the case, but she preferred not to disclose who they were. She admitted that on one occasion she forced a man named Marshall to partially undress. She had a revolver at the time, and threatened him, but she did not threaten to shoot him. He was the president of the Hotel, Club, and Restaurant Employees' Union, and she tarred and feathered him, and also whipped him. Marshall started to cry, and she told him it was nothing compared with what she had in store for Gamboni and Barnett. When Marshall began to cry she told him he did not think of the many nights she had gone to bed crying because of the action of the union officials, and not knowing where she would get food for her children for breakfast next morning. She walked after Marshall for about 100 yards with the revolver in her hand after she had tarred and feathered and whipped him. She subsequently attacked a man named Howard because he was a "pimp" of the A.M.A. He had warned Gamboni and Considine that she intended to thrash them. She did not threaten him with the revolver, and he ran away.

Conroy in his evidence stated that after a "black list" had been issued Considine, Barnett, and Gamboni waited upon him and told him that the A.M.A. had taken the matter up. Certain demands were made upon him, which Barnett at his request wrote out. These demands included permission to allow a union representative to enter on business premises during a period of two hours, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 5 p.m.; engagement of all labour through the union office, or labour bureau, and dismissal of all those who worked and acted detrimentally to the union during the term of the disagreement. He asked whether Mrs. Egan and Davies, who were not members of the union, were included, and Barnett answered "Yes; they are all scabs, and will have to go, whether professional or amateur." He was also informed that he would have to come in, or the union would picket him again and ruin him. Witness further stated that he stuck out for a fortnight, but did not do much business, and he then decided to accede to the association's demands, and dismissed all his employees, including plaintiff. But for the demands made upon him by the association he would have continued to employ them, as he was very well satisfied with them. Subsequently, Mrs. Egan applied to him for reappointment, and though he was willing to take her back and her old position was vacant he could not do so. He, however, informed her that if she got the consent of the union he would reengage her.

Evidence for the plaintiff is not yet concluded.

NO. 2 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Ferguson and a jury of four.)

Firth v Bank of New South Wales.

Mr. Windeyer, instructed by Messrs. Salwey and Primrose, appeared for the plaintiff, Alfred Smith; and Mr. J. L. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. A. Thomson, instructed by Messrs. Allen, Allen, and Hemsley, for the defendant, the Bank of New South Wales. This case has already been stated.

The jury returned a verdict for defendant. On the application of Mr. Windeyer, a stay of proceedings was granted.

IN EQUITY.

(Before the Chief Judge, Mr. Justice Simpson.)

A WOMAN'S WILL.

Egan v Curry.

Mr. O. E. Norris (Messrs. Barry and Norris) appeared for the plaintiff, John Egan, of Temora, farmer; and Mr. H. H. Mason, instructed by Messrs. Barry and Norris (agents for Mr. T. P. M'Mahon, of Cootamundra) for the defendant, Ann Eliza Curry; and Mr. Claude Weston, instructed by the same firm of solicitors, for the defendant, Christina Egan.

This was a matter in which the interpretation of the Court was asked regarding the will and codicils of Christina M'Donald, deceased, of Cootamundra. The testatrix, who died on March 28, 1914, left a will (1909), in which she devised furniture and horses and ready money to her daughter, Annie, and the residue of the estate to the said Annie and to another daughter, Ann Eliza. A codicil to the will revoked devise of the residue to the said daughters, and in lieu devised two c.p. blocks of land, each of 20 acres, at Salt Clay Creek, to Annie absolutely. In all other respects the testatrix said she confirmed her will.

The Court was asked to say whether the deceased had died intestate as to any, and, if so, what portion of her real estate.

After argument his Honor reserved his decision.

(Before Mr. Justice Harvey.)

WHEATLEY v WHEATLEY.

Mr. S. A. Thompson appeared for the plaintiffs, Albert James Whiddon, Leslie William Trevarthen Whiddon, Alfred Edward Sendall, Willie Roy Wheatley, Aubrey Starr Wheatley, Ethel Daisy Bladwell, Myrtle Lily Cooper, and Alathea Rose Wheatley. Mr. F. J. Bethune appeared for the defendant, William Henry Wheatley. Messrs. Johnson and Sendall, of Goulburn, were the instructing solicitors.

This was a suit connected with the will of William Henry Wheatley, deceased, of Goulburn. The defendant, who is an infant 20 years of age, is now absent from the State on active service. The testator had made a number of individual devises, which the executors found difficulty in administering, owing to the defendant's infancy. They asked the Court to authorise a scheme of family arrangement, or compromise, in order to meet the circumstances of the case.

His Honor made the order as asked.

(Before Mr. Justice Heydon.)

GANGERS' BOARD.

Mr. P. H. Sullivan (of Sullivan Bros.), appearing on behalf of the Railway and Tramway Construction Branch Field Staff Association, made a further application for the enlargement of the board recently granted by the Court for gangers, paymasters, inspectors, and similar employees. Mr. T. W. Nicholls (of Dawson, Waldron, and Glover), representing the Municipal Council of Sydney; Mr. A. R. Bluett, representing the Local Government Association; and Mr. A. Paton (of J. B. Moffatt), representing John Fell and Co.'s Commonwealth Oil Corporation Works, appeared to oppose the inclusion of employees of these bodies, on the ground that they were now covered by other awards. After argument, his Honor agreed to allow the exemptions sought, and the board was constituted in its original form.

Mr. Sullivan thereupon nominated Mr. Richard Sleath, of Hewlett-street, Waverley, as the employees' representative on the new board. The matter of the appointment of an employers' representative was allowed to stand over for a week.

(Before Judge Pickburn.)

APPLICATION GRANTED.

An application by the Clyde Engineering Company for exemption from the award of the Engine Drivers' Group, No. 1 Board, was granted, as from March 21, on the ground that the company's employees concerned were covered by a Federal award. Mr. T. W. Nicholls represented the company, there being no appearance on behalf of the union.

(Before Judge Rolin.)

PART-HEARD CASE.

The appeal by the Amalgamated Railway and Tramway Service Association against the award of the Government Railways Group, No. 3, Traffic Board, still stands part heard. Mr. M. Henwood appears for the appellant union, and Mr. F. W. Bretnall, assistant solicitor for Railways, for the Chief Commissioners.

DISTRICT COURT.

ANDREWS v AERATED BREAD COMPANY, LIMITED.

Myrtle Irene Andrews, of Mylora, Belmore-road, Randwick, sued Aerated Bread Company, Ltd., of 189 Pitt-street, Sydney, merchants and caterers, for £400 damages, alleged to be occasioned by the defendants' negligence. The plaintiff's case was that she had leased the basement of premises in King- and Pitt-street, Sydney, from the defendant company. It was alleged that the defendant company caused sewage matter to come upon the said premises. The defence was a denial of negligence and a cross-claim for rent.

His Honor said that he would either nonsuit the plaintiff or enter a verdict for the defendants. Mr. Lloyd (instructed by Messrs. Deane and Deane), for the defendant, said that he would accept a non-suit. Mr. Armstrong (instructed by Mr. W. Arnott), for the plaintiff, said that he would withdraw the cross-claim.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Sly and a jury.)

(Mr. Herbert Harris, Crown Prosecutor.)

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE.

William James Wilton pleaded not guilty to a charge of the manslaughter of Frederick Charles Nairn, a child aged 4 years, on December 16 of last year. Mr. Gannon, K.C., and Mr. O'Reilly, instructed by Messrs. Dawson and Herford, appeared for the accused.

The facts of the case were, briefly, that about 5 o'clock in the afternoon of the day mentioned, the little boy and a young girl alighted from a tramcar opposite the hotel at Anzac Parade, Woolloomooloo. They made for the footpath, but a motor car, driven by accused, ran into them. Both were knocked down, and the boy was so badly injured that he died the same night. It was stated in evidence that the children got out of the tramcar on its wrong side, also that they hesitated before crossing the street, then suddenly ran across, but too near the car to allow it to be stopped in time to avoid the accident, although it was being driven by accused at a slow pace.

The jury acquitted the accused and he was discharged.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Scholes and a jury.)

HOWELL-PRICE CASE.

This matter is reported elsewhere.

CHARGE OF FALSE PRETENCES.

Alexander Aljah Graham M'Kinney, who was defended by Mr. J. W. Abigail, pleaded not guilty to three charges of obtaining money by means of false pretences. The Crown case was that accused, on January 11 last, falsely pretended to one Charles Henry Wilson, that he had moneys to his credit in the Toowoomba branch of the Commonwealth Bank, and in the Bank of New South Wales at Grafton, also that he had a grocer's business at Toowoomba, and that he on these representations obtained £4 on January 11, another £4 on January 12, and a further £8 on January 13. He gave cheques to repay these moneys, but they were dishonoured on presentation at the bank.

The jury convicted the accused, and he was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment with hard labour in Bathurst gaol on each count, the sentences to be concurrent; and to be reduced on restitution being made within three months.

THE HARLINGHAM CASE.

BY FLORENCE WARDEN.

(ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.)

CHAPTER XI.—Continued.

Nettie showed a bold front, but she was terribly frightened. Tom was well known for a good-for-nothing rascal, and although no act of open violence had as yet been traced to him, he was always either "in trouble," which was the local and polite synonym for being in the hands of the police, or else he was "wanted" by them.

Petty larceny was his habit, one might almost say his profession. A chicken from a poultry yard, the clothes drying in a cottage garden, the contents of a larder, trifling articles from an open shop-front, such were his specialities.

But with such a character as his, it was impossible to be sure that he might not degenerate still farther, and descend to robbery with violence sooner or later.

"Surely nobody would say such a thing as that about you!" she said, not without a shudder at the thought that the man before her might really prove to be the murderer of poor Rhoda.

Tom uttered a mocking laugh.

"Wouldn't they? There's never no knowin'. There's plenty as would be glad to see me 'ung comfortable and out of the way. The p'lice and me was never the best of friends."

"Well, Tom, it's one thing to think that a man may be a wanderer, and quite another to believe that—that——"

"That he could kill a lady? Right you are, miss. And a lady what was always free-'anded like and the right sort all round. But that is what they're sayin', drat 'em, and a-callin' after me as I go by."

"If they do that why don't you go to the police yourself, and complain? People have no right to accuse you."

Tom chuckled.

"So likely as the p'lice 'd go for to keep 'em from callin' after me. Why, they'd laugh theirselves fit to split their sides, if so be I was to arst 'em. No, no, me and the p'lice we'll keep apart, miss, just so long as what we can."

"Very well, Tom. You know best. Now you must let me pass, please, because I'm in a hurry."

"A 'urry, are you, miss?" retorted Tom with open incredulity. "Yes. Most folks is in a 'urry to get away from me. Poor Tom Tully. He's always in the wrong, he is. I s'pose you couldn't give a poor chap a trifle for to 'elp 'im with a night's lodging, miss?"

Nettie hesitated. She had a few shillings in her purse, but she dared not take it out of her pocket.

"I'm afraid I can't give you anything now, Tom," she said, when she had turned the matter rapidly over in her mind. "But if you will call at the Vicarage in about an hour from now I will speak to Mrs. Cawley about you, and get her to lend me a shilling for you. Will that do?"

Suddenly Tom grew angry. He even ventured on a menacing movement, but as Spot, whom he had apparently forgotten, suddenly leapt up with a fierce growl, he stepped quickly back again, falling into the almost leafless hedge.

"Drat the dog!" he snarled.

But Nettie seized the opportunity to go on, holding Spot tightly by her side, and taking care to glance behind her every few seconds as she hurried along.

Tom decided not to follow her, but he shouted as she went—

"All right, miss. I'll come along for that there shilling. But I don't want to be put off with no bread and cheese and tea at the Vicar's."

Nettie was by this time far enough away to have a bawl as she replied, relief making her tone joyous.

"All right, Tom. It shall be money, not bread and cheese."

But he had not done with her. Taking a few steps in her direction, but not attempting to catch up with her, he called out, in a tone which seemed to her to bear an evil significance—

"If you 'ear 'em a-sayin' as Tom Tully did it, miss, jes' you tell 'me as it's well for some folks as 'ave good characters that there's folks like Tom Tully in the world as has bad ones."

It was a cryptic saying, and Nettie, as she turned the words over in her mind, wondered what they meant.

CHAPTER XII.

The Vicarage was one of those pretty old-fashioned houses with which the country still abounds, and even the rage of the gale which had stripped the last leaves of the trees in the garden could not destroy the picturesqueness and charm of the lawn, now thick with fallen leaves, and of the shrubbery where bare branches now drooped over clumps of rain-splashed evergreens.

It was almost dark when Nettie reached the gate, and passed quickly up the garden path to the house.

Mrs. Cawley, in a huge pair of gardening gloves, was happily engaged in picking stalks off such of her dahlias as the gale had left standing.

She turned quickly on hearing the noise of the opening gate.

"Ah, Miss Preston, I've been expecting you for the last half-hour. You told the man you would come at once."

Nettie came panting to her side.

"I started within ten minutes of getting your note, but I was stopped twice. I'll tell you about it."

"Come indoors."

The two ladies went indoors, and then, by the light of the lamp in the dining-room, Mrs. Cawley saw at once that Nettie looked as if she had passed through some tremendous ordeal.

"What's the matter?" Nettie drew a long breath, and the Vicar's wife then added quickly: "Perhaps you would like to take off your hat first. We can talk while we are sitting by the fire."

Nettie shook her head.

"I think," she said, "that I had better take the dog back to the house first. He followed me, and I was glad to have him as I came across the fields. But he had better go back. He is not fit to come into the house; it's so wet still in the fields."

"As you like. Tie him up in the hall for a few minutes, while you tell me all about it."

"Oh, he will be quite quiet if he may lie down on the mat."

So Spot was induced to lie down on the mat in the hall, and then Nettie returned to the dining-room, and accepted the invitation of the Vicar's wife to sit down.

Mrs. Cawley was a slight, pale woman of thirty-five or so, a Canadian by birth, and extremely ill-placed as the wife of a country parson.

The pair got on together admirably, in spite of this fact. For while she was independent and outspoken, filled with secret longings for the outdoor sports and pastimes which she felt to be no longer the proper pursuits for her, he was tactful and kindly, and able to make smooth the places which his wife was rather apt to leave rough.

She hated parish work, and performed her share of it with an irritable sort of resignation which, though amusing to some of the members of her husband's flock, was resented by others, so that she could not be said to share his popularity.

Nettie, however, was one of those who liked her, and who welcomed the unconventional views of a woman who was at heart more or less of a social rebel.

"It was very, very kind of you and the Vicar to ask me to stay with you," said Nettie, when the door was shut and the two ladies were alone together. "I do feel most grateful to you both."

Mrs. Cawley nodded sympathetically.

"We were sure it would be most uncomfortable for you, with an inquest to be held in the house, and all the horrible formalities to be gone through. And of course it wouldn't do for you to be far away."

"No. I shall be called. Isn't that dreadful?"

"I suppose it is. But no more dreadful than what you must have gone through already."

Nettie looked earnestly at her.

"It has been such a succession of horrors," she said, "down to one I went through only ten minutes ago, that the one seems to have taken off the edge of the last, until I have got past all feeling, and to-day and yesterday have become just a nightmare, without any relation to my old life at all."

"I can understand that. What is the latest horror?"

Nettie drew a long breath.

"There are two of them," she said. "In the first place, I met Dr. Ridding as I left Harlingham House."

"Dr. Ridding. Ah, it was he who was called in?"

"Yes. He says—I don't know whether I'm supposed to say this, but you won't tell anybody—He says he knows who committed the murder."

Mrs. Cawley did not appear surprised.

"Why shouldn't he?" she said.

"You don't, do you?" asked Nettie sharply.

"Oh, no. But everybody else does."

The girl stared at her with fresh terror in her eyes.

"Everybody knows," she gasped out.

Avoid imitations which may look the same—insist on the genuine brand, which you can rely upon absolutely.

Hardie's Fibro-Ciment Sheets are superior to lath and plaster, steel ceilings, and linings, because they do not crack or chip, and are rustproof.

ASBESTOLITE ASSURES YOU OF A STRONG JOB.

In your selection of Building Sheets for walls, both inside and out, as well as ceilings, remember there is no stronger or easier-built material than Asbestolite. The reason of its great strength is the secret of its manufacture, a process we have often explained to buyers. Apart from its strength and durability—it really increases in strength with age—it is absolutely fire proof and ant proof, which means that it is everlasting, or as near to it as any material can get.

The sizes are 4 x 4, 6 x 3, 6 x 4, 7 x 4, 8 x 3, 8 x 4.

Attractive materials for inside finish of lighter construction are Three-ply Veneers, and Amiwud, which we also supply.

KEEP THE HOME FIRES BURNING.

With the advent of nippy nights one's thoughts naturally turn to warmth and comfort.

The home fires, as generally understood, are in the fireplaces around which is the genial hearth, but the "Ideal" Heating System is as ITS name signifies.

In simple language it consists of a specially-constructed boiler, pipes for conveying hot water to specially-designed Radiators, which should be placed in every part of the home, flats, hotel, institution, or building where warmth is desired.

Thus instead of the only place of warmth and comfort being just around the hearth, it is every place where necessary—living-room, bedrooms, hall, landings, etc.

One might think "How costly the extra comfort!" Not so, it is by far the safest, most economical, and satisfactory Modern System of Heating. No engineer required.

REAL ESTATE.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

The Real Estate market was again on the quiet side this week, and yet in the aggregate the volume of business transacted was greater than that recorded last week. The State elections largely absorbed the minds of many people this week, and so the rooms of the auctioneers and salesmen had a rather deserted appearance. In fact, many of the suburban agents were personally drawn into the local Parliamentary conflicts, and for the time they became absorbed with the merits of the different candidates and their prospects at the ballot-box. The investor, too, was inclined to play a waiting game. He was anxious to know what prospects there were of having a settled Government returned to power before again investing. In this way the Real Estate market became quiet.

One or two agents, however, report a fairly good week. Messrs. Raine and Horne have quite a number of contracts in hand. During the week they disposed of two terrace properties at Pyrmont for £10,000; also a water frontage block at Woolwich of 60ft at £8 10s per foot; 150ft at Northbridge from £2 to £2 10s per foot; three blocks, Tuggerah Lakes entrance, at £50 per block; four allotments, Oaks Estate, Dee Why, up to £3 per foot; two lots, Walker Estate, Concord, at £3 per foot; 100ft frontage at Alexandria at 20s per foot; one lot at Mortlake at £2 per foot; also 75ft frontage at Palm Beach Estate, Barrenjoey, at £4 per foot. This is a big price for land so far away from the city on the coastline and inaccessible to the public, but it is a district well patronised by doctors, barristers, and others who use their motor cars. Already eight or nine medical men have land in the vicinity upon which to erect week-end places, and the average price of land in this estate is from £3 to £3 per foot.

Next Thursday Messrs. Raine and Horne will submit a very fine lot of suburban, residential, and other properties at the fortnightly sale at their rooms.

The weekly auction of Messrs. Richardson and Wrench yesterday was well attended, and, although the list of properties submitted was not a lengthy one, yet competition was fairly keen, and one property, consisting of two houses at Florence-street, St. Peters, was sold for £250. Two more houses in the same suburb were disposed of for £595, subject to approval. For a villa residence at Coogee £2000 was refused; and a cottage and 7 acres of land at Hurstville was passed in at £395. During the week the firm sold a shop property in Oxford-street, Paddington, for £1900; a block of land, part of the Heart of Lindfield Estate, £330; two lots at Dee Why at 25s and 28s 6d per foot; and four lots, Allen's Estate, Wentworth Falls, for £252.

Mr. V. A. Syme has just sold his Touchwood estate, Molong district, comprising an area of 2837 acres c.p. and c.l., to Mr. R. G. Ellwood, of Woodstock, through the direct agency of Winchcombe, Carson, Ltd. The country included is suitable for mixed farming.

Messrs. Stanton and Son, Ltd., report having sold the following properties during the week:—Brick cottage in Ashfield, 55ft to Tintern-road, for £975; one acre of land in Manning-road, Killara, for £50; brick cottage, with 60ft to Chandos-street, Haberfield Garden Suburb, for £1145; and brick cottage, with 45ft to Chelmsford-avenue, Croydon, for £1165. At the next auction sale of this firm on the 28th inst, in the rooms of the association, the list comprises an attractive selection of city and suburban properties.

Messrs. H. W. Horning and Co. had a fairly busy week. Their sales included ten lots of the Sylvania Ferry Estate, £1001; pair cottages, Waverley, £1025; cottage, Tennyson, Parramatta River, £625; small city property, £410; various lots in subdivisions at Kurnell, Mortdale, Ryde, and Dee Why, £2937.

Messrs. Hardie and Gorman, at their auction on Wednesday, had a large attendance, and a fair amount of bidding. A pair of cottages at Porter-street, Waverley, was disposed of for £1465; a five-acre block at Bundanoon was sold at £20 per acre, and a block of land at Hurstville was disposed of for 25s per foot. At the auction the bidding for a farm at Penrith was so close to the reserve that a private sale is likely to follow.

Mr. C. H. Crammond on Tuesday conducted an indoor auction at the rooms of the association. There was a big gathering. A cottage at Randwick was sold for £415. Several properties for which there was good inquiry were practically withdrawn, but the bidding was good all round. Mr. Crammond during the week sold by private contract the following properties:—Pair of cottages, Robert-street, Marrickville, at £1025; cottage and land, Old Canterbury-road, Lewisham, at £800; cottage, Eccles-street, Ashfield, at £800; one lot, Matson City Estate, Yowie Bay, at 10s per foot; one lot, New Railway Estate, Belmore, at £2 per foot; two lots, Miller's Estate, Ashfield, at £2 and £2 10s per foot.

Messrs. Arthur Rickard and Co., Ltd., report a satisfactory week, despite the unsettled political conditions. Bankstown again headed the list of sales, buyers choosing from Sydney Park, Bialotte, Greenacre, and Condell Park estates. The farmlet movement also revived. At Blacktown several fine little farms were selected on the Flushcombe Estate, also Toongabbie Park Estate, Toongabbie. On the Wahroonga Heights Estate a number of large residential areas were chosen. At Bondi Beach, Carlton, Dobroyd Point, Haberfield, and Concord quite a number of home sites were taken up.

Messrs. Batt, Rodd, and Purves will conduct a sale next Tuesday in the rooms of the association, when a number of suburban properties will come under the hammer.

An important block of city property will be offered by Messrs. Hardie and Gorman and Raine and Horne next month, when the whole of the land lately occupied by Messrs. Stedman, Ltd., with frontages to Clarence and Kent streets, will come under the hammer.

There is but one auction of note to-day. It will be conducted by Messrs. Hardie and Gorman at Randwick. The land is known as Farrelly's Estate, and is at the junction of Frenchman's-road and Orange-street, on the Coogee to Bondi Junction line, and two minutes from the Little Coogee tram. There is a good inquiry for plans.

The Belmore Park Estate, at Belmore, will be offered by Messrs. Stanton and Son next Saturday. This is an attractive subdivision, within easy access of the station, with sites fronting the main Canterbury-road, Burwood-road, and streets adjacent. A new Public school has been erected adjoining the estate, and the subdivision is one which ought to command attention.

Messrs. Horning and Co. will, next Saturday, conduct a subdivision sale on the Marine Estate at Coogee, when a number of building allotments and two shops, also cottages, facing the Long Bay-road, will be submitted.

The Undercliff Estate, at Manly, is to be offered next Saturday. Messrs. Hardie and Gorman are the auctioneers. The land is a few minutes' walk from the ocean beach and North Steyne dressing sheds. This property is in the heart of Manly, with frontages to Belgrave-street, close to Kangaroo Park. It will no doubt realise big prices.

Messrs. Marshall and Dempster will submit the Elmside Estate, at Valley Heights, Blue Mountains next Saturday. There are 70 allotments on the plan.

Next Saturday Messrs. Raine and Horne will submit 29 splendid business and residential sites comprised in Dan's Estate, Little Coogee. The allotments have frontages to Susan-street, fronting the Little Coogee tramline, Brook-street, Arden-street, Division-street, and Dan's-avenue. Splendid views, which can never be shut out, are obtained from this estate, extending to the Pacific Ocean and over the residential area of Coogee. The title is Torrens, and the terms are liberal.

Next Saturday at Moss Vale Mr. H. Richardson will offer 48 choice building blocks close to the railway station. Most of the lots are part of the Throsby Park Estate, high level land, with good views, and adjoin or are close to high-class residences. Moss Vale is improving very fast, and many new residences have been erected lately. The climate is unsurpassed, being 2208ft above sea level. The district is noted for its good scenery, first-class roads for motoring, and its open green fields. The terms of sale are easy.

Next Saturday Messrs. Hardie and Gorman will submit the Undercliff Estate at Manly. There is big inquiry for plans of this estate.

AMUSEMENTS.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

"The Pink Lady" now enters upon its sixth week, and is therefore nearing the end of its prosperous stay at Her Majesty's Theatre. Two of the many taking songs in this musical farce are Florence Young's "Dédidier" with ensemble, and Leslie Holland's "Girl on the Saskatchewan," the vision in which through the driving snow is beautifully managed. The election results are to be announced towards the close of the entertainment, both at Her Majesty's and the Criterion.

THE EASTER PANTOMIME.

This year's J. C. Williamson Easter pantomime will be staged at Her Majesty's Theatre on April 7, when the new cast of "The House that Jack Built" will include Hilda Guiver as principal boy, Gretchen Yates as principal girl, Amy Murphy as Fairy Queen, Maggie Dickenson as Fairy Sunbeam, Arthur Stigant as Dame, Harry Roxborg as Sammy, and Charles Albert as Demon, Ernest Langford as Farmer Barleycorn. Ritchie's Reckless Roughriders will provide a special novelty, and the piece will be splendidly staged with ballets, pageants, and marches. Plan arrangements at Paling's as notified.

PALACE THEATRE.

Since the opening night one or two new numbers have been added to "Very Good Eddie," notably "Hickey Hoy," in which Lilian Tucker archly tells of a romance between a saucy maid and a sailor boy nipped in the bud when the ropes are cast off. Mr. Barry Lupino's new dance is a feature. The comedian refers to his arduous training as a dancer in our "Music and Drama" column. There will be a matinee to-day.

CRITERION THEATRE.

"Daddy Long Legs," the whimsical new comedy-drama at the Criterion Theatre, is making fresh friends at every performance, due to the charm of the love-romance between Kathlene Macdonell and Charles Waldron. The young girl's expressions of gratitude to the guardian she supposes to be an antiquated old gentleman, whilst all the time she is winning the heart of her real benefactor, who is at her side, are touchingly placed before the audience.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

This afternoon (2.30) and evening Stiffy and Mo will appear in a complete change of programme with new songs, ballets, and laughable dialogue. Nat Phillips and Roy Rene are to be seen in new characters as "real sports." The Fuller direction also provide more vaudeville numbers, including the Cavanna Duo in "Fun at the Fair," Early and Laight, Ross and Wyse, King and Thornton, and Nellie Kolle.

THE ALAN WILKIE SEASON.

Mr. Alan Wilkie chose "Hamlet" for the farewell appearance of his second successful Melbourne season, at the close of which the audience sang "Auld Lang Syne" with immense enthusiasm. The Fuller management has determined on a change of tactics as regards Mr. Wilkie's Easter holiday season at Sydney Grand Opera House, when the star will have his first showing in a modern military play, "The Story of the Rosary."

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Wilkie have returned from holiday-making at Wentworth Falls, and are now busily rehearsing the new drama.

THE "TIVOLI FOLLIES."

Vera Pearce and the Tivoli Follies will open their Easter season this afternoon and evening (8 sharp), in a new entertainment during which the election results will be announced from the stage every 15 minutes. New scenes and songs will also bring in Jack Cannot, Thelma Raye, George Welch, Billy Rego, Daisy and Sydney Yates, Peggy Peat, Jean Keith. New and beautiful costumes will be a feature.

THEATRE ROYAL—"INTOLERANCE."

Daily at 2 and at 8 "Intolerance" is screened to large audiences at the Theatre Royal, where D. W. Griffith's colossal art scheme drawn from episodes in the history of the ancient and modern world, is now completing the longest film-run yet achieved by the J. C. Williamson management. The siege and sack of Babylon, and the massacre of the Huguenots, are especially thrilling. "Intolerance" will run until Thursday evening, April 5. "The Pink Lady" will follow.

THE SMART SET.

The weekly change of programme at the Garden Theatre, a musical travesty on "On Our Selection," is meeting with hearty laughter. During the week the entertainment was witnessed by Colonel Lamrock and the officers and men of the Liverpool camp, with their band.

THE KINDERGARTEN MATINEE.

The matinee organised by Signora Lucia Ferrari Passmore in aid of the Wentworth Free Kindergarten, Glebe, at the Palace Theatre on Thursday, was splendidly successful, resulting in a capital show and a total sum of about £300. This amount will include £37 17s realised by the repeated sale of a rose bowl presented by Madame Shimizu, wife of the Japanese Consul-General. Mr. Barry Lupino proved an experienced and vivaciously amusing auctioneer, with Mr. Andrew Higginson as clerk. The comedian declared that his little stage hammer had knocked down about £87,000 for the war, and he kept the house in roars of laughter by his sallies "on the spur of the moment." The jar was sold and resold to John Mackay, £8 8s; Mrs. Wilkinson, £6 10s; Mrs. O'Connor, £7 7s; Mrs. Jack Campbell, £5 5s; Mr. Cordin, £4 4s; Mrs. Rainbow, £3 3s; Mrs. Corbett, £3.

During the matinee Mr. John Mackay, president of the Kindergarten Union, recognised the generosity of J. and N. Tait for the use of the theatre and their company, and also thanked J. C. Williamson, Ltd., Hugh D. M'Intosh, the Palace and Tivoli orchestras, all the artists, and staffs in front and behind. The programme opened with the first act of "Very Good Eddie," whilst in the second part Mr. John Beck moved the audience with the Indiana dialect poem, "The Old Man and Jim," which he recited with rare pathos and touches of dry character. His introductory remark "that the verses referred to the Civil War at a period when America was not too proud to fight—and, may be, she ain't too proud to fight again," was welcomed with rousing cheers. Lilian Tucker, Minnie Love, Ethel Cadman, Winifred Leviere, Elsie Pascoe, Nan Taylor, Frank Markley, Sid MacDonald, Leeds, and (Miss) Lemar, Charles Smythe, Hilda Thorndyke, Florence Young (front of house), and Lucia Ferrari, assisted, as well as the principals and chorus of "Very Good Eddie."

MISS GLENFIELD'S WAR CONCERT.

Miss Lottie Glenfield gave a concert entertainment at St. James's Hall on Thursday night in aid of the Third Battalion Comforts Fund, with Mrs. Street as president. An attractive programme was presented by a strong combination of willing artists, but the committee, judging by the attendance, had not sufficiently worked up the booking. Miss Glenfield herself recited the Potion Scene, her study of which showed thought, the reflective side of it, suggesting Juliet's hesitancy, timidity, and self-questioning being especially effective. The artist also joined with Mr. Norman Zions in the amusing sketch, "The Meeting." The musical items, all of which led to further enthusiasm, were contributed by Miss Leah Myers and Messrs. Charles Smythe, Cyril Monk, Claude M'Burney, Lindley Evans (accompanist), and the Gibson Orchestra.

MME. RAY JONES'S RECITAL.

With the aid of assisting artists a crowded audience was treated to a most enjoyable concert-entertainment by Madame Ray Jones and her pupils at the Repertory Theatre on Thursday night. That brilliant lyric soprano sang "Regnava nel Silenzio" with fluency and refinement; and in the encore "Come, Little Maori," the choral refrain by the sopranos and contraltos in harmony assisted the soloist to further success. During the interval the Rev. C. H. Talbot (Randwick Presbyterian Church) presented Mme. Ray Jones with a handsome wristlet watch on behalf of her pupils as a mark of their sincere affection, and at the same time he made cordial allusion to her loyal services as a singer on Anzac Day and other patriotic occasions.

Professor Randal Woodhouse proved in especially melodious voice in his renderings of songs by Phillips, Bennett, and Martin; and another favourite artist, Miss Elsie Prince, was similarly welcomed for her recitations. Amongst the pupils, many of whom were above the usual standard, Miss Lottie Taylor revealed a remarkable soprano voice, resonant and ringing in quality, and of good range. The young singer at present relies too much upon these vocal powers, and should cultivate finesse of expression, but she delighted the audience. Mrs. R. Cantor, a lyric soprano, well deserved the applause she received, and a number of young singers readily won invitations to extend the programme with encores. Miss Mary Morling (a violin pupil of Miss E. Dyer) was at her best in her extra number, the Jocelyn "Berceuse." Mr. Vern Barnett was the accompanist of the concert.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.

All this week "Whispering Smith" has been screened at the Alhambra, George-street. The picture show at this theatre is a continuous one, under the direction of Mr. C. F. Pugliese.

AUSTRALIAN PICTURE PALACE.

The five shows at the Australian Picture Palace, Wentworth-avenue, are from noon till 8.30. In the evening there is an orchestra. New pictures will be screened to-day.

WADDINGTON'S PICTURES.

Commencing on Monday next, Mary Pickford will be seen for a week at Waddington's Strand, opposite Farmer's, in Pitt-street, and at Waddington's Majestic, Liverpool-street, in "Hulda from Holland." Patrons of the Majestic will also see the new Australian film, "The Hayseeds."

UNION PICTURE THEATRES.

Patrons of the Crystal Palace will see George Beban in "His Sweetheart," a five-act photo-play, all next week, also a Triangle comedy, "Love Under Cover." At the Lyric on Monday night "Chicken Casey" will be screened with Dorothy Dalton, Charles Gunn, and Howard Hickman in the principal parts. Virginia Pearson is featured in "Daredevil Kate," a five-act drama, which is to be shown at the Empress on Monday next. Victor Sutherland appears with Miss Pearson in this Fox production. Charlie Chaplin's latest comedy, in which he assumes the role of a policeman to reform the inhabitants of "Easy Street," will be transferred to the Lyric and Empress Theatres on Monday, and will be shown for a week.

WEST'S OLYMPIA.

There will be a matinee to-day, commencing at 2.30 p.m., at West's Olympia, when special pictures will be screened for the youngsters. This evening the Triangle, "Somewhere in France," featuring Wilfred Lucas, will be shown for the last time in a programme, which includes "The Microscopic Mystery." On Monday evening the Fox film "Fires of Conscience" will be presented with other new pictures.

THE LYCEUM.

"Japan," the first of a series of animated travel pictures taken by George Dorsey, will be shown to-day at the Lyceum. The new Triangle programme includes "The Iced Bullet," a detective story featuring William Desmond, who is well-known to Australian audiences; and Gloria Swanson, in a comedy, "The Sick of Tim Baby."

THE WHITE CITY.

To-day the White City will be open in the afternoon and again from 7.30 p.m till midnight.

WIRTHS' CIRCUS.

To-night will see the opening of Wirth Brothers' season at the New Hippodrome, Haymarket. The show includes the circus, the menagerie of trained animals, Captain Huling's performing seals, the Riogoku Japanese Troupe, and a spectacular feature, "King Neptune and the Mermaids." In connection with the sinking ring filled with water, which is new to Sydney, it is announced that a submarine will be seen in action. Seats may be reserved for the circus, opening at Nicholson's.

Mrs. J. C. Lotts, of Randwick, sang a verse of the National Anthem at the conclusion of Sir Ernest Shackleton's recruiting speech in Martin-place on Tuesday last.

ON THE LAND

WITH A FOREST SURVEYOR.

(BY L.W.)

Recently I spent a short time in a surveyor's camp in the Tumut district. The nearest part of the forest to Batlow is, perhaps, five miles, and as the area is, I believe, over 60,000 acres (about 16 miles north and south by average width of six miles), to reach its farthest limits one has to travel considerably over 20 miles over rough tracks, and then through the forest without any track at all. The newly-constituted Forestry Commission is now having made extensive topographical and assessment surveys of certain State forests, with a view to future development in working and improvement. The first thing to ascertain about a forest is what timber it contains. Having found this out regarding mature, immature, and young growth, then it is possible to lay down a working scheme for the particular area.

The method adopted in this particular camp was to survey parallel lines one-half a mile apart through the forest, at right angles generally to the features; that is, not along the directions of the ranges and creeks, but across them. These lines are carefully laid out with a prismatic compass and measured with a five-chain steel band, and heights taken at intervals with an aneroid barometer. All trees useful, or likely to become useful, over 5in in diameter, for half a chain on either side of this line are measured with wooden callipers, and the results entered in a special field book; a note is also made of all useless trees and any regrowth, with height and density. The features are also accurately sketched in and from the notes thus taken, a detailed plan may be constructed, and the stand of timber on the forest ascertained to a very reasonable degree of accuracy. A casual inspection of a forest is very misleading regarding the timber stand, and it is only when you see the individual trees on the chain strip actually inspected and counted that you realise the enormous number which are absolutely worthless. Fire is evidently the great cause of so many of these fine forest trees being now useless, and it is therefore of the very first importance to minimise the fire risk.

Another work of great interest which is carried out is the ascertaining of the ages of various trees by the annular rings, which nearly everyone must have seen but few thought about; also the absolute growth of the tree in height and diameter, and, consequently, in volume, for any particular period of its life. Life in camp is most interesting from a forestry standpoint. Botanical specimens of every tree, shrub, and plant are obtained for identification by the Government Botanist, and samples of the various timbers are also obtained for future reference. Apart from this, there is the holiday side. The streams on the area are well stocked with trout, and it was the writer's pleasure to do a little in the fishing line, and to be fairly well rewarded. A trip to the Buddong Falls, just off the east side of the forest, is well worth the walk. The falls (there are two of them) are perhaps a couple of hundred feet high and the volume of water is, I am told, about 90,000 gallons a minute summer flow, and it seems a great shame to see such vast volumes of water and such an enormous amount of power absolutely going to waste. Here we have enough water and power to supply many of the large towns of the south with both water and electricity.

From certain vantage points on the east of the forest one has magnificent views of the Tumut Valley and the mountains beyond up towards Yarrangobilly and Kiandra, the Bogong peaks standing out particularly. The highest part of the forest is just over 4000ft above sea level. From points on the west all that vast expanse of beautiful country south of Wagga Wagga can be seen, while the mountain peaks away over the Murray in Victoria are plainly visible. This forest is the home of the celebrated mountain ash (Eucalyptus gigantea), and it is indeed a fine tree and a fine timber and fairly plentiful, especially in its immature stages, but sadly treated by fires which have raged over the area time after time. It is now quite evident, however, that the Forestry Commission means to tackle this serious problem which has been so neglected in the past.

THE WOOL TRADE.

CONCLUSION OF FIFTH SERIES.

On Thursday last the fifth series of appraisements in Sydney, under the wool acquisition scheme, was brought to a conclusion. All the 13 firms of selling brokers submitted one catalogue each; six were appraised from Wednesday to Friday last week, totalling 22,665 bales; and seven from Monday to Thursday last, totalling 28,737 bales. The work of appraising has proceeded expeditiously, and much more evenly than in the earlier stages. The wools were drawn from a wide area, and as the catalogues included a good representation of greasy from the southern and northern tablelands, a number of high prices were secured. In the scoured section some super lines were forward, and included two station brands that secured record prices for various descriptions of the staple. In one of the two catalogues appraised on Wednesday was the well-known Dunlop from Louth, the leading line of which advanced the Sydney record for scoured combing merino from /41½ to /43¾, and the record for scoured clothing from /34 to /42. This combing record is within ½d of the record for the Commonwealth. Brisbane so far holds the absolute record of /44, realised at the last series in the northern capital, for 117 bales 1st com w of the J.M over Rosevale brand from North Queensland. Another notable brand to make a record with the Dunlop on Wednesday was the Tooraie, also from Louth; the combing made to /42, and took the record for scoured necks from /30 to /31½. The quantity catalogued and appraised in Sydney under the scheme to date aggregates 260,418 bales; the total for each series being as follows:—

	Bales.
First series	58,064
Second series	50,561
Third series	50,288
Fourth series	50,361
Fifth series	51,202
Total appraised in Sydney	260,418

When the fifth series closed on Thursday a recess was entered upon that will probably extend to April 16 for large lots, but that may be preceded by a series of star lot catalogue appraisements extending over four days from April 10 to 13, inclusive. If this proposal is carried into effect it will clear the stores of a considerable quantity of small lots that have been accumulating since November last, and also enable a number of owners to secure results without further delay.

WOOL TOPS PRIVILEGES.

Considerable surprise has been expressed at the action of the central wool committee in recommending, and the Prime Minister in endorsing, a wool tops selling and exporting scheme by which two firms are to be allowed to trade and export privately, while all others in the industry are debarred under the regulations from operating in wool except in the terms prescribed. The regulations even prohibit any buyer or dealer making any purchases under any one brand exceeding £10, and full particulars of purchases have to be supplied to the State wool committee. This regulation may be an essential one to the successful working of the scheme, but it had the effect of practically wiping out a number of buyers and dealers who did very useful service in the wool trade. Those who are able to operate find the restrictions irksome, but they have been borne as part of the war period burden. It was supposed that the regulation, in common with all the others, was to prevent any undue profits being made during the war period. Even growers who shipped wool and had not sold it in London prior to the Australian wool acquisition scheme coming into force had to have their consignments sold under the pool, on the 15½d greasy basis. They were prohibited from making proportionately higher prices than those having to sell in the Australian markets under the acquisition scheme, an admittedly fair and just arrangement—it kept every grower on the same footing.

AN EXCLUSIVE ARRANGEMENT.

The wool tops selling and exporting scheme mentioned by the Prime Minister last week, cuts into three vital principles in connection with the wool acquisition scheme: it bestows the privilege of trading and exporting wool tops privately on two firms; it admits of huge profits being made during the war period by two firms exclusively; it enters two firms into partnership with the Government on the basis of dividing the profits. There is not a firm of woolscourers in the whole Commonwealth who would not give a trifle to enter into such an arrangement for the sale and export of scoured wool to Japan, to Russia, or to any other allied country. But they are debarred from acquiring any wool whatever. There are quite a number of growers and dealers also who would like to come to a somewhat similar arrangement with regard to the disposal of either greasy or scoured wool. The satisfaction of that desire is, of course, out of the question; but it is not to be wondered at, considering that the topmakers enter the scheme by knowing beforehand precisely what the new wool can be bought for, and the cost of combing it, and are arranging for the Imperial Government to fix the prices high enough to ensure two firms to make fully £70,000 if the transactions extend into next season's wool clip. Perhaps the scheme is objected to, also, on the ground that the principal of the largest of the two firms to benefit is a member of the central wool committee.

SOME LATE APPRAISEMENTS.

Included in the appraisements last week were four catalogues that comprised a good proportion of attractive wools in both greasy and scoured. On Thursday greasy merino sold to 25d for a line from Bathurst, and scoured to 36¾d. On Friday greasy sold to 27¾d for the leading line of the Bookham clip, and scoured to 37½d for Brenda, from Goodooga. On Monday last greasy was appraised to 25½d, secured for 18 bales AAA e w h, or Maslin over Carwoola, from Bungendore, and for 8 bales AAA e of TIA, from Walcha. Scoured sold to 34½d, for 14 bales A com of Euroka brand, from Walgett. The features of the appraisements this week, however, were the scoureds already briefly referred to. On Wednesday, 42 bales super A com e and w, of JP over Kentucky over New England, sold at 27½d, and six bales sup A com w at 26d. In scoured 23 bales 1st com h, of Dunlop, from Louth, sold at 43¾d, 40 bales 1st comb at 41½d, 22 bales 1st clo h at 42d, and 63 bales pieces h at 31d; while 15 bales 1st com w h, of Tooraie, from Louth, sold at 42d, and six bales necks h, of the same brand, at 31½d. The total quantity submitted this week was as follows:—

	Bales.
Dalgety and Co., Ltd.	5,294
Country Producers' S. Co., Ltd.	2,475
John Bridge and Co., Ltd.	4,655
Co-operative Wool and P. Co., Ltd.	4,704
Pitt, Son, and Badgery, Ltd.	4,285
New Zealand L. and M.A. Co., Ltd.	2,656
Australian Mercantile L. and F. Co., Ltd.	3,668
Total	28,737

INTERSTATE MARKETS.

The fifth series of appraisements in Melbourne has been in progress since Monday last, and the series will conclude in Geelong. A recess will then take place till April 23, when, with a break from May 3 to May 7, the sixth and seventh Victorian series will be dealt with. Another series in the meantime will be held in Hobart and Launceston.

The third Brisbane series will be entered upon in the northern capital on Monday next, and the offerings are limited to 40,000 bales. The fourth series is to open on May 2. Among the principal brands to be catalogued are the following:—Afton, A Co A/Comma, A. McG/Mt. Hope, Adelong, Albinia, AME Co., Ltd. BRANDING WOOL BALES.

Growers are asked by the wool broking firms to omit putting any marks on the bottom ends of their bales of wool. This is in response to a request by stevedores. The stevedores have themselves to brand the bottoms of bales with marks and counter-marks and any other marks thereon are apt to lead to confusion.

SYDNEY WOOL RECEIPTS.

For the first time since an increase in the receipts of wool for the season by rail was shown, there has been a steady weekly upward movement. This week, however, there is a slight decrease compared to the corresponding week last year. There is also a decrease by boat. The arrivals for the season by boat show only a slight increase; the receipts by rail, however, show a substantial improvement over the corresponding period last year. The quantity for the week and season by rail and boat compares with the corresponding period last season as follows:—

Season.	March 17-22. Bales.		July 1-March 22. Bales.
BY RAIL.
1916-17	3048		602,778

BY BOAT.
1916-17	298		85,336
1915-16	524		84,849

Total seaboard decrease for season to date, 26,762 bales.

STATE WOOL EXPORTS.

According to the return by the Sydney Customs of the wool exported oversea for the eight months ended February, there is a decrease of 228,231 bales compared to the exports of the corresponding period last season. The quantity for the two periods compares as follows:—

FRUIT FLY.

"E. H. H.," Northwood, writes:—I have not yet found the fruit fly attacking my figs or the small cherry guava, although nothing else, even the late citrus crop, is immune. Is it possible that there is some element in the skin through which they would have to penetrate that is distasteful to them? For instance, the milky secretion at the stalk of the fig, akin to that of euphorbia? If so, what about the experts making an attempt to discover the active principle of the stuff which fends them off the fig, formulating a synthetic spray that would be efficacious for other fruits?

HELPING SOLDIERS' FAMILIES.

It is suggested by a correspondent that exhibitors at the Royal Show of vegetables and fruit, who are in a position to do so, should give the exhibits at the conclusion of the show to the fruit and vegetable gift scheme, which has undertaken the work of supplying the wives of soldiers and sailors on active service with vegetables, fruit, eggs, etc. There is a heavy tax on the resources of this body, which has its depot in Carrington-street. Exhibitors agreeable to the above suggestion should advise the hon. secretary, Mr. R. M. Pontey.

EXHIBIT AT SHOW.

In the display made by the Department of Agriculture at the coming Royal Show there will be an exhibit of fine vegetables grown by returned soldiers at the Leeton tobacco farm.

THE SHEEP-FLY.

YASS.—At the meeting of the p.p. board, the stock inspector reported that the blowfly was at work on several holdings, but where arsenic was used in solution there was very little trouble. The solution most effective was made by boiling 4lb of arsenic and 4lb or 5lb of washing soda in two gallons of water. This solution to be well mopped in about the tail and the crutch. It was not necessary to crutch the sheep if the solution was well mopped in with a mop about the size of an ale bottle. If the liquid was warm it would penetrate the wool much more effectually.

In the pig section the winning exhibitors were H. A. Wilson, R. S. Henderson, R. Relf, and T. L. Ross.

MILITARY OFFICER CHARGED.

TRIALS POSTPONED.

David Clayton Howell Price was brought before the Quarter Sessions Court yesterday, Judge Scholes presiding, and pleaded not guilty to four charges additional to the one of which he was convicted on the previous day. One indictment charged him with having, on July 1 last, forged a camp pay list in respect of "C" Squadron, Wellington and Gilgandra troop, of the 9th Australian Light Horse regiment, covering a period from July 31 to August 14, 1915. Another alleged that, on December 1 last accused forged a camp pay list in respect of the Headquarters machine gun troop, "A" squadron, 9th Light Horse, covering a period from March 7, 1916, to March 21 in the same year. A third charged Price with having, on July 1 last year, forged a camp pay list in respect of "D" squadron, Coonamble and Condobolin troop, 9th Light Horse, covering a period from August 14 to August 28, 1915; and a fourth charged him with having, on October 1 last, forged a camp pay list in respect of "A" troop, "D" squadron, 9th Light Horse, covering a period from November 25, 1914, to November 25, 1915. In each case the Crown charged that the forgeries were made with intent to defraud, and a second count of each information charged accused with uttering the forged document.

Accused pleaded not guilty to each charge.

Mr. H. E. Manning, who appeared to prosecute on behalf of the Crown, said it would take a considerable time to try these charges, and this was the end of the week.

His Honor said he would not take these cases that day, but what was the object of bringing them forward?

Mr. Manning said he understood Mr. Abigail, who appeared for the defence, would apply for a postponement.

Mr. Abigail informed his Honor that at present and for some time it would not be possible for him to appear in the cases, and he would like a postponement until next Quarter Sessions. Accused was ill, owing to the distress he had undergone, and had to go about on a crutch and a stick. The preparation of the defence was a matter of difficulty, as witnesses were scattered all over the country, and would have to be obtained. He might even have to consider the question of asking for a postponement to procure witnesses who might have gone to the front on active service. Another difficulty lay in the financing of the defence, as immediately upon the arrest of accused, Mr. Palmer, official assignee, took over all his assets, which were said to be worth upwards of £14,000. Mr. Palmer had given every assistance, but the mere process of going to him caused delay.

Mr. Manning stated that he would not object to a postponement, and every assistance would be given to accused to obtain his witnesses. He understood that none of the officers concerned in the case would be allowed to leave Australia until the trials were concluded.

Some discussion then took place as to when sentence would be passed on the accused in connection with the charge on which he was convicted on the previous day, and his Honor finally said he would pass sentence on Monday. The cases were postponed to next Quarter Sessions.

THE LORD MAYOR'S FUND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In Saturday's issue of the "Herald" there is a report of the executive committee of the Lord Mayor's Patriotic Fund. Attention was drawn to the reports concerning dependents of soldiers declared to be in destitute circumstances and neglected by the public. With your permission I beg to state my case. My husband, Sergeant J. J. Latta, was killed at the front about four months ago. I was in need of some assistance, and I appealed to the Lord Mayor's Fund, with the result that I received every consideration at the hands of the Lord Mayor. He and the officials of the above were very kind and generous to me in my trying time of need. I cannot speak too highly of the treatment I received from them. This is the only means by which I can thank the Lord Mayor for his kindness. May God bless and prosper them is the earnest prayer.

I am, etc.,
Ulladulla, March 5. J. J. LATTA.

What love in life should always be.

We mourn for our darling in silence unseen,
And dwell on memories of days that have been.
Every little word she uttered,
All her gentle little ways,
Have been for ever in our memory,

SATURDAY, MARCH 24, 1917.

OUR NATIONAL DUTY.

The politicians and the organisers on each side having done all that in them lies, the rest is with the electors of this State to-day. The campaign, because short, has been strenuous. We have had the opportunity of hearing some of the leading men of other States, which is seldom done in purely State politics. And now, at the end, the decision of things is with us. For this one day the voter or the non-voter is supreme. Upon his action or inaction the victory of one and the defeat of the other party depends. For there are two parties, and only two parties, in this contest. On the one side are nearly all the men who for many years past have as of right been at the head of affairs. These men in themselves compose the leaders of the two great parties of the past—Labour and Liberalism. Owing to a deep cleavage, which in this instance arises out of the referendum of last October, but which in any case must have come, the leaders of the old Labour party are standing side by side with the leaders of Liberalism. Mr. Holman is their commander-in-chief, Mr. Garland and Mr. Hall take the field together; Mr. Meagher presides at one rally, Sir Thomas Hughes at another, and the forces hitherto arrayed solidly against each other now co-operate in the battle of free responsible government and democracy in an honourable equality and with an honourable absence of class consciousness, and of personal, religious, or party bias. The Independents we may leave out of consideration. On the Opposition side is the party which, having expelled its leaders and its guides, and having reconstructed its internal machinery so as to banish freedom of opinion and of action within or without the party platform, and having shut up its followers and even its Parliamentary candidates within a prison of undated signed resignations, enters upon the bold experiment of Russian autocracy and ruthless repression in the face of all the signs and portents in the world of Europe. The party led by Mr. Holman looks upon the Empire at war and resolves to act as beseems a free State in the great struggle of liberty. The party led by Mr. Storey, composed of we know not how many warring factions and impossible extremists, closes its eyes to war and the Empire, and talks and thinks and resolves to act round the politics of the parish pump. There lies our choice to-day. What will we do with it? We may: (1) Return our old leaders and their lieutenants in sufficient numbers to make the new Parliament a workable instrument of the will of a sane and instructed democracy. Or (2) we may return Mr. Storey's strange assortment of irreconcilables under whom the history of this State for three years to come must be a chapter of dishonour and disaster. Or, again (3), we may, by absence and indifference, return a Parliament without a sufficient mandate and majority to do anything except drift in the crisis of our destiny. Surely the people, having these portentous alternatives before them, will resolve upon the course of dignity and wisdom and safety, and will place their interests for the term of this new Parliament in the hands of the experienced men who have served them well hitherto. The other course is simply to leap in the dark.

It is well to rid our minds of all subsidiary issues. One of these things is the conscription question. As a plain matter of fact, conscription is not even a subsidiary issue. It is neither flesh, fowl, nor good red herring. Even if the question of conscription had not been decided by a vote of the whole people, it has nothing whatever to do with the State elections; but if any assurance were needed on the point it is to be found in Mr. Hughes's declaration that the people having given their decision that decision will be respected by the Federal Government; and also in Mr. Holman's emphatic statement that if it should ever come up again the State Government will oppose it. But the P.L.L. is making a great mistake if it imagines that that vote represented any desire to make an end of the war before complete victory is assured. Conscriptionists and anti-conscriptionists alike, taking them by and large, have no illusions as to what defeat in this war would mean for us in Australia, and we are confident that the great body of them will vote to-day for a Government which places the winning of the war and the securing of our national safety before all other things. That is point No. 1. Then there is the question as to whether Parliament is to rule in New South Wales or whether Parliament is to be ruled, as Mr. Hall put it in his speech at the Town Hall on Thursday night, by a secret body outside? That is point No. 2. Surely it is unnecessary to say any more. Surely there is no doubt as to how the great, thinking, intelligent body of men and women will vote. It is unthinkable that we should have a Government composed of men with no soul, no conscience of their own, and taking their orders from an irresponsible oligarchy meeting in conference outside. This is the rock on which the Labour party itself has split, with the result that the men who have given a lifetime of service to the Labour movement—all the best of them, all the most able, all the most patriotic of them—have had to leave it. But that does not mean that they have forsaken their Labour principles, and the fact that they are now to be found in the ranks of the National party is the best of guarantees that the interests of the workers will not be overlooked. But there is great organisation within the P.L.L. forces; there is a great body of men and women who will follow these "dark forces" blindly, willy-nilly, and it has become only too evident of late that there are the sinister influences of the I.W.W. at work behind them. Remembering these things—remembering, above all, that the Federal elections are to follow so closely, and that the rest of Australia is waiting for a patriotic lead from the mother State—it is to be hoped that the National party will not merely secure a victory, but that that victory will be a decisive one. No man who values a free and untrammelled Parliament, no woman who loves her country, will neglect to vote to-day. It is the most momentous election in the history of the State.

PERSONAL.

VICE-REGAL.

Their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Helen Munro Ferguson will leave Melbourne for New South Wales on the 28th instant and will go into residence at Admiralty House on April 3 for some weeks. When in New South Wales the Governor-General will take the opportunity of fulfilling a postponed engagement to visit the Clarence River district, and to open the Grafton Agricultural Show.

The Federal Treasurer (Sir John Forrest) left Melbourne for Western Australia yesterday, and the Minister for Customs (Mr. Jensen) left for Tasmania.

Senator Russell, Honorary Minister in the Commonwealth Government, is in Sydney.

Mr. Tudor, leader of the Federal Labour party, who has been assisting the State election campaign, leaves for Melbourne to-morrow evening.

Mr. Ryan, Premier of Queensland, left for Brisbane last night.

The Minister for Home and Territories (Mr. Glynn) left Melbourne for Adelaide yesterday.

There was a representative attendance of Masons at the Masonic Hall, Hobart, to bid farewell to the departing Governor, Sir Ellison Macartney, who has held the office of Grand Master in Tasmania. The Pro-Grand Master, Mr. C. E. Davies, M.L.C., spoke in the highest terms of the departing Grand Master. His Excellency afterwards held a levee to enable him to bid farewell to every Mason. The Governor leaves en route for Western Australia.

The Minister for Works and Railways (Mr. Watt) left Melbourne for Sydney yesterday. He expects to return to Melbourne about the middle of next week.

Advice has been received in Melbourne by cablegram from London that Sir Rupert Clarke has left for Australia. Sir Rupert was invalided home from Salonica at the end of last year, and has been discharged as medically unfit for further active service.

P.L.L. AND I.W.W.

"One last word about Mr. John Storey's latest disclaimer against any connection with the I.W.W.," said Mr. Holman yesterday. "At the St. Patrick's Day celebrations at Broken Hill Mr. Brookfield is reported in the 'Barrier Daily Truth' of March 19 to have said:—

"He had attended a caucus meeting of the Labour party and a P.L.L. executive meeting. They had endorsed his attitude towards the I.W.W. men in prison. Holman had said that the people of New South Wales would have to choose between Brookfield and the red flag on one side and the Union Jack and the National party on the other. He thought they would choose the red flag."

"Mr. Brookfield has put the matter quite clearly," said Mr. Holman. "To-morrow's issue is between responsible government and the safety of the Empire, as symbolised in the National flag and the forces of anarchy and I.W.W.-ism under Mr. Brookfield's red flag of revolution."

"I have just received a telegram from Broken Hill," continued the Premier, "which states that—

"'Comrade' Jackson, of the I.W.W., has just arrived from Sydney. Addressing a meeting last night, he said that if Labour were returned to power the politicians would be tested by a resolution to be carried at the next Labour Conference. This resolution would demand the immediate release of the I.W.W. prisoners without any Royal commissions, or retrials. The delegates would then march in a body to Parliament House, and present the resolution to the Labour Government, if in power. 'If the demand is refused,' said 'Comrade' Jackson, 'people will then see what will happen. I cannot put it into words.'"

COAL EXPORTS.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

The exports of coal for the week ending to-day totalled 26,360 tons, of which [illegible] tons went to Victoria, 10,900 to South Australia, and 2050 to Queensland.

RESISTANCE

ENEMY LINE STIFFENS

BRITISH NOW NEAR ST. QUENTIN

IRELAND

ANOTHER EFFORT AT SETTLEMENT

LONDON, March 23.

Sir Douglas Haig, in his midnight report on Thursday, stated:—The enemy's resistance is increasing on the whole front west of St. Quentin, to the south of Arras. Heavy snowstorms impeded our advance.

We carried out a successful raid north-east of Arras.

The enemy while counter-attacking across the open sustained severe casualties.

A small party raided our trenches north of Ypres, but were driven out. Machine-guns dispersed another raid south-west of Lens.

FIGHTING BY FRENCH.

The French communique issued at midnight on Thursday says:—

In the region of St. Quentin there have been patrol skirmishes north of Dollon.

Between the Somme and the Oise the enemy attempted, by violent counter-attacks, to dislodge us from the east bank of the St. Quentin Canal.

Successive enemy attacks on our front at Clastres and Montescourt (near La Fere) were broken by machine-gun fire, inflicting heavy losses on the Germans. Equally violent fighting west of La Fere terminated in the complete defeat of the enemy.

South of the Oise our detachments crossed the Aliette at some points.

The Germans north of the Aisne renewed their attacks between the Laon-road and the river. Three attacks on the Vregney-Chivecrs line were stopped by our barrage fire.

Our artillery in the region south of the Aisne enfiladed the Germans, inflicting the heaviest losses.

There was fairly heavy artillery fighting in the Woevre region. An enemy attack at Romainville Farm, near St. Mihiel, failed.

Reports are continuing to pour in of German vandalism in the evacuated zone. Fleck, the commander of the German 17th Army Corps, carried off the furniture from the house in which he had resided at Ham.

A French communique issued on Thursday afternoon states:—After a lively struggle we succeeded in extending our positions east of St. Quentin canal. In the region north of Tergnier we drove out the enemy from several important points, which he was stubbornly defending.

We advanced during the night south of the Oise and north of Soissons.

We occupied several villages despite lively enemy counter-attacks in the region of Vregny.

OVER OPEN COUNTRY.

The "Morning Post" correspondent at Headquarters in France says that open warfare, cavalry skirmishes, and occasional encounters with German cyclist patrols are still a feature of the British advance. The German rearguard resistance is curiously irregular, varying from stubborn opposition by intrenched infantry, east of Bapaume, to mere glimpses of isolated detachments moving among the trees and villages west of St. Quentin.

Although we are driving in the rearguards, we have not yet obtained contact with the main armies. German Guards and machine-gunners still hold the Beugny-Ytres position, astride the Cambrai-road, but this consists of isolated entrenchments. As the enemy screen continues southwards it swings more eastward, and the angle is daily more pronounced, and becoming thinner and more flexible, inviting increased cavalry pressure.

Nowhere is the British advance more cautious than east of the Somme, where, however, it has reached Savy, close to St. Quentin, representing an advance of 20 miles.

After the long confinement in the trenches the temptation to the troops to rush pell-mell over the fields and hard roads was almost irresistible. The men wanted at least to get within hearing distance of the guns. But mostly there has been a steady movement through the abandoned villages and devastated farms without the more exciting experiences of open warfare.

The only actual hostilities over a large portion of the advance falls to the cavalry patrols and cyclist scouts, which are far ahead, scouring the woodland and gullies. The infantry and the guns go forward steadily over the mended roads.

The British soldier never looked so grim and bitter as when he was marching through the destroyed villages beyond Nesle, and was confronted with the enemy's abominable handiwork. He has never been more eager to come to grips with the Germans. The cavalry men are having the times of their lives. The enthusiasm pervading all the troops is especially strong among the mounted men, after the galling inactivity of many months.

RUMOURED OFFENSIVE.

The Hague correspondent of the "New York Times" learns from confidential German sources that Germany intends a great offensive on a certain front to begin on April 5.

GERMAN PRINCE LOST.

A German official message on Thursday stated: Prince Friedrich Carl, of Prussia, flew over the enemy lines between Arras and Peronne, but has not returned.

Prince Carl was a well-known tennis player. He played in the Wimbledon championship under the name of F. Karl.

CHINA AND GERMANY.

PEKIN, March 22.

The Government, in consequence of its having broken off diplomatic relations with Germany, will not make further payments to Germany on account of the Boxer indemnity, and will discontinue payments for interest on the German portions of Anglo-German loans.

MORE PREPARATIONS BY U.S.A.

WAR THOUGHT INEVITABLE.

NEW YORK, March 23.

The majority of Americans are now facing the international situation with quiet determination. There is the greatest relief and widespread satisfaction at the President's action in calling Congress together. It is everywhere believed that Congress will take action to make America's position unmistakable. There is an absence of demonstrations, the public realising that it is no occasion for words but action and speedy systematic preparation. While the President has lately observed an unbroken silence, his view was reflected in the words of the proclamation: "The public interests require an extra session to receive a communication concerning grave matters of international policy which should be taken into immediate consideration."

It is not likely that President Wilson will take any further action pending the meeting of Congress. Senators and Congressmen consider President Wilson has taken the proper step, and will give him their most cordial support.

It is expected that when the Representatives meet little time will be lost in a partisan fight for the Speakership; but all will unite in this national emergency.

Rapid progress is being made in the plans for mobilising the mosquito fleet. One member of the Cabinet said: "When we go in we will go in to the hilt."

The "New York World's" usually well-informed Washington correspondent says: "When Congress meets the President will say that a state of war has existed since the 17th instant, when the three American merchantmen were sunk."

All the New York newspapers feature with across-the-page headlines, the proximity of war. General preparations are now under way, and the war policy is taking shape. It is expected that the President will give Congress a list of outrages, review Germany's actions, and ask Congress to declare that a state of war exists. It is believed that Congress will then authorise the use of armed forces. It is anticipated that the army will be in readiness for rapid mobilisation when Congress meets.

There is the greatest activity in the War and Navy Departments. Conferences of Ministers and officials are being held as to the measures of preparedness. A suggestion was made in some quarters that the United States, in the event of war, should act independently of the Allies. Officials say the suggestion is not acceptable in spirit and is impracticable. If there is war there will be the fullest co-operation with the Allies.

HELP FOR ALLIES.

Mr. T. Roosevelt's proposal of an expeditionary force is being widely discussed; but, while it is evident there would be a vast body of eager volunteers, it is unlikely that any early action will be taken in the matter. The Administration plans to rush the defence legislation. Mr. N. D. Baker, Secretary for War, admits there is a serious shortage of men's equipment. The President and Mr. Baker conferred on the question of compulsory service, but no decision was reached.

The Government is considering plans to mobilise the National Guard. If necessary it may eventually send these troops abroad, requisitioning the German interned ships for the purpose.

There is a gigantic mobilisation of financial forces to assist the Allies.

A later message from Washington says: Army plans under consideration include recruiting the regular army to the full strength of 250,000, the National Guard 400,000, and calling for volunteers, possibly to the number of 500,000.

Many financiers support the Reserve Board chairman's proposal to extend a billion dollar credit to the Allies, accepting mere obligations as security.

The Shipping Commissioner has gone to the Pacific coast to ascertain the capacity and speed of ship-building facilities.

Officials are discussing the question of the enlistment and training of troops. The policy of keeping open the trade routes may involve bases for American ships in Britain, which will imply the admittance of British ships to American ports for supplies and refitting. It is suggested that American ships should assist in patrolling the Atlantic, thus relieving the British for service in home waters.

The "New York Times" says: "America must not confine her financial aid to the Allies to credits. The United States will desire to bear part of the war's cost by substantial contributions of military, food, and supplies."

The Federal authorities have fixed a flat rate for insurance of shipping in the U-boat zone of 3 per cent. The rates from Atlantic ports to Australia, via the Panama Canal, have been fixed at 1½ per cent., and via the Cape at 2½ per cent.

REPORTED PEACE MOVE.

It is reported from Washington that a strong neutral move, headed by Dr. Ritter (Swiss Minister in Washington), is pending with a view to keeping the United States and Germany from hostilities.

It is believed Germany is contemplating a modification of the U-boat campaign.

The State Department has made it known officially that the Government will refuse to consider any neutral suggestions until Germany has withdrawn the submarine blockade.

The State Department is disinclined to believe that Germany is contemplating another peace move. Officials do not disguise the fact that they would doubt the faith of such action.

CONDITIONS IN GERMANY.

A Paris message says that Herr Ledebour, speaking in the Reichstag, said: "We have just learned of great events in Russia, which emphasise the importance of suppressing our bureaucratic absolutism. The Germans do not wish to remain behind other peoples."

A message from Washington states that there are 30,000 cases of smallpox in Germany.

According to a statement made in the Reichstag by the Socialist Deputy Hoffman, sent out from Berlin by the American State Department, it is believed conditions are ripe for a revolution in Germany.

A message from Rotterdam says that the men in five munition factories at Dusseldorf have been on strike since Monday, as a protest against short rations. There are 40,000 strikers.

REPORTS DISCREDITED.

Amsterdam newspapers discredit the rumours of serious disorder in Germany. They point out that telegraphic communication with Holland is uninterrupted.

It has been learned in Copenhagen from reliable sources that the rumours of disturbances in Germany are not true.

U.S.A. SHIP SUNK.

TORPEDOED WITHOUT WARNING.

It is reported from Holland that the American steamer Healdton, 4489 tons, was torpedoed without warning. Seven survivors have reached Terschelling. A second boat was picked up, but 21 men are still missing.

A late Amsterdam message says that one survivor from the Healdton died. Two boats are missing. It is believed that 14 perished in a boiler explosion.

HOLLAND AND ARMED SHIPS.

The Amsterdam "Telegraaf" says:—The French and British Ministers at the Hague have demanded the admission of armed merchantmen into Dutch ports.

A message from Amsterdam says that it is rumoured that Holland has refused America's request to admit American armed merchantmen to Dutch ports. It is assumed, therefore, that British and American shipping will thus be entirely debarred. The "Hindelsblad" suggests Britain and America will certainly regard this as an unfriendly act.

RAIDERS TRAPPED.

A New York message says: Passengers by the liner Byron, from Buenos Ayres, report that three German raiders were trapped in the South Atlantic on February 21. They say that one cruiser was badly damaged in the fight. Two of the raiders were sunk, and the third escaped. A British cruiser, disguised as a collier, lured the raiders until she was joined by two other cruisers.

RETURN OF MOEWE.

An official message from Berlin, received in Amsterdam, says that the auxiliary cruiser Moewe has returned home after a second cruise in the Atlantic.

JAPANESE SHIPPING.

A Tokio message says that the announcement of the departures and arrivals of vessels to and from Pacific and Indian Ocean ports has been prohibited.

GERMANY'S MARINE.

A report from Amsterdam says that Dr. Helfferich (German Minister for the Interior) stated in the Reichstag that negotiations were proceeding with shipowners for the reconstruction of the commercial fleet.

FRENCH SHIPPING LOSSES.

It is officially announced that the following have been the movements and losses of French shipping during the week ended March 18. The figures for the previous two weeks are also shown. Coastal and fishing ships are not included:—

	March 18.	March 11.	March 4.
Arrivals	920	707	859
Ships sunk	12	2	2

Six of the ships sunk were over and six under 1600 tons. Three ships were unsuccessfully attacked. Fifteen fishing ships were sunk during the week.

TURKISH ROUT ON TIGRIS.

Mr. Edmund Candler, who is with the British forces in Mesopotamia, telegraphing from Azizieh, states that the river fleet, pursuing the Turks towards Bagdad, was hotly engaged at Baghela in a hairpin bend of the Tigris. Turkish artillery and machine-guns, dug in in the apex of the bend, raked the gunboats coming and going. A quartermaster and pilot in the conning tower of one monitor were killed. The vessel was just prevented from grounding. The fleet rounded the bend at sixteen knots, reached a point where the bank was low, and had their revenge, playing havoc with the Turkish artillery and transport, meanwhile keeping up a running fight with the enemy's ships at long range. They soon sank the rearmost vessel. Next they overtook a British-owned steamer which was carrying 1000 Turkish sick and wounded, and 150 dead, as well as 18 Indian and eight British prisoners, all wounded.

The Firefly (taken by the Turks over a year ago) was next recaptured. She had been putting up a good fight until near the end, when the crew ran her ashore and escaped. The Firefly was practically intact. The enemy abandoned the Pioneer (another steamer they had captured from the British), igniting her, but she was salved. Thus only two small fighting units remain of the enemy's river fleet.

We also captured great booty along the riverside towns and roads. Baghela yielded up immense stores. Ashore armoured motors valuably aided our cavalry. The line of the Turkish retreat, which was strewn with all kinds of equipment—motors, cattle, guns, and scattered ammunition—showed that the gunners sought to save their lives by lightening their loads.

GERMAN ATTACK IN EAST.

RUSSIAN LINE ENTERED.

(Admiralty—per Wireless Press.)

A Russian official message states: In the direction of Lida (60 miles south of Vilna) the enemy attacked after a long bombardment, and occupied positions. Our counter-attack partly restored the position.

We drove back an attack after a stubborn battle north-west of Brody.

There is intense enemy aerial and artillery activity in the direction of Focsani (on the Roumanian front).

A German official message states: We penetrated the Russian front for 2¼ miles east of Lida, and destroyed the defences. We captured 225 prisoners and 14 mine-throwers.

SECRET HISTORY.

In the House of Commons this evening Mr. P. L. Outhwaite asked whether, in view of the charges levelled against the Czar and his Ministers, the Government would now give full information regarding Russia's action in opposing the intervention of Greece on the side of the Allies in connection with the attack on the Dardanelles.

Lord Robert Cecil (Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs): No, sir!

Lord Robert Cecil added that he was unable to publish a minute drawn up by Sir Eyre Crowe (Assistant Under-Secretary to the Foreign Office) for the Foreign Office early in 1906 upon Germany's foreign policy. He regretted this, because the publication would rebut baseless insinuations against patriots and one of the ablest Civil servants.

PRISONERS IN LONDON.

Dr. Krieg, on behalf of the German Foreign Office, declared in the Reichstag that the conditions under which the prisoners were confined in London were satisfactory.

THE EXTREMISTS IN RUSSIA.

ELEMENT OF GRAVE DANGER.

LONDON, March 23.

The "Morning Post's" Petrograd correspondent, telegraphing on Tuesday, said that the authorities seemed to have the Petrograd troops in hand. There are indications that the Provisional Government is gradually getting control of the situation, and the city is assuming a more normal aspect.

The Socialist danger persists. The Socialist newspapers openly urge the nation to consolidate with proletariat and allies of Germany, with a view to stopping the war.

A Copenhagen message says that the Grand Duke Nicholas was interviewed at Tiflis, in Trans-Caucasia. He said that, now the new Government is an accomplished fact, a return to the old regime is impossible. I would never countenance such a retrograde step. I look forward to ultimate victory, but it is a necessary condition that meanwhile there shall be internal peace. I am sure the Government will be able to prevent anarchy, but only with the support of the people.

Generals Russky and Dmitrieff have made a proclamation to their soldiers, appealing for discipline in order that the utmost efforts to secure victory may be made. General Brussiloff has made a similar proclamation.

M. Svin Hufvud, a former president of the Finnish Diet, and for several years an exile in Siberia, has returned, and has been appointed Procurator for Finland.

The Russian Government has requested the refugees in Stockholm to return. Hundreds have arranged to leave on Saturday.

The "Daily Chronicle's" Petrograd correspondent says that it is proposed to raise gold for the war and gather in the stores of food hidden and hoarded throughout the country.

It has also been decided to introduce women's suffrage for the constituent Assembly.

A Government manifesto ratifies the constitution of the Grand Duchy of Finland, and promises a general amnesty, also the immediate convocation of the Diet, which will be granted enlarged powers.

A Petrograd message says that the Government has ordered the immediate prosecution of M. Soukomlinoff on a charge of high treason.

BRITAIN'S GOOD WISHES.

In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Bonar Law (leader of the House) moved a resolution to send fraternal greetings to the Duma, and heartfelt congratulations to the Russian people on the establishment of free institutions, in the full confidence that they will lead not only to the rapid and happy progress of the Russian nation, but to the prosecution of the war with renewed steadfastness and vigour against the stronghold of autocratic militarism which threatens Europe's liberty. He said the events in Russia had arrested the attention of the world in the midst of a world-wide convulsion. We were reminded of the French Revolution, the bright dawn of which was quickly overcast. It was too soon to say that all danger in Russia had passed, too soon to feel confident that the new Government had laid a foundation on which liberty could be built with wisdom and justice for companions; but it was not too soon to send friendly greetings and goodwill to a Government formed for the purpose of carrying on the war, and which was confronted with the arduous task of driving out the foreign aggressor and establishing freedom at home. The message would have special force coming from the "mother of parliaments."

It was not for us to judge, much less condemn, those who had taken part in the government of an allied country, but he hoped to be permitted to express a feeling which the vast majority of the members of the House shared—namely, a feeling of compassion for the late Czar, who for three years was a loyal ally, and upon whom was laid by birth a burden which had proved too heavy. Nevertheless, they could not forget that one of the greatest issues of the war was whether free institutions could survive against the onslaughts of military despotism. They could not but rejoice in the hope that in the final stages of the world conflict all the Allied Powers would be under the direction of Governments which represented the people. (Cheers.)

The Government, he concluded, submitted the resolution in the hope and belief that it would strengthen the hands of the Russian Government in its difficult task.

Mr. Asquith said the resolution expressed the opinion of the whole Empire. The momentous events in Russia commanded special and immediate recognition. Autocracy had been blotted out in a few days without effective resistance or even defence. He was glad to know the form of the future Government would be submitted to the free judgment of an enfranchised people. Russia would thus take her place by the side of the great democracies of the world. Britain should be the first to rejoice at Russia's emancipation and welcome her into the fellowship of free peoples. "We have confidence in the men who form the new Government, and feel assured they will concentrate the resources of the country to bring the war to an end which will justify the Allies' sacrifices."

Mr. Devlin (Nationalist) said that the Russian revolution was a warning portent to autocracies everywhere. He desired to voice the opinion that Ireland would join with united harmony in an expression of profound sympathy with Russia's emancipation.

Mr. G. J. Wardle (Labour) supported the resolution on behalf of Labour.

Mr. A. A. W. H. Ponsonby (Liberal) was much interrupted when casting doubts on the assertion that the leaders of the revolution will carry on the war with vigour.

Mr. L. Ginnell (Nationalist) pointed out that Britain was congratulating successful rebels, though she had been hanging and shooting unsuccessful rebels in Ireland.

The motion was carried.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE'S MESSAGE.

The Press Bureau announces that Mr. Lloyd George has sent the following telegram to Prince Lvoff, Premier in the Russian Provisional Government:

The most profound satisfaction is felt in Great Britain and the Oversea Dominions that Russia stands with nations which base their institutions upon responsible governments.

Much as we appreciate the loyal and steadfast co-operation received from the ex-Czar and Russia's armies in the past two and a half years, we believe the revolution by which her destinies will be based on the sure foundation of freedom is the greatest service yet made to the Allied cause. It proves that the war, which is a struggle for popular government, equally with liberty, has thus already won a resounding victory, and it is a sure promise that Prussian military autocracy will soon be overthrown.

There is no doubt that the result of the establishment of a stable Constitutional Government will strengthen Russia in her resolve to prosecute the war until the last stronghold of tyranny is destroyed, and all free peoples unite to attain future fraternity and peace.

TRADE IN SPELTER.

The Press Bureau announces that the Minister for Munitions has decided to prohibit all dealing in spelter, except under license.

THE IRISH PROBLEM.

ANOTHER ATTEMPT AT SETTLEMENT.

LONDON, March 22.

Upon the second reading of the Consolidated Fund Bill, Mr. Bonar Law afforded the promised opportunity to debate the Irish question.

Sir Henry Dalziel, in moving "It is of supreme importance that the Government should make an effort to secure the settlement of Irish differences," said that a settlement was necessary in the interests of national unity, and to put ourselves right with the Allies. Inaction had strengthened the reactionaries in Ireland. All parties must make great sacrifices, otherwise a solution would be impossible. The suggestion to place dominion representatives upon the commission deserved a trial.

Major J. W. Hills (Unionist), in seconding the motion, said that the Irish difference was a source of weakness in the war, and it would paralyse us after the war.

Mr. Ronald M'Neill (Unionist) declared that Mr. Dillon's recent untrue suggestion that the people of Ulster had been negotiating with German agents was a most serious obstacle to the settlement. It had only created discontent and distrust. He was convinced that the oversea representatives would not touch the Irish question with a barge-pole. Ulster was not the obstacle to the settlement. Already Ulster had made large concessions; the Nationalists had made none.

Mr. M'Neill added that the Dominion statesmen were already deeply committed to Home Rule by their Parliament's resolutions. They could not approach the problem impartially.

Lieut.-Colonel Sir Hamar Greenwood said it would be an acknowledgment of incapacity to ask the Dominions to shoulder the responsibility.

Mr. D. Macmaster (Unionist) urged the necessity of the Irish parties meeting and mutually agreeing. He saw signs indicating that that was possible.

Mr. H. L. Samuel (ex-Home Secretary) said that the most hopeful feature was the general desire for a settlement, which would be received in every corner of the Empire and in neutral countries with high relief, but only with regret by Germany.

Mr. Bonar Law (leader of the House) welcomed the tone of the debate. He repudiated the idea that the Government desired a general election. There was nothing he detested more. He was not thinking of party advantage or a chance of winning the election. But he realised that it was the whole nation's desire that we should live in peace and friendship with the people in the South and West of Ireland if that were possible. They had no right to impose Home Rule on Ulster unless Ulster would submit. If the Nationalists openly avowed that they were prepared to act in the same spirit as British parties, then he (Mr. Bonar Law) believed it would be easier to make an arrangement with Ulster. The present position was a blemish on our statesmanship, but it was not the fault of all the statesmen.

Continuing, Mr. Bonar Law said that he believed that England desired to act justly to Ireland. The Government was prepared to grant self-government to Ireland to-morrow where it was distinctly demanded. The Government wanted a settlement, but sacrifices were necessary by all sides in order to achieve it.

The Irish question has acted as a handicap in carrying on the war. If we make another attempt and fail the position will be worse. That makes us hesitate. The Government has decided, on its own responsibility, in some way or other to make another attempt at settlement. (Loud cheers.) The House knows the difficulties. I hope it will not press for a fuller statement now, but give the Government a little time for consideration. We think it worth while to make an attempt, whether it succeeds or fails." (Loud cheers.)

Mr. Asquith: I think I may express, on behalf of the whole House, our satisfaction with the announcement. (Cheers.) Personally, I think it better to make an attempt and fail than not to make one at all. The Government will realise that it will have the sympathy and active co-operation of all of us. (Cheers.)

Sir Henry Dalzel's motion was negatived, and the bill was read a second time.

Speaking at the National Liberal Club, Sir Joseph Ward (New Zealand Finance Minister) referred to the Irish question. He quoted Mr. Bonar Law's statement in the House of Commons—that, if any method could be found to heal this old sore, it would be one of the best things for the Empire—and he declared that a settlement would be not only in the interests of the Empire, but also in the interests of civilisation. The question called for a prompt settlement. It was a running and dangerous sore at the heart of the Empire, and it extended to countries far beyond. It should be healed without delay. He was convinced that an effective and lasting settlement could be made, and no effort should be spared to bring the parties together, and establish an Irish Parliament, with full local autonomy. Such a course was essential, and it would more closely unify the Empire and help to win the war.

THREAT OF COMPULSORY RATIONING.

The Food Controller, Lord Devonport, speaking in the House of Lords, said that the appeal for the voluntary rationing of meat, bread, and sugar had been generally observed, but a considerable diminution in the quantities used was still indisputably necessary, otherwise he would introduce a more drastic order. He would regard compulsory rationing as a national calamity, but the machinery for that system was ready for enforcement. It depended on whether there was a greater public response.

He hoped there would be greater economies in the munition centres. Many people were still heedless and selfish.

The decrease in the meat sales in the United Kingdom was approximately 10 per cent., equal to a reduction of 240,000 tons annually. There were sufficient supplies for months without imports.

He was appointing a committee to investigate the distribution of sugar. We had been described as a beleaguered city. The housewives hold the key. He was determined to stop habitual hoarding.

THE "VICTORY" LOAN.

NEW YORK, March 22.

Mr. Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the course of an interview with a representative of the New York "Sun," said that 8,000,000 British subjects participated in the recent loan.

"The phenomenal success of the loan was due to the nation's esprit de corps," he said. "It revealed an absolute determination to stand shoulder to shoulder against Prussianism. Eminent financiers were sceptical of success at the outset. Some of the greatest experts told me I was riding for a fall, but they had not reckoned on the influence of popular sentiment on the money market. We are a complex race. It is always most difficult to prophesy what is going to happen in Great Britain. I gave the country plenty of time. Our public opinion is slow to move, but once moving will accomplish miracles. The response to the loan shows that the British can be counted upon in any emergency."

FOOD VERSUS ALCOHOL.

A meeting in the Queen's Hall, London, demanded the prohibition of the liquor trade for the period of the war and demobilisation.

Sir Alfred Booth declared that there was not sufficient food to go round, and suffering and privation would soon fall on those least able to bear it. The transport of non-essential goods must be stopped, and the first of these was alcohol

VOICE OF GERMAN PRESS.

REMARKABLE DISCLOSURE.

LONDON, March 23.

The full text has been published of remarkable, confidential instructions which were officially issued to German newspapers, who were told how to discuss unlimited submarine war. The instructions declare that there must be no expressions of opinion concerning the submarines, which might encourage the enemy. "The determined approval of the entire people," says the document, "must ring out from the Press."

All the factors have been carefully weighed, continues the document, and it is now a question of the best and only means of securing a speedy victory. The Press must use outward forms of friendliness towards America, otherwise the danger of America's participation in the war will be increased. The newspapers are requested to assert that the German navy is firmly confident that England's references to her perfected defences will be refuted by results, and that the personnel of the enemy's mercantile marine will be weakened, and his material used up. The Press is requested to employ the psychological weapon, with a view to spreading a fear of Germany among neutral crews.

USE OF AFRICAN NATIVES

The "Daily Telegraph's" Capetown correspondent says that General Botha in the Assembly, replying to the extreme Nationalists' criticism, agreed that it was inadvisable to employ natives as combatants in Europe. They would be employed exclusively in transport. He did not fear that they would become a danger to the whites when they returned.

He added: "I will continue to do my duty to the Empire regardless of cost, even if I am alone. Our forefathers always used the natives for transport work."

Sir T. W. Smartt attacked the attempt of the Nationalists to exploit the native question for the purpose of injuring the Government.

[There are many thousands of African negroes, organised on a military basis as "labour battalions," being employed by both French and British behind the lines in France. In addition, the French are using large numbers of Asiatics, particularly Chinese, on dock, farm, and factory work.]

WAR NOTES.

ENEMY'S INCREASING RESISTANCE.

The resistance which was noticeable yesterday on both wings of the pursuing allied armies between Arras and Soissons has now spread to practically the whole of the new front. The British advance, according to Sir Douglas Haig's message, appears to be held up, for the time being at any rate, along the whole of that section of their front which was affected by the German withdrawal. The later French communiques are confident in tone, but, although they claim the "complete defeat" of the Germans at one point, they also reveal the same increasing resistance on the part of the enemy which is being experienced by the British farther north. While this may suggest that the enemy is now nearing his new line, there is as yet no conclusive proof that the retirement has ended. Since the enemy commenced his withdrawal by evacuating the positions around Serre on February 25 last there have been many pauses on his part, and advantage has been taken of all opportunities to hold up the allied advance by rearguard actions. Positions offering defensive facilities such as the Bucquoy and Bapaume ridges were not handed over to the Allies without some opposition, and, even in those early stages of the retirement, we witnessed counter-attacks by the enemy at certain points along the line of the British advance. If he now decides to settle down permanently along the Arras-St. Quentin-Laon line he is allowing the French to approach remarkably close to the junctions of St. Quentin and La Fere. Should the allied infantry be allowed to follow in the footsteps of the patrols, neither of these junctions will be of much use to the enemy. The patrols which were previously reported at Roupy are now said to be north of Dollon, which is only about a mile and a half from the south-western outskirts of St. Quentin, while the French troops which effected the "complete defeat" of the enemy west of La Fere cannot be more than two or three miles from that town.

THE GERMAN EXPLANATION.

Although some of the comments of the German Press which appear this morning are amusing, there will appear to be more than a modicum of truth in the correspondents' explanations, if the retirement ends on the line at present occupied by the enemy. These correspondents state that Germany's object was to upset the Allies' plans for an offensive. The comments of the "Kolnische Zeitung," and the more fulsome remarks of the "Lokal Anzeiger," suggest that this is the official explanation which the German general staff wishes to disseminate amongst the people. Such a straightening out as the line has already undergone certainly reveals a desire on the part of the enemy to avoid that awkward bulge in his line which the Somme offensive created, and, apart from his escape from that region of horror, it does not appear to have given him any other outstanding advantage. The enemy was fairly safe in concluding that a continuation of the Somme offensive was practically a certainty. His airmen may have confirmed this belief. Knowing that the greatest strain would fall upon one of the weakest spots in his defensive line he claims to have arrived at the heroic decision to effect a strategic advance towards the rear, instead of waiting for the inevitable smash and break-through on the part of the Allies, when his withdrawal to new lines would have proved a more difficult and dangerous operation. The explanation may be sound in some respects, but it would be interesting to know if the German general staff still contends that the Allies lost the Battle of the Somme.

OPERATIONS IN MACEDONIA.

The Bulgarian communique describes the recent capture by the French of Hill 1248 and the village of Rastani, north of Monastir, as "an attempted enemy offensive," which it says was checked. There has been a marked state of unrest for some time past in this region near General Sarrail's left flank, and the activity of the French patrols between Lakes Prespa and Ochrida has been referred to in enemy communiques with persistent regularity for days past. The enemy has also at times announced the breakdown of several French attacks north of Monastir, but we heard very little from the Allies regarding these activities until the arrival of the recent French communique claiming this local success. The hill is undoubtedly the more important of the two gains, and its possession probably led to the entry into the village. Rastani is only three miles north of Monastir, a fact which might be brought to the attention of some of the correspondents who described the wild Bulgarian retreat towards Prilep after the fall of Monastir. It is close to the junction of the two main roads which branch off to the north-east and north-west above Monastir. It is doubtful whether General Sarrail's armies will now be so closely associated with the general allied plan as they were last year. At the same time, it is unlikely that they will remain idle throughout the coming summer, and before he makes any definite move General Sarrail will naturally be anxious to discover the real position on his left flank, which must be a source of some anxiety to him. Hill 1248 is one of the strongest defensive positions in this sector immediately to the northward of Monastir, and its capture by the French should greatly strengthen the allied line above Monastir and prove a valuable defensive position should the enemy attempt the recapture of the town. It also gives the Allies command of the road leading away towards Prilep, which would be no slight advantage should they anticipate launching a real offensive above Monastir. Before such a move is decided upon, however, we may hear more of those precautionary measures between Lakes Prespa and Ochrida to protect the allied flank.

LATE WAR NEWS.

AMERICANS DEMAND WAR.

NEW YORK, March 23.

The United States Consul at Amsterdam reports that the American steamer Healdton was torpedoed without warning off Terschelling, and 20 were drowned and one fatally injured. The crew saw the submarine.

The Healdton sailed for Rotterdam on January 26, and carried petroleum.

A great patriotic mass meeting in Madison Square Garden adopted a resolution urging Congress to declare that a state of war exists. The Mayor, Mr. Mitchell, suggested sending abroad at least 500,000 men, and this met with tremendous applause. Senator Root called for vigorous war measures. He said it would be deplorable if there were no provision in the peace terms for the protection of the undefended States of America.

President Wilson is preparing a statement for Congress. It is expected to deal incidentally with universal military service.

Officials believe that Germany is endeavouring to induce a European neutral to mediate with the object of delaying an American declaration of war. A semi-official statement has been made that the United States will not listen to any overtures unless Germany unreservedly ceases her U-boat campaign.

Meanwhile, there is no abatement in the warlike preparations. The fund of £100,000,000 recently voted for new warships will probably be increased by £20,000,000. There are 62 passenger vessels in New York port of 380,000 tonnage, capable of being converted into cruisers.

"DIABOLICAL HAVOC."

LONDON, March 23.

The London correspondent of the "New York Times" interviewed Major-General Maurice, British Director of Military Operations, who said that the Germans blew up every important cross road in their retreat and wrought diabolical havoc on buildings and public works. Their wanton destruction was not a military precaution, and it had not stopped the British advance. It meant that the Germans threatened to destroy every portion of France in their hands if they were compelled to continue to fall back. The present retirement had not surprised the British, but it was impossible to say where the Germans would make a stand.

GERMANS GOING HOME.

WASHINGTON, March 22.

The German diplomatic officials, who are leaving Peking owing to China's severing diplomatic relations with Germany, will return home via America.

U.S.A. RAILWAYS.

NEW YORK, March 22.

The United States railway owners are asking permission to charge higher rates to meet the cost of granting to their employees an eight-hours' day.

SOLDIERS' VOTES.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

A regulation, under the War Precautions Act issued to-day provides that a member of the Australian forces who has returned from serving outside Australia, and who is eligible to be enrolled as an elector of the Commonwealth, but is not so enrolled, may vote at the coming Federal elections. He must, however, make application for a certificate signed by the military or naval commandant of his district, and it must be produced to the presiding officer at the polling booth before he can vote.

COKE SUPPLIES.

BRISBANE, Friday.

The Minister for Mines, referring to the shortage of coke supplies for the Mount Elliott smelters, said arrangements had now been completed for the supply of not less than 1500 tons of coke per month from Ipswich. This is in addition to what is being supplied already from the same source to Mount Morgan. With what may be secured from New South Wales, the Minister hopes this will go far towards solving the difficulty.

APPEALS.

MR. HOLMAN'S LAST WORD.

Mr. Storey's statement that we have taken 90 per cent. of the Labour platform is probably quite accurate. But who, I would ask, has more right to this platform than the Labour men who made it? Those now of the National party—Mr. M'Gowen, Mr. J. C. Watson, Mr. Lamond, Mr. Farrar, Mr. Fitzgerald, Mr. Hollis, Mr. Morrish—and men like Mr. Griffith and Mr. Black, who are also opposed to the P.L.L., are responsible for all the democratic planks of the Labour platform. We have taken these, together with the democratic planks in the Liberal and Progressive platforms, with the result that the National platform to-day is the most democratic, the most practicable, and the most comprehensive ever submitted to electors. It is shorn of the doctrinaire, extreme, and impracticable proposals of recent Labour platforms, and if carried into effect it will make for the growth and security of Australia and the abolition of industrial chaos.

We stand pledged to government by a Parliament responsible only to the electors.

We stand pledged to do everything possible to win the war, without conscription, which has been definitely turned down by a majority of the Australian people.

We shall provide direct financial assistance and homes to returned sick and wounded soldiers.

We shall support the Federal Government in its repatriation scheme by making the best of our unoccupied lands available, and by the resumption of suitable estates. We stand pledged to amend the arbitration laws so as to minimise strikes, while securing justice for the worker. We shall give the man on the land his choice of either freehold or leasehold tenure. We stand pledged to a progressive policy in public health, and to the fullest extension of educational facilities.

Against this, the P.L.L. party offers the electors government by a secret clique, with signed resignations, national disunion, the introduction of sectarianism, direct action, and other I.W.W. methods. The P.L.L. offers no definite platform; but you are called upon to elect a P.L.L. member of Parliament for three years on the distinct understanding that his policy may, and will, change from year to year as determined by the annual P.L.L. conference. The men who constitute the National party place the needs of Empire and the good of Australia above all personal and party considerations. I confidently ask for support for every National candidate.

(Sgd.) W. A. HOLMAN.

MR. JOSEPH COOK.

These are days of crisis, and the choice of to-morrow is momentous beyond anything that has gone before. Great things are ahead of us—great duties, great obligations, and great opportunities.

You are called upon to select the men to face these difficulties and wisely use these opportunities.

The National party contains the abler men and stands for the better cause.

In voting for this party you vote for a free Government at the head of free representatives in a free Parliament.

You vote for continuity, perseverance, and efficiency in prosecuting the war to the end.

You vote for wisdom and experience in solving the problems which the end of the war will bring us.

Remember that efficient government means economical government, economical government means less taxes, and less taxes more and better wage values for the worker.

I hope the National Government will win because:—

1. It is better for the nation and Empire.
2. Better for the war and the boys at the front; and
3. Better for all at home, including the worker.

JOSEPH COOK.

P.L.L. APPEAL.

The following appeal was issued yesterday by Mr. John Storey, leader of the New South Wales P.L.L. party:—

The one great question to-day is: Who shall rule the State?

Labour points proudly to its past record. On that it can be equitably and justly judged. Labour is pledged to carry on the good work that has, unfortunately, been interrupted by the secession from its ranks.

Labour stands for the effort of men and women to secure for themselves and their children justice and life opportunity—the making of freedom, utility, and humanity practical forces in our daily life and work.

The Labour movement is as broad as humanity itself. It is the motive power that is moving us forward and upward to that higher civilisation which will ultimately cause even the begrimed labourer to stand before his Maker and all the world—the equal of every other man.

It is the vanguard of a movement which has made the last century, and the present one, notable in the advancement of the cause of humanity.

Never was a cause less sordid, more fired with the highest social ideals of our race, than this effort to secure for countless numbers of men, women, and children the blessings of economic independence, assuring a lofty citizenship, with an impregnable base of virtuous and intelligent manhood and womanhood. Labour to-day means more to the people of this State than ever before.

Labour claims the votes of the people because of what it has done, what it is doing, and what it will yet do.

Rally to the Standard of Labour, and emblazon on its waving folds yet another victory for humanity, for freedom, and for justice.

JOHN STOREY.

LOCAL OPTION POLLS.

BRISBANE, Friday.

The Queensland Government is confronted with a serious problem in regard to the taking of the local option polls, which have been demanded in a large number of districts. The Liquor Act says the local option polls must take place on May 5, and the Commonwealth Parliament has decreed that they shall not be held on that day. There is thus an interesting legal clash between the Federal and State administrative powers.

POLLING DAY.

Polling for the election of members to the new State Parliament takes place to-day.

A period of eleven hours, continuously from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m., is allowed to electors to attend the polling booths and cast their votes.

The names of all those electors who were soldiers when the rolls were collected are distinguished on the rolls by an emblem of crossed swords on the left-hand margin of the rolls outside the number. As a precaution against personation, presiding officers at all the polling booths have been instructed to question all who claim a vote in the name of one of these soldiers, so as to establish their bona-fides, and prevent votes being recorded in the names of soldiers abroad on active service.

A big poll is expected. There are more names on the roll now than at any other time, the total being 1,110,000, which includes 74,221 names on the recently-compiled supplemental roll. Although these figures give an average of nearly 12,500 electors in each of the 90 constituencies, the actual figures fluctuate a lot. Canterbury enjoys the distinction of holding the largest number of electors, the roll showing a total of 22,577. Other "big" constituencies are:—Randwick, 20,634; Granville, 19,748; Hurstville, 19,673; Gordon, 17,467; and Ryde, 17,634. A number of constituencies have less than 10,000 voters enrolled, while Cobar is at the bottom of the list with 8078.

Both sides profess to be confident of winning seats. Mr. Holman, Premier and leader of the National party, said last night that his estimate of the Labour party's strength in the new Parliament was about 30 seats. Mr. Storey, the leader of the P.L.L. party, on the other hand, professes to believe that the strength of his following will be increased to 40. It will thus be seen that neither leader, on the eve of the election, anticipates any change in the administration of the State as a result of the poll. The strength of the parties in the new Parliament would appear to depend upon the decisions in half a dozen or more metropolitan constituencies. Close contests are expected in all of them, which include Redfern, Newtown, King, Darlinghurst, Marrickville, Waverley, Hurstville, and Granville.

PREMIER IN METROPOLITAN ELECTORATES.

The Premier at 10 o'clock last night delivered his last speech in the present campaign. The meeting was in the Empire Picture Palace at Marrickville, and the spacious building was filled by a gathering which had waited patiently for Mr. Holman while he was addressing other meetings in an encircling tour by motor car of six of the metropolitan electorates. At Marrickville, where he spoke eloquently in support of the Nationalist candidate, Mr. Crawford, and at the King's Hall, where he began his tour by appearing on the platform of Mr. J. J. Morrish, the Nationalist candidate for King, the opposition was either absent or strangely silent, for there was not a note of discord to stimulate the enthusiasm which, without that inventive to expression, nevertheless led to outbursts of vociferous cheering for the National party, its leaders and its platform. At Darlinghurst, Mr. Holman spoke at an open-air meeting at the top of William-street, in support of Mr. Levy, and a noisy group made its presence conspicuous, and advertised its opposition by continuous cheering in the effort to engulf the Premier's voice. In this, however, it failed, without any more drastic measure than the removal by a policeman of a youth in his 'teens to the outskirts of the crowd. The Premier's itinerary continued to Paddington, where in the Town Hall he took the platform with Mr. T. H. Eslick, the Nationalist candidate. The large audience reinforced on the Premier's arrival by a secession from an open-air Labour gathering—sprang to its feet as Mr. Holman entered the hall, and there was cheering and waving of handkerchiefs for quite a minute. The next meeting was at Waverley, where the Nationalist candidate is Mr. C. W. Oakes. This was held in the open air at the corner of Ebley and Cowper streets, and again a desertion from an opposition meeting contributed a noisy element, which at the same time never succeeded in drowning the Premier's voice. There were many disadvantages which met the Premier at Newtown, where Mr. Hollis is standing in the interests of the National party. There was a large and hostile crowd, as well, of course, as a following of adherents of the National party; but the derisive yells which greeted the Premier spoke of organised disturbance. It was easy to pick them out; they were youths, were boys some of them, but they made it impossible for Mr. Holman to make himself heard from the high balcony from which he essayed to address the gathering. There was a blustering wind, too, unfriendly to open-air oratory. With a good-natured wave of the hand, therefore, Mr. Holman bade the Newtown gathering good-night, and proceeded to address his final meeting at Marrickville.

ST. GEORGE ELECTORATE.

Mr. Archdale Parkhill, general secretary of the National campaign executive, stated yesterday:—

A statement is being circulated in the St. George electorate calling upon Liberals to refrain from voting for Mr. Bagnall, the selected National candidate, on the grounds that Mr. Innes Noad had been previously selected as the Liberal candidate for the electorate. The statement is an anonymous one, and does not even bear a printer's imprint. Its intention is to endeavour to damage Mr. Bagnall's candidature, but electors of St. George are hardly likely to be influenced by such scurrilous and base methods. The facts are that Mr. Bagnall was selected as the endorsed National candidate with the unanimous approval of the local electorate conference, and the central council, in whose favour Mr. Innes Noad voluntarily and loyally retired. Mr. Noad has since actively supported Mr. Bagnall's campaign, and when he was not doing so has been engaged addressing meetings on behalf of other National candidates throughout the country. Mr. W. T. Willington, the president of the local electorate conference, and Mr. Ingham, the secretary, as well as Alderman Taylor, and practically all the erstwhile supporters of Mr. Noad, are now actively supporting Mr. Bagnall's candidature.

The St. George electorate, since the opening of the campaign, has exhibited one of the finest examples of harmonious consolidation of forces in the State, and the solid support being accorded Mr. Bagnall is unlikely to be influenced by the circulation of an anonymous canard of the nature referred to.

NATIONALIST CANDIDATE ASSAULTED.

BATHURST, Wednesday.

Mr. John Miller, National candidate for Bathurst, was assaulted at the close of his meeting at Perthville last night. During his address Mr. Miller was subjected to considerable interruption, and he threatened that unless the disorder ceased promptly he would have the offenders removed. Thereupon about thirty of the audience walked out, and Mr. Miller continued his speech in quietness.

When walking out of the hall later, Mr. Miller was accosted by a man, who made some remark, which led to the candidate and the other getting into holts. Then a third unknown man intervened and hit Mr. Miller a severe blow in the eye and made off. The police then intervened.

WOMEN WORKERS.

APPEAL BY MRS. HOLMAN.

Mrs. Holman, wife of the Premier, has issued an appeal to the women workers of New South Wales.

"This election," says Mrs. Holman, "affords the first opportunity accorded democratic and fair-minded men and women of entering a protest against the latter day violence and cruel domination of the P.L.L. executive, and against tyrannical insolence and brutal ingratitude shown to the builders-up of the people's movement—Messrs. Harris, M'Gowen, Watson, Holman, Lamond, Sinclair, Edden, and a host of other Labour giants who have made the workers' cause and the women's cause their own. It is to the untiring efforts of the humanitarians who have been expelled from the movement that was due the progressive enactments which have lightened the burdens of women workers, increased their wages, shortened their hours of toil, provided for their hours of sickness, convalescence, distress, and old age; taken away the testamentary power of selfish men to leave wife and children penniless; made provision for the health of their children from the very day of birth and throughout their school and student days, and opened wide the doors of free education to every boy and girl. The women of New South Wales will not, I think, imperil their liberties, and make bitter their lives by casting aside those who have stood to them through thick and thin, in favour of reckless, loud-tongued desperadoes.

"Do not these people who hate the national spirit and the national flag know that there is such a thing as a war raging? Do they never hear of the famine prices in Britain and in Europe? Do they ignorantly believe that a war unprecedented in its magnitude can shake the world without affecting Australia? Is this continent by some miracle to escape entirely the consequences of the dislocation of industry?

"Hardly a year ago I was in Broken Hill, and sturdy working men there told me with tears in their eyes that if it had not been for the Government's action in finding work on the railways for between 2000 and 3000 of the miners thrown out of work by the closing down of the local mines they, with their wives and dependents, would have been given over to starvation and misery.

"Women electors, study the question calmly and seriously, and I have no doubt that you will be marshalled in a solid phalanx on the 24th behind the National candidates."

HOW TO VOTE.

Polling hours are from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Any elector in the booth at 7 p.m. may vote after that hour.

To avoid a crush it is advisable to vote early. Women voters should go to the booths in the morning to avoid the rush and confusion which are customary later in the day.

All you do to the ballot paper (unless you are an absent voter) is to place a cross in the square opposite the name of the candidate you wish to vote for. Do not cross out the name of the man, or men, whom you oppose.

Do not sign the ballot paper or make any mark on it except the cross.

After ascertaining his number on the roll the elector enters the booth. He gives his number to the presiding officer at the table, and receives a ballot paper. He then retires to the voting box and places a cross against the name of the candidate for whom he desires to vote.

Having completed this task, he folds the paper and returns to the table, and deposits it in the ballot-box himself.

An absent voter does not insert a cross on the ballot paper handed to him. The paper handed to him obviously does not contain the name of any candidate. After the electoral district to which the absent voter belongs has been established he is handed a ballot paper upon which the electoral district has been written by the presiding officer. The elector then retires to the voting compartment and inserts, in his own handwriting, in a place set apart for it on the paper, the name of the candidate for whom he wishes to vote. All presiding officers for this purpose have a list of all candidates in all electorates. This is necessary in case an elector is not aware of the candidates who are contesting the district in which he is an elector. Unlike the ordinary ballot paper, an absent voter is not called upon to put a cross alongside the name of the candidate for whom he wishes to vote.

P.L.L. MEETINGS.

Mr. John Storey, leader of the P.L.L. party, wound up his campaign last night at Crow's Nest, having spoken at five open-air meetings in the course of the evening. He started at Rozelle, and then spoke at Balmain, this being the best attended of the meetings he addressed. The cold, dust-laden wind was not favourable for gatherings in the open air, but the speakers drew fairly large audiences, and the spirit of the crowds indicated that the Labour supporters are taking the election very seriously. Mr. Storey was accompanied on his tour by Mr. W. F. Finlayson, M.P. Mr. Storey's voice was showing the wear and tear of a hard campaign, but he lacked nothing in vigour, and was demonstratively greeted as he arrived at the various meetings. From Balmain he motored to the North Sydney Post-office, and his two later meetings were in the Willoughby electorate. At the Balmain meeting Messrs. Storey and Finlayson were preceded by Mr. Tudor, M.P., and Senator M'Dougall.

Other Federal politicians who spoke from Labour platforms last night were Mr. J. H. Catts, M.P., and Senators Gardiner and O'Keefe. The itineraries were so arranged that each of the meetings held in the metropolitan area were addressed by numerous speakers, many of the speeches occupying only a few minutes.

An optimistic spirit seemed to prevail among the audiences, and the feeling in P.L.L. circles is that while a victory can hardly be expected Labour may secure some 35 seats.

A MISUNDERSTANDING.

Mr. R. N. M'Lean, president of the Randwick Political Labour League, yesterday contradicted a statement made by Mr. David Storey at the Town Hall the previous night that "only a day or two ago the president of the Randwick Labour League had sent in his resignation to the P.L.L., and was now supporting the National party." This, said Mr. M'Lean, was not a fact; on the contrary, he had been working night and day for the P.L.L. candidate, Mr. R. E. O'Halloran.

Mr. David Storey stated yesterday that he recognised that there had been a mistake. It was the result of a misunderstanding on his part, and he held himself entirely responsible. If he had spoken in error, however, it was in good faith, and he regretted the mistake. It was a fact that a leading Labour man, Mr. Loyall, who was ex-president of another branch of the Labour league, had made speeches in his (Mr. Storey's) favour, and he was informed, and genuinely believed, that he was president of the Randwick branch.

THE EXPELLED LABOUR CANDIDATES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I would ask a little space in order to urge upon all those electors who have in the past voted for Labour to consider very seriously before they decide to cast out of the political world all those pioneers of their movement who conceived it in the best interests of their country to support the conscription question. It should be remembered that this issue (a Federal question) absolutely divided the Australian Labour party, and that what was considered a crime in New South Wales the unionists of Western Australia heartily supported. Most, if not all, of the disendorsed Labour men could, if they so wished, have thrown their consciences to the winds and fought against conscription, thereby making certain of another three years of office. We have often heard it said that our public men would take any turn to save their seats. Does not this occasion then present an opportunity to us of saying to these men, who in a time of danger did what they thought best for Australia, "You are not going to sacrifice your place in Parliament because you followed your honest convictions, even though the people turned down the question?" These men were elected to Parliament on a definite platform, which does not refer to conscription, and which they have been faithful to in all respects. On the other hand, it would certainly seem that the seven Labour members of the House of Representatives shattered the first plank dealing with the referendum when they voted against that most democratic proposal, viz., the submitting of the conscription question to the people. These expelled members have all worked hard for the Labour movement, and some of them have grown old in its service, and they are the champions of the workers' cause as much to-day as ever, despite the fact that they advocated one thing that the workers did not want. The record of their activities both in the House and at the Trades Hall is sufficient guarantee that they can be trusted when they pledge themselves to oppose any attempt to resurrect the conscription issue. In fine, can we not be sports at election time? The fight has been fought, the Antis have won, and the question settled for ever. Every vote should now go to the man who has proved his worth in the past, and who has had previous Parliamentary experience. We should solidly reject those candidates who have, through a spiteful and narrow-minded P.L.L., secured selection against these tried and true workers for labour. In conclusion, I submit that if these expelled Labour men are defeated it will be a distinct encouragement to all our politicians to become absolute hypocrites, with an utter disregard of their own consciences, will simply pander to the P.L.L., and descend to the lowest depths politically to secure endorsement. Labour voters would do well to pause and think, "Am I not politically bigoted if I am going to end the long and honourable careers of these men who, after all, exercised the same right as myself, viz., to follow their convictions?"

I am, etc.,
DEMOCRAT.

OUR LADS AT THE FRONT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Mr. John Storey in his speeches in this campaign is very fond of using the expression "the party I have the honour of leading," one would think by this he had some doubts about the honour, and was trying by frequent repetition to make himself believe there was some truth in it. What honour can there be attached to leading a party who are, to say the least, tainted with disloyalty, and who in this life and death struggle, when our very existence as a nation is at stake, stand idly by and not only do nothing themselves to help win the war, but prevent others by threats of expulsion from the Labour movement from taking an active part in persuading men to volunteer for the front.

The motion to that effect was passed by a majority of the P.L.L. executive, but when they found it would weaken their forces too much to enforce it, they shelved it for the time, and for the time only, for if they are returned to Parliament they will revive it and do something more drastic with it. It is to men of this stamp that Mr. John Storey and his party have handed themselves over to be bound hand and foot.

Think of this you fathers and mothers and relatives of the boys at the front. Their lives depend on reinforcements to relieve them from too long a stretch in the trenches. Yet these men would withhold that succour, and penalise those who would send it. Yet they dare ask the relatives of these brave lads to vote for them to place them in a position where it is possible to do them even a greater injury. There can only be one answer to this. No man or woman who has any love for their boys in the trenches but will consign them to—well, oblivion. They will vote for men who are loyal to their country, and loyal to their countrymen in the trenches. The latter brave men have proved themselves worthy to be the fathers of the future citizens of this great country, a country made great by the sacrifice of some of her bravest sons, and whom these stay-at-homes, dead to every noble impulse, dead to everything except their own selfish ends, would leave to their fate.

I have worked and voted Labour for over 30 years; but I'll never vote for a candidate endorsed by the P.L.L. while these men are members of it, and I could name a few more life-long Labour men who are of the same opinion. I am, etc.,

SOLDIERS' WIVES.

HELP AND SYMPATHY.

"When a woman has a man away at the war, she often wants to talk to another woman."

There is a volume of human sympathy in the words quoted, which were spoken by Dr. Mary Booth during the course of a chat to a "Herald" representative about the work of the "Centre for Soldiers' Wives and Mothers." Dr. Booth is the president of this organisation which, though little advertised, has been, and is, doing work of the most commendable character amongst the womenfolk of our Australian soldiers abroad. In the multitude of organisations, which have sprung from the patriotic impulses of those who are compelled to remain at home, the "Centre for Soldiers' Wives and Mothers" fills a niche which is peculiarly its own, and for which the results of its efforts have shown there was a pressing need.

It may be, however, that there are many soldiers' wives and mothers who are not yet aware of the existence of this organisation. That is its only object in seeking publicity. It wants to help, and it has established machinery which is at the disposal of those womenfolk of our soldiers who require help and sympathy. Consisting solely of women, many of whom are relations of soldiers themselves, the organisation exists to cheer, and advise, and help the lonely, needy women who are left behind while their men shoulder their share of the burden of the world's great war. The head office—the chief "centre"—of the organisation is on the sixth floor of Eldon-chambers, 92B Pitt-street, nearly opposite the General Post Office. Established in the early days of the war, the activities of this association have grown with the needs of the moment, until there are now 18 district "centres," to which soldiers' wives and mothers are given the most cordial invitation. The patriotic women who give their time to this work are out to help and advise and sympathise with the hundred and one difficulties and worries which occur in the lives of the women whose men are away at the war. They visit the homes of soldiers' wives and mothers; they entertain them at social gatherings; they direct them, with cards of introduction, straight to the offices of those who can settle their difficulties and lighten their burdens. There are pay-office troubles, maybe; there are claims—legitimate claims—on any one of the numerous funds established for the amelioration of temporary distress. There may be an immediate need of medical attention; there may be troubles over pension payments, or an urgent need for fresh-air outings. All these things, and many others are the particular care of the centre for soldiers' wives and mothers. In all these matters there are vexatious delays sometimes, and it is the object of the "centre" to reduce them to a minimum—to prevent them altogether. Only the other day a soldier's wife who had been ordered into hospital wrote to the secretary (Miss E. B. Booth) and said: "Will you please come to see me. Tell them you are from the 'Soldiers' Wives,' and they will let you see me."

The "centre" is in close and constant touch with the Pension Office, the Pay Office, the Lord Mayor's Fund, War Chest, State Children's Relief Board, Fresh Air League, Surgical Aid Society, convalescent homes, maternity homes, Voluntary Workers' Association, and the Red Cross Information Bureau. "Soldiers' dependents who are meeting with difficulties are invited to write or call," runs the card of introduction to this organisation, and it sums up in a few words the splendid work which these unassuming, self-sacrificing women are doing. At many of the district branches which have been brought into existence simply because of the pressure of local needs there exist sewing and knitting circles and entertainment committees. Quite recently Dr. Mary Booth sent a telegram to one of her district secretaries: "Get 22 soldiers' children together; harbour excursion to-morrow, at 10 o'clock." The children were got together, and the outing will be remembered for some time. So the work goes on. Help and sympathy, from women to women—that is the basis of the whole scheme. Some of the methods pursued are set out in the following suggestions to district centres:—

Visiting soldiers' families, and personally inviting them to the meetings. Noting the casualty lists, and calling on the bereaved.

Working for Babies' Kit Society.—This work is much needed. It educates young mothers and girls to make nice and sensible baby clothes, and is economical. The Baby Kit Society provides cut-out garments.

A Knitting Class.—The War Chest provides wool if necessary. We want hundreds more knitters. A special appeal has recently been made to the women of England, and in one place, an emergency, three whole-time days were spent to fulfil the requirements.

Some Music and the Library Lending.—These cement the centre together, and give an opportunity for young girls to come into its atmosphere of sisterhood. They also help to keep up the brightness and courage of the wives and mothers, and so maintain a wholesome home life which will keep the men contented when they return.

To attract the girls by evening meetings for making baby clothes and war chest knitting.

The district centres for soldiers' wives and mothers are situated as under:—

Head Centre.—Eldon-chambers, 92B Pitt-street, city (Misses Booth and Wallack).

CATTLE SEIZURE CASE.

BRISBANE, Friday.

The actions brought by Laura Duncan and Fitzroy Trotman against the Queensland Government in connection with the seizure of cattle were concluded in the Supreme Court this afternoon. The jury gave a verdict for plaintiff for £2900. Mr. Feez moved for judgment for plaintiff for £2900 and costs. Mr. Woolcock, for the Crown, formally intimated that he intended to move for a non-suit, or in the alternative for judgment for defendant. Notwithstanding the findings of the jury, his Honor adjourned the argument on the motion for judgment until Monday.

METHODIST CONFERENCE POSTPONED.

Owing to the Federal election falling on May 5 next, the President of the General Conference of the Methodist Church of Australasia (Rev. G. Brown, D.D.) has authorised the postponement of the conference from May 10 to May 17. The sessions are to be held in Melbourne, and are expected to last about 12 days. It is four years since the last conference was held.

WESTERN AUSTRALIAN PARLIAMENT.

PERTH, Friday.

The Land Amendment Bill has been passed. The maximum area of a pastoral lease was fixed at 1,000,000 acres.

Mr. Johnston, ex-Speaker, was, by resolution of the Legislative Assembly, severely censured in respect of a speech reported in the "Southern Argus" regarding a party meeting at which he was nominated for the Speaker-

LETTER FROM LIEUTENANT CARMICHAEL.

Following is an extract from a letter received by Mr. Holman from Lieut. A. C. Carmichael:—

"Wandsworth Hospital, Feb. 5.—I was wounded on Jan. 21; got to Boulogne on the 24th; was operated on on the 25th—they cut some bits off my eyes, quite a minor operation—and landed in London in my pyjamas (at least, hospital pyjamas) at the end of January. I can see pretty well now, but my hearing is heavy, and I cannot see to read; but I am improving in that respect each day. I expect to be able to join up in about a month. I had rather a bad time of it the last week at the front, as we were very close to Fritz's lines—within 50 yards. I was fortunate to escape so lightly, for they gave us a hell of a time that afternoon, and our casualties were heavy considering the number of men we had. It took me nearly four hours to get down to the first dressing station after I was wounded, and it was so cold. I don't know where I shall be posted after I get back, but I hope it will be with the —th again."

PROPOSED BUTTER POOL.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Senator Russell, Minister in charge of foodstuffs, replying to a deputation to-day, stated that there was no intention on the part of the Government to abolish price-fixing.

The deputation, which was composed of representatives of the butter trade in the various States, asked the Minister to do away with price-fixing as far as butter was concerned, and also to consider the formation of a butter pool, so that the requirements of each State might be met during the coming winter. The deputation urged that, in the event of the acceptance of its second request, a central committee of five, chosen from the advisory committees of the States, with a Government nominee, should be appointed to form and control a pool, into which Queensland, New South Wales, and Victoria should place 60,000 boxes on an equitable basis. It was stated that Queensland's share should be 30,000 boxes, while New South Wales should contribute 20,000 boxes, and Victoria 10,000 boxes.

In telling the deputation that there was no chance of price-fixing being abolished at present, Senator Russell stated that if the deputation could bring him evidence that the proclaimed price was unfair, an investigation would be made. The proposal to form a pool, however, was a sound one, and he would make a recommendation to the Cabinet for its adoption.

FEDERAL ELECTIONS.

At a largely-attended meeting of delegates from the northern end of the Illawarra Federal electorate, held at Bulli, it was decided to ask Mr. J. C. Watson to contest the Illawarra electorate at the forthcoming Federal elections in opposition to Mr. G. M. Burns. Many of the delegates expressed the opinion that Mr. Watson would be the best man to fight for the seat.

PERTH, Thursday.

After 10 days' conference, the Liberal and Country parties, while they resent being bound to support a compact entered into without their cognisance, have, rather than run the risk of having Tudorites returned, decided to support the National Coalition Government and its candidates at the forthcoming election. The following telegram has been despatched to the Prime Minister:—"On patriotic grounds only we undertake to support the retiring Senators, and have accepted Mr. Gregory as candidate for Dampier."

BRISBANE, Friday.

At a meeting of the National Political Council Messrs. T. W. Crawford, S. S. Foll, and Mat. Reid were selected as candidates for the Senate. Mr. G. H. Mackay was selected as the candidate for Lilley in the House of Representatives.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The three Ministerial candidates for the Victorian Senate seats, Lieut.-Colonel Bolton, Messrs. George Fairbairn and W. Plain, M.L.A., will be present at the opening of the election campaign of the Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) at Bendigo on Tuesday next. The occasion will also serve for the three Senate candidates to place their views before the electors. Mr. Hughes is expected to speak for about an hour and a half, and will be followed by the Senate candidates in turn.

BROKEN HILL, Thursday.

A ballot of the P.L.L. to select a candidate to contest the Barrier seat in the Federal elections resulted:—Mr. Considine, 534 votes; Mr. O'Reilly, 330; and Mr. Barnett, 231.

FILCHING A PARK.

A year or two ago the Government resumed the estate of the late Mr. Fitzwilliam Wentworth, at Vaucluse, and named it Nielsen Park. It is one of the most beautiful spots in Sydney Harbour, and is largely patronised by the general public. The Bottle and Glass section of this resumption was termed the dress circle of the harbour during the visit of the American fleet. Before the present resumption took place the trustees of the Wentworth Estate cut up this portion into allotments, and the land was sold at auction, but the whole of the blocks were resumed, along with the remainder of the estate, and vested in the trustees of the park. The Government has been warmly applauded for securing such a beautiful heritage of water frontages for the use of the people for all time. But now, for some unknown reason, the Minister for Lands has ordered the withdrawal of one allotment in the Bottle and Glass section from the park, and this block, with 60ft frontage, will be submitted to public auction next Wednesday, at the Lands Office. A privately-owned allotment in the middle of a park—a position created by the Government that resumed the land for park purposes—is a most unheard-of thing, and certainly calls for a halt before it is too late.

CLOCKS TO BE PUT BACK.

All public clocks throughout the Commonwealth are to be put back one hour at 2 a.m. on Sunday. Standard time will thus be reverted to. The simplest method will be to alter the timepieces before retiring on Saturday night. The clocks will again be advanced one hour in September unless the Daylight Saving Act is repealed. There have been so many protests against the reform that the repeal of the Act will not cause surprise.

Mail and express trains shown in public timetable to leave any station after 2 a.m. will, on Sunday morning, leave one hour ahead of the times there indicated, and arrive at their destination correspondingly earlier. The tram service has been so arranged on Sunday as to connect up with the trains affected by the alteration. Additional early morning trams will be run for the convenience of passengers arriving by mail trains at Central Railway Station.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

At the conclusion of the first period of daylight saving in England a committee was appointed to inquire into the social and economical results of the scheme, with a view to considering whether it was advisable to re-introduce it. It is probable that a similar course will be followed by the Federal authorities.

ST. MARY'S APPROACH.

PORTION OF STREET RESUMED.

A notification appears in the Government "Gazette" that the Government has resumed part of Cathedral-street, in order that a suitable approach may be given to St. Mary's Cathedral.

In this connection the following letter has been addressed to the Lord Mayor by Archbishop Kelly:—"My dear Lord Mayor,—Your word of welcome news per 'Gazette' calls for our cordial thanks and blessings. Our present and future generation will remember your interested and efficient official co-operation in thus securing to our mother-church a dignified approach to its majestic front—at the same time securing to Sydney the admiration of other States and nations. With every good wish, gratefully yours.

"(Sgd.) *MICHAEL, Archbishop of Sydney."

POSTAL CONFERENCE.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

The Australian Commonwealth Post and Telegraph Officers' Association conference met again this morning. The following resolutions were carried unanimously:—That the Victorian telegraphists who went to Queensland for three years be transferred to Victoria; that on the Monday following January 26, or on Monday, should it occur on that day, each year, the post and telegraph offices be closed to enable the postal and telegraph officers to enjoy the holiday; that appeals be lodged and heard by the Appeal Board, whether approval has been given by the Governor-General before or after the cause of such appeal; that a superannuation scheme be prepared; that the speed tests be abolished.

ALLEGED UNEMPLOYED.

So much has been said in connection with unemployment as a result of the stoppage of Government undertakings that the superintendent of the State Labour Branch was instructed to report fully upon the unemployed question.

Some time ago the Premier directed that employment should be found for the men concerned in various parts of the country as bush workers on land which had been set apart as soldiers' settlement blocks. Yesterday the superintendent reported that 250 men who had previously made application for this class of work were notified that the work was ready. Eighty-four of them failed to respond. Later a number of men were required for Tarcutta. Ninety-six men applied for this work, and of these were asked to call at the State Labour Branch on March 12 to make final arrangements in the matter of their employment. Only 38 of the 96 presented themselves: 15 accepted, 6 declined, one stated he was sick, four replied that they had obtained other employment, and 12 stated they preferred to wait for work closer to the city. Of the 96 men who applied for the work 58 failed to present themselves at the time appointed. Ten men, a ganger, and a cook were required for work on the Ocean Estate, consisting of suckering, digging out rabbits, ring-barking, and burning-off. Forty-three men were notified by circular that the work was available, and asked to present themselves on March 20. Only six of the 43 responded; three, including a ganger, accepted, and three refused. Subsequently four other men presented themselves, making in all seven acceptances out of a total of 43 men notified.

Commenting upon these facts, the superintendent concludes that work must be more plentiful in the metropolitan area than is generally surmised, otherwise it is difficult to understand why men should remain unemployed where they can obtain employment under conditions which ensure free railway tickets, free tents and blankets, and a promise of three months' work. He submits that, in so far as it affects unskilled labourers, the unemployed trouble in the metropolitan area is of a trivial character, and he recommends that in the event of further men being required for work in connection with soldiers' settlements the men should be obtained from the district nearest to the location of the work.

A MONTH'S RESPITE.

PERTH, Friday.

The Labour Congress has endorsed the decision of the Labour Federation executive to give Labour members who left the party a month's notice to return to the party.

AUSTRALIANS AT BAPAUME.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) stated to-day that he had received the following cable message, dated March 20, from Lieut.-General Birdwood:—"I know you will be glad to hear that in taking Bapaume, and in the previous and subsequent fighting, our casualties were very small indeed."

EMPIRE CONFERENCE

MESSAGE FROM MR. LLOYD GEORGE.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) to-day received the following cable message from the British Prime Minister (Mr. Lloyd George) regarding his absence from the Imperial Conference:—

"The Imperial War Cabinet, at its first meeting to-day, desired me to express great regret that it had not the advantage of your presence at these councils of the Empire, and its sense of the very serious loss to its deliberation which the absence of the Australian representatives entailed."

STRIKE IN SCOTLAND.

A number of Clyde strikers have returned. The engineers will hold meetings to-day to discuss resumption on the basis of Mr. Hodges guarantee.

A cablegram in yesterday's issue stated:—The Press Bureau announces that Mr. Arthur Henderson (member of the War Council) has written to the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, deploring a strike on the Tyne, which is interrupting the supply of munitions to the army and navy, and delaying the guns for the mercantile marine, which is running very grave risks from submarines. He urgently requests the immediate resumption of work, upon which he will arrange a committee of production, which will hear the case on March 26.

IMPERIAL WAR CABINET.

LONDON, March 22.

The Imperial War Cabinet met to-day. Much interest centres in the Indian appearance and at the War Council. India's representatives are not likely to be mere appanages.

DEALING WITH SPIES.

Albert Saunders and Carl Wunnenberg, who were charged in New York with sending spies to England, have been sentenced to two years' imprisonment and fined £500. They pleaded guilty.

RECRUITING.

SPORTSMEN'S BATTALION.

The recruiting rally in Martin-place yesterday was largely in the nature of a special appeal for volunteers for the Sportsmen's Battalion, the object of which is to bring together those sportsmen who desire to enlist, and to provide them with an opportunity not only to train and embark, but also to go to the front as one compact unit. Stirring appeals for recruits for this battalion and for other units were made by Lieutenant C. B. Taylor, M.C., whose exhibition of war souvenirs was of special interest; [illegible] and Seaborne, who spoke in behalf of the Sportsmen's Battalion; and D. F. Boll, Miss Grace Scoble, and Sergeants G. A. [illegible], W. B. Browne, and F. Bohm.

About a score of men, including a number of returned soldiers, came forward as a result of the rally. Lieutenants Seaborne and Diamond hope that every sportsman who is eligible for service will help to make the battalion a representative one.

BROKEN HILL, Friday.

Four more recruits for the A.I.F. left Broken Hill for Adelaide last night. Having a send-off, Mr. J. H. Hebbard referred to the number of enlistments from Broken Hill. He said that he had been informed by Lieut. Donohoe that during the present recruiting campaign Broken Hill had enlisted the nearest approach to its quota of any [illegible] centre in the Commonwealth.

COMMONWEALTH WAR LOANS.

CERTIFICATES AND STAMPS.

The Federal Treasurer is endeavouring to eke out the last war loan by the introduction of war certificates and war stamps, after the British plan. It is to be hoped that they prove a great success, though, perhaps, more is to be expected from the former than from the latter. The war stamps scheme is probably more suitable to a population poorer than are the majority of Australians. However, if a few hundreds of thousands can be collected in this way so much the better, for every pound is wanted. Besides, it is better that a pound should be saved rather than that a pound that has been already saved should be placed at the disposal of the Treasurer. It is precisely for this reason that a million sterling subscribed by the public is better than a million sterling subscribed by a bank or other financial institution. The former leads to actual saving, the latter does not mean that a single additional penny has been saved. These are days for individual saving as well as for public economy. The prospectus of the war certificate scheme appears elsewhere, where details will be found. In effect, the public are asked to subscribe as much ready money as they can, and are promised £1 back in three years' time for every 17s 6d at present subscribed. This is not precisely, but is roughly 4½ per cent. compounded for the period. So £875 subscribed to-day would entitle the lender to £1000 at the end of the three-year period. It is hoped that savings associations will spring up all over the country, who will do propaganda work, and will actually facilitate the sale of the certificates, as well as of the war stamps which are shortly to be issued. These stamps will be distinctive war stamps, but why the ordinary postage stamps are not yet being requisitioned for the purpose we cannot see. Accounts between the Treasurer and the P.M.G. could readily be readjusted, say, once a month, and the ordinary postage stamp would be much more easily obtainable than the war stamps. This is a reform that might well be commended to the Treasurer, who, doubtless, is wishful to do all in his power to make the scheme a success. The Commonwealth is now expending war loans at the rate of four and a half millions a month, or 54 millions a year. It is highly desirable that this money should be raised locally. The last loan will roughly carry us through till the close of the financial year on June 30 next.

* Subject to rebate of ½d per lb. † Australian standard.

These prices are f.o.b. Melbourne, Adelaide, Sydney, Newcastle, and producing centres, and the usual additions are to be made for other ports. Prices for currants, sultanas, and lexias (but not seeded raisins) are subject to a rebate of ½d per lb, subject to the retailer not selling fruit of any non-associated grower.

So far the wholesale grocers have not ordered at all up to their requirements. Their co-operative company places them in an exceedingly strong position. They will not have the fear before them of competitors over-reaching them. Each grocer knows his requirements. He informs the association. The total is made up, and that much and no more will be purchased from the growers' co-operative society. If there is a carry-over at the end of the year, it will be on the hands of the growers, and not of the grocers.

Reports as to the crop are contradictory, especially as regards the currant crop, to which damage has been done by the rain. It will probably be the end of next week before any certain news can be obtained.

A little fruit—currants and sultanas—from Yanco is on the market. It is unassociated fruit, but so far is not regarded as a serious competitor by the Dried Fruits Association. The Yanco fruit is of good quality, but is unevenly graded.

THE MARKETS.

Practically the only heavy metals coming in quantity from Great Britain just now are tin-plates. All other metal goods are coming from Japan. The arrivals thence are satisfactory, but merchants find that stocks on hand suit the market requirements very well. Stocks are being found in most unexpected quarters.

Oils yesterday had a fair distributing business. There was a better wholesale inquiry for whitelead, which was very firm at £70 for Champion's, in cwts. Linseed oil was distributing at 6/2 for raw and 6/4 for boiled.

There was no tea auction yesterday. A fair shipment of Javas was put on the market, and about 3000 packages changed hands. They were rather bright teas, and were taken because of the high cost of Ceylons. The mail brought samples of Ceylons, some of which showed prohibitive costs. Very little was sold. No more Ceylon teas will arrive for a month or six weeks.

LONDON METAL QUOTATIONS.

OVERSEA MARKET CABLES.

DAIRY PRODUCE PRICES.

LONDON, March 22.

The Produce Exchange has decided not to alter maximum prices before April 13. The butter market is idle, with merely a hand-to-mouth business. Buyers are holding off, expecting that prices will further recede, as it is estimated that half a million boxes of Australian and 200,000 boxes of New Zealand butter are afloat, and these are expected to arrive within 10 weeks.

Quotations, which are largely nominal, are:—Choicest Australian, salted, 200/ to 204/; unsalted, 196/ to 200/. New Zealand, salted, 210/ to 212/; unsalted, 204/ to 208/.

Cheese is firm and unchanged.

SUGAR.

Standard granulated sugar is quoted at 41/7½.

CEREALS.

DAIRY.

EGG MARKET FIRM.

The recent rise in new-laid eggs was well maintained yesterday, and supplies cleared freely at from 1/10 to 2/. Case eggs still suffered from Adelaide competition, but the increased price of new-laids tended to improve their position. For South Coast and railways 1/3 and 1/4 was the general rate, while 1/5 was realised for occasional choice lots. Fresh Adelaides were reported firm at 1/1. Duck eggs were higher, new-laids making 1/10, though there was some difficulty in clearing case eggs of this description at 1/2. Orders were plentiful for bacon and hams, and supplies were adequate. Cheese, both loaf and tinned, moved off freely, and lard and honey sold equally well.

Thursday's "Argus" contained the following paragraph:—"Victoria has carried the burden of supplying the western States with butter at an artificially low price during the spring and early autumn, and Victorian merchants, producers, and the price commissioners have been concerned as to the attitude of the northern States in regard to the winter requirements of the southern States. Of course, it would be to the liking of the producers of New South Wales and Queensland if they could export their surplus out of Australia or secure the equivalent of the English markets in the southern States. The whole matter is, however, regulated by the price commissioners. A conference of representatives of the butter advisory committees of all the States except Western Australia was held in Melbourne this week, and a committee was appointed to go into the whole matter of the winter supplies of butter for the Commonwealth."

Quotations were:—

RAILWAY MARKET.

A moderate supply of forage was forward at Alexandria yesterday. The attendance of buyers was good and competition was keen. Grain chaff was well sought after, and values as a result were firmer. Prime wheaten brought the high price of 5/, while medium changed hands at from 4/ upwards. Oaten chaff was disposed of in three cases at 4/6, and inferior and medium also sold well. Lucerne chaff was scarce, but lucerne hay was plentiful at from 3/6 to 4/10. In the potato section fair supplies were at hand, but values were again weak.

It has been decided that, owing to the State elections, no sales will be held at Alexandria to-morrow morning.

DEATH OF MR. J. NIMMO.

The death occurred recently at Katoomba of Mr. Joseph Nimmo, a prominent resident of the Blue Mountains for many years. He was born in Lanarkshire, Scotland, in 1851. After apprenticeship to the carpentry and joinery trade, he became foreman at Hugh Miller's works, the construction of an overhead bridge on the Clyde, and other works, being carried out during his time there. He came to Australia at the age of 28, and was immediately appointed head carpenter at the Lithgow ironworks, and subsequently acquired hotels at Hartley Vale and Katoomba. After his retirement he successfully speculated in property. He took an active interest in public affairs, and was a prominent Mason, being presented, in 1882, by the chapter with one of the most costly R.A. jewels in the State.

MUSWELLBROOK MARKETS.

Tindale and Co., with Weaver and Perry, Ltd., report having held a record clearing sale, account Mr. H. R. Flanders, Riverview dairy herd, horses, pigs, plant, etc., on 21st instant.

There was a very large and representative attendance of buyers from Gunnedah, Inverell, Tamworth, Singleton, and Upper Hunter districts, who competed freely for all lines offered. The 26 cows in milk made the fine average of £17/3/4, while the 38, 18 months to 3 years old heifers, averaged £13/2/9; poddies made from £3/10/ to £6. The Darbalara 4-year-old milking Shorthorn bull, 60 guineas.

Pigs also met good competition. Sow and litter of 8, £15/2/; brood sow, Tamworth-bred, £8/7/6 to £8/15/; about 50 others at top rates. An entire clearance of everything was effected, excepting about 30 tons of lucerne and oaten hay.—Advt.

MINING.

CONSOLS EASIER.

BROKEN HILL COAL SHORTAGE.

A moderate turnover in mining scrip was reported on the Stock Exchange yesterday. All sections were patronised, and a firm market ruled generally. Copper stocks had solid support. Holders of C.S.A. and Morgans wanted advanced rates. Sales of Hampdens and Lyells were effected at increased prices.

The general trend of Westonias was downward, and the "bears" were evidently at work on Consols (con.), which closed 1/ weaker at 14/6. Deeps and Centrals also eased. Buyers of Commodores were on the market at an increased figure of 5/3 on receipt of a report to the effect that the 190ft level had been advanced 12ft, paying 14/, and driving on E section of the lode had proceeded 12ft over 4ft, with a value of 48/.

Barriers were on a better footing, and values were firm. The coal shortage is not expected to last much longer. During the recent coal strike Barrier companies' stocks were reduced, and owing to shortage of shipping supplies have not been fully replenished. It is not expected that the stoppage of the Central mine will last longer than a week. The Sulphide Corporation and the Junction are the only companies seriously affected. The Proprietary Company has sufficient coal in hand to bridge the shortage.

Malayan tin enterprises were stronger. Ratruts and Laruts recovered, though Trongs were still weak. The local Carpathians declined to 2/9, but Vegetable Creeks hardened to 4/10.

NOTES.

The Tyrconnell Gold Mines cleaned up 210 tons of ore for 309oz.

The value of the copper produced at the Mount Morgan mine, Queensland, now exceeds double that of the gold output. During 1916 the gold produced was valued at £427,037, while the copper was worth £886,936, the value of the total product in gold, silver, and copper being £1,333,351. Towards the end of the year experiments were commenced, but not completed, with a view of using coal instead of wood as fuel in the rotary furnaces. If they prove successful a considerable economy will be effected. Further improvements in the concentrating plant resulted in increased recoveries of metals, and the mill, likewise improved, is now able to treat about 550 tons, which are daily supplied from the mine.

A meeting of shareholders and speculators interested in the amalgamation of the Bendigo mining companies was held at Bendigo on Wednesday night. The details of the amalgamation and the future working policy of the promoters were explained, and general satisfaction was expressed at the proposed scheme. The amalgamation embraces 36 mining companies, and is to be capitalised to the extent of £500,000 in two million shares of 5/ each.

STRIKE AT C.S.A. MINE.

The engine-drivers at the C.S.A. mine, Cobar, struck work on Thursday night. They gave only 10 minutes' notice. All mining and smelting operations have stopped. It is understood that the engine-drivers refuse to work on the mine, while a certain foreman, a member of the union, is employed.

NEW CARS DEPRECIATE FROM 33 to 50 per cent. the first year. A good second-hand Car, with a written guarantee, bought at the right price, is a profitable investment, that, after years of service, shows only a low rate of depreciation, and is a much better proposition than a cheap new car. We have sold hundreds of cars all over the country, and can refer you to satisfied clients who are using cars purchased from us up to 10 years ago. We have a number of the leading makes of cars that we have taken as part payment for new 6-cylinder cars at very reasonable prices. Some of these cars are only soiled. MITCHELL

INSPECT THIS FAMOUS CAR

When you examine the Mitchell closely you will form a new conception of what a fine car ought to be.

You will find embodied in the Mitchell all the things that mean the utmost in efficiency, convenience, comfort.

You have heard of the Mitchell's feat in going from Sydney to Jenolan Caves over the Blue Mountains sealed all the way on top gear, under Press observation. That performance shows unequalled efficiency—no other make of car has ever paralleled it.

The newest Mitchell has been given 100 per cent. over-strength. This will make it, it is believed, a lifetime car. Already, under the old standard of strength, seven Mitchells have averaged 175,000 miles each—equal to 30 years of ordinary service. You see that you can be sure of unlimited endurance.

It has thirty-one extra features which other cars omit. These extras cost you nothing—they are paid for by the savings effected by the efficiency methods of that genius of car-builders, John W. Bate.

Call and see the Mitchell—you'll get a new standard by which to judge fine cars.

ALL OVER BUICK. TH'. COUNTRY.

Singleton, Feb. 28, 1917.

McINTOSH AND SONS,—

Dear Sirs,—I have much pleasure in stating that the six-cylinder Buick Car I purchased 10 months ago, has given the very greatest satisfaction. My daughter has driven it ever since, with never a stop and never a puncture, on very bad roads.

I must also add that driving in the Buick is like gliding through space. Yours faithfully,

(Sgd.), JAS. R. BALL.

DO YOU NOTICE THE NUMBER OF BUICKS GETTING ABOUT?

There are plenty of makes of cars about the Buick price offering for Sale.
Many are advertised more elaborately than Buicks, yet probably as many if not more Buicks are sold than the combined total of these others.
It is certain purchasers have examined the other makes before making their purchase.
Therefore, it is evident, most people have come to one conclusion—which means, the majority of people do not make the one mistake—nor are all poor judges.
Even if they were poor judges—their error would soon be discovered, and Buick would be counted out, as they were introduced in 1907, and the six in 1915.
Most makes of cars introduced when Buick first came here are now dead or nearly off the market.

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CAR.

A GENEROUS MANUFACTURING POLICY.

EVERYTHING FIRST-CLASS.
CONSTANT ENDEAVOUR TO GO FORWARD.

THE MAKERS OF THE DODGE BROTHERS' CAR ARE THEIR OWN SEVEREST CRITICS. IT IS NOT THEIR POLICY TO WAIT UNTIL THE PUBLIC ASKS FOR A BETTER CAR FROM THEM. THEIR AIM IS TO ANTICIPATE, TO TRAVEL AHEAD, TO GIVE EVEN MORE THAN IS EXPECTED.
NO MATERIAL, NO PART, AND NO ACCESSORY ARE BARRED FROM DODGE BROTHERS' CAR, BECAUSE THEY ARE TOO HIGH PRICED.
THE ONLY QUESTION ASKED, THE ONLY PROOF DEMANDED, IS ITS GOODNESS.
WHEN THE CAR WAS DESIGNED ITS PARTS WERE CHOSEN ACCORDING TO QUALITY, AND WITH A TOTAL DISREGARD TO PRICE.
THAT POLICY STILL HOLDS GOOD, ONLY IT HAS BEEN INTENSIFIED.

HUDSON SUPER-SIX.
THE FINE CAR OF TO-DAY.
A NEW MOTOR PRINCIPLE.

SECURES REMARKABLE RESULTS.

IF YOU BUY A FINE CAR THIS YEAR THERE ARE NEW FACTS TO CONSIDER. HUDSON ENGINEERS HAVE DISCOVERED A NEW MOTOR PRINCIPLE. ITS NEWNESS IS ATTESTED BY PATENT, AND IT ADDS 80 PER CENT. TO EFFICIENCY.
OLD-TYPE MOTORS, OF A SIMILAR SIZE, DELIVERED AT THEIR BEST 42 HORSE-POWER.
THE HUDSON SUPER-SIX, DELIVERED 76 HORSE-POWER—AN INCREASE OF 80 PER CENT.
THE RESULT IS A CAR WHICH OUT-PERFORMS ANY OTHER STOCK CAR IN THE WORLD.
THIS VAST RESERVE POWER SHOWS IN QUICK RESPONSE. IT SHOWS IN FLEXIBILITY, IN SPEED.
NO SITUATION TAXES THE HUDSON SUPER-SIX. IT IS RARELY RUN AT MORE THAN HALF-LOAD.
THAT MEANS FUEL ECONOMY, AND A LONG-LIVED MOTOR.
THE HUDSON IS A PROVED SUCCESS.

JEFFERY "4."

We have just received advice from one of our clients that the JEFFERY 7-Passenger Car, purchased by him in August last, has run over 12,000 miles on Country Hire Work—the only repairs necessary being the setting up of one spring. This car has averaged 8000 miles to a set of tyres.
The JEFFERY is handsomely designed, well finished, and beautifully sprung, the rear springs being 52 inches long and 2 inches wide. The Touring body is very commodious, and is fitted with two disappearing seats.
The engine and chassis parts are very accessible, and in addition to the Electric Self-starter is equipped with a HIGH TENSION MAGNETO.

PAIGE

This is a copy of one of a number of letters we receive from time to time from users of "Paige" Cars, who have had 1, 2, 3, 4 years of satisfactory service from their "Paige" Cars:—

24 Holdsworth-street, Newtown, [illegible]

Dear Sirs,—It affords me much pleasure in stating that my "Paige" Car has done many thousands of miles, and has given me every satisfaction during the last three years. My last tour, which I finished last month, was down the South Coast with six of us, all heavy weights. We did over 800 miles over the Jamberoo Mts., Brown Mts., Cambewarra Mts., Tilba Tilba Mts., and through some very rough country between these mountains. The engine ran perfectly, without the slightest hitch, and we are all well pleased with the performance of the Car, although now three years old. As you know, except for broken springs and a ball race I have spent nothing on repairs during this period.—Yours faithfully,

J. [illegible]

Our sales of "Paige" Cars have been built up by good results to the purchasers after 1, 2, 3, 4 years of dependable service.

"Paige" Prices:—2-3 Passenger, £465; 5-6 Passenger, £475; 7-8 Passenger, £560.

Just a little extra and you get a "Paige." Write for Catalogue. We have a number of other makes for "Paige" Cars by owners who wish to sell their present cars. Some have had very little use. They include Fiat, Renault, Talbot, Buick, Overland, Hupmobile, Brasier, Studebaker, Darracq, Cadillac, Wolseley, etc. Call in and see them.

ELECTRIC LIGHT AND SELF-STARTER.

Here is a truly magnificent Car. It is undoubtedly America's very latest production. We have all kinds of "sporting-model" motor cars, but when you see the J.B.C. you will agree with us that it is easily the smartest looking car that ever came to Sydney. The sample car we recently advertised was quickly sold, but we now have another one to offer.

The engine is 20-h.p., with 4 cylinders, having a detachable head, and you will marvel at its pulling power. We guarantee that this car will touch 40 miles per hour with the greatest of ease, and it is beautifully sprung, the rear springs being full cantilever type.

The J.B.C. has a full-floating rear axle, a very long wheel-base, and 5 detachable wire wheels.

The man who is responsible for the beautiful design of the body must be imbued with a most artistic temperament. Never before have we seen a car of such attractive appearance.

The engine is furnished with Zenith carburettor, Dyneto Electric Light, Self-starter, and Ignition System, and the steering wheel is 17in in diameter, with electric horn button in centre. The wheel-base is [illegible], and the track 56in. The tyres are 30 x 3½, the cylinder dimensions are 3⅜in (85 m/m) bore x [illegible] stroke, this design conforming to all requirements of modern practice of high speed, long stroke motors.

If you will call, inspect, and test this car you will be very quickly convinced that it embodies all and more than we claim for it.

IT IS THE MOST PICTURESQUE CAR THAT EVER CAME TO SYDNEY.

QUALITY, DURABILITY, AND FINISH

HAVE ALWAYS BEEN THE OUTSTANDING FEATURES OF

THE HANDSOME BRITISH HUMBER

Ever since HUMBER'S WORLD-RENOWNED NAME has been associated with these famous Motors.

THAT IS WHY A HUMBER

ALWAYS LOOKS WELL AND RETAINS ITS APPEARANCE.

This assures you a good second-hand value for a Humber when you wish to sell.
You may buy cheaper Cars, but you cannot obtain a better asset than a Humber.
Mr. A. A. OXLADE WRITES AS FOLLOWS:—"I have now completed my first 10,000 miles with the 11 h.p. 'Humber,' purchased from you in February, 1915. This car is running as well now as it was when I bought it. I found it necessary to renew the front springs, as I had the misfortune to break one on a very rough road near Queanbeyan. The H.T. magneto wiring and one set of positive plates in the battery have also been renewed. The back springs have been taken off once for greasing, and the [illegible] treated with the oxygen decarbonising process twice. No other work has been necessary. [illegible] ance for mileage per gallon, using 'Kalif' Motor Spirit with 5 passengers up, on a run from Sydney to Mittagong, via Hornsby, Parramatta, Penrith, Mulgoa, Oaks, and Picton, is 27½ miles. On ordinary running about the city and suburbs I get from 21 to 23 miles per gallon. The original tyres [illegible] English Dunlop, averaged 4520 miles. I find that this car is fast, quiet, very comfortable, and [illegible] power for all requirements when fully loaded, after having driven it over many miles of country roads."

THAT IS WHAT HUMBER QUALITY MEANS.

TO MOTOR TRADERS.

The Repairing of Motor Cars is one of the problems the Garage-owner finds a very difficult business to handle. The scarcity of skilled labour, the selection of high-grade Material, the best treatment of Steels, the special Machinery necessary for the production of intricate parts, the [illegible] required to keep a regular staff employed, the variety of car parts required, are all difficulties that are hard to overcome. This is where we can help you to increase your business. If you know where your parts can be made, all you have to do is to put them in place; then the business is quite simple. We have been engaged in this section of the Motor Car industry for the past 10 years. [illegible] New South Wales for the [illegible] year, until we have the largest and most complete plant in New South Wales, Crown Wheels, Timing Gears, [illegible] parts. We manufacture Crank Shafts, Axles, Change-speed Gears, Crown Wheels, Worm Gears, Connecting Rods, [illegible] Cylinders, make Pistons, Rings, Valves, Camshafts, springs, Worm Gears, [illegible] all ready to be replaced in the Car. Our Prices are right, and are low enough for [illegible] usual trade profit. Goods taken delivery of at rail or boat, and returned without delay. Complete [illegible] on receipt of drawings or samples by return. Special Prices to Trade.

THE SUPREME SHORTHAND.
THE SUPREME SHORTHAND.

It is a significant fact that every winner of the International Shorthand speed contests since the year 1906 has been a Pitman or a Pitmanic writer. Yet the contest is open to the world, and, indeed, many kinds of Shorthand systems are represented at each sitting. But there is only one that is good enough to win—Pitman's—a shorthand built on absolute scientific lines, and tested by millions of writers over a score of years. No complicated mechanical device is required by the Pitman Stenographer. Such a machine would be too limited for many classes of work. Often the Pitman writer is called upon to follow a speaker from place to place—taking notes the whole time. It is in such a case that one appreciates the simplicity of a notebook and pencil. If you want to learn a dependable system that will carry you far on the road to success, learn the Pitman system.
It has been built on success. Mr. Geo. H. Rose, B.A., the Principal of the College, will gladly send you fuller details.
